Dr. Heaton will return to Wake Forest
next week to represent the
First Baptist Church of Lumberton as the lecturer in Religion
on Religion Week.
Dr. Heaton will deliver six lectures during his stay. The first lecture will open the week on  Monday night, April 11.

Dr. Heaton will lead the Religion
Week activities
for the college
next week. His series of talks
will cover a variety of subjects,
including the importance of religion in daily life, the role of the church in society, and the relationship between faith and reason.

Students Fortunate

To Hear Dr. Heaton

On Monday at next week a prominent and well-known Baptist leader, Dr. George D. Heaton, will arrive on the Wake Forest campus to conduct the annual Religious Emphasis week. The purpose of the special sessions, as announced by Progressive Omega, the progressive examination of the meaning of the Christian life in present day experience.

The purpose of these sessions offers a three-fold opportunity. First, there is the opportunity to partake of the great messages of the Christian life has to offer to the individual and to the group.

Second, there is the opportunity to strengthen convictions. By striking at the root of personal opinions, an individual should gain a renewed faith in the Christian doctrine.

Third, there is the opportunity to cultivate spiritual guidance. This follows in natural sequence from the previous two steps, and toward which they point.

In preparation for these sessions, all students are requested to attend services in Wake Forest, as well as to read and study, for there will be no official services for the week.

The spirit of preparation will, therefore, be up to each student to maintain. The next week is set aside for this purpose and will be considered a test period for the student body.

Government Launches

Financial Drive

As the Tuskegee campaign comes to a close and the threat of invasion moves over the continent, the government is launching the greatest financial drive in history—13 billion dollars in bonds, stocks and property, for defense purposes.

College students have a very vital stake in helping to raise this money. Many of our classmates have already seen action on the battlefield and many of you will see action ourselves in the near future. The money that you invest in War Bonds as students will guarantee the future equipment in the world to us all.

Continuing the high standards that our armed forces have established depends largely on the success with which this drive is met. Any student of community can point out the importance of the campaign to the nation as a whole. By staying at home, you may be adding to the strength of the nation's defense.

Government officials are asking that we do our part in helping to close the gap in our national defense.

Citizens Do Their Bit

Toward Victory

Never again can a person make the claim that the citizens of Wake Forest are not doing their utmost in the war effort. Indeed, most of the contributions by the town toward a quicker victory have been overlooked in the excitement caused by the American and British armies to North Africa.

Second, was the local USO. Citizens did the Army Finance School soldiers, as well as other servicemen, a great favor in setting up a useful, efficient USO center here.

Third came the Red Cross Drive. This, for the first time, with an extra goal of $400, not only reached but exceeded that amount by $725. And now the Red Cross has chosen the officers of the town as the only place to provide more home-grown food by closing a number of stores.

The school year.

Wake Forest All-Stars Beat Army, 10-2
Green Gets Credit For Victory As Nine Runs Come Across In Fourth

One big inning was all the Wake Forest All-Stars needed as they beat the Army, 10-2, yesterday. With nine runs scored in the fourth inning, the All-Stars turned the game into a rout despite a strong effort by the Army in their final inning.

The All-Stars, boasting a .500 win-loss record this season, played a solid defensive game behind the pitching of John Conley, who pitched a complete game. The All-Stars scored nine runs in the fourth inning, which was enough to secure their victory.
