"Blind tiger makes getaway as policeman - huge crowd for the game"

In the Gay Nineties, when political life was still the warfare of interest groups, the "blind tiger" was a symbol of the war between organized crime and the police. Perhaps the tiger was never as blind as folk lore has it, but its existence was certainly a threat to the orderly running of the city. To the Editor:

I have just read J. A. Plant's article on page 2 about the possible repeal of the liquor laws, and I think that Mr. Plant is right. The following related incident is offered by way of illustration:

Old Gold and Black

TWO YEARS AGO

When the liquor laws were in effect, I was a habitué of a certain saloon located at the corner of Main and Market Streets. The place was known locally as the "Old Gold and Black" and was owned by a certain man named Smith. Mr. Smith was a respected citizen of the town and was well known for his honesty and integrity. He was also a good business man and operated the saloon in a manner that was above reproach.

One evening, as I was sitting at the bar, a man walked in and ordered a drink. He was dressed in a manner that indicated that he was a man of wealth and good standing. He introduced himself as Mr. Brown, and I was surprised to hear him say that he was one of the leaders of the movement to repeal the liquor laws.

"I have been opposed to the liquor laws for a long time," he said, "and I think that they are a great wrong to the people. The saloons are a menace to the community and should be eliminated."

I replied that I agreed with him, and we had a long conversation about the subject. Mr. Brown was a man of great knowledge and influence, and his words carried weight with the people of the town.

When the laws were repealed, Mr. Smith was one of the first to open a saloon. He was a man of deep character and had the respect of the people.

The first night that the saloon was opened, Mr. Smith invited me to come in and see how things were going. We had a pleasant time and talked about the repeal of the laws.

The saloon was a great success and Mr. Smith became a wealthy man. He was an able business man and operated the saloon in a manner that was above reproach.

Since the repeal of the liquor laws, the saloon has continued to do a thriving business. Mr. Smith is a respected citizen of the town and is held in high esteem by the people.

I think that the repeal of the liquor laws was the best thing that could have happened for the town. I am glad that I was able to support the movement.

I am yours truly,

Here's why CAMELs are the quality cigarettes because we put the utmost quality into this one brand. Camel's are as good as it's possible to smoke, and no one has a better knowledge of the tobacco to make a cigarette.

Nothing is too good for Camel's. And bear this in mind! Everyone is doing the Camel's the best cigarette it's possible to buy. Nothing is done evenly for Camel's.

Take the Camel package for instance. It's the most perfect packing science can devise to protect the best cigarette it's possible to buy. There's no frills or farce.

Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And remember—you must pay their extra cost or get lower quality. If you want the smoothest, cleanest, nicest cigarette you can imagine, and one entirely free from cigarette aftertaste, it's Camel's for you.

Raleigh, May 5th

Wake Forest to Reopen Springboard and Elephant Acts This Year

With only a week remaining, Chrysler Director Langston is making efforts to get the personnel in readiness for the Another Big Circus, to be given in Raleigh, May 4th.

Dr. J. M. Smith, new head of the Commercial Service work of Wake Forest College, has again agreed to be the director of the Wake Forest circus. This is an excellent guarantee that the whole thing will work out as planned. As a physical trainer, Dr. Smith stands not so far to the rear as one of the best.
