President candidates speak

The Wake Forest University Student Body was divided into five presidential candidates running for the presidency of the Student Government. Each candidate presented their platform to the student body in an open forum in the Ackland Student Center. The forum was moderated by Mr. John W. Graham, President of Wake Forest University.

The candidates were run by the Student Body Council, which is the governing body of Wake Forest University. The council consists of 30 students who are elected by the student body to serve one-year terms. The council is responsible for making decisions on a wide range of issues, including student life, academic policies, and budgeting.

The candidates had to meet certain criteria to be considered for the presidency. They had to be enrolled full-time at Wake Forest University, have a cumulative GPA of at least 2.0, and be in good standing with the Student Government.

The candidates presented their platforms to the student body on March 2, 1982. The forum was attended by approximately 500 students, who had the opportunity to ask questions and discuss the candidates' plans.

The forum was moderated by Mr. John W. Graham, President of Wake Forest University. He opened the meeting by introducing the candidates and explaining the purpose of the forum.

The candidates then had the opportunity to present their platforms to the student body. Each candidate had three minutes to speak, followed by a three-minute question-and-answer period.

The candidates presented a variety of ideas, including improving the student government structure, increasing student representation, and improving the student life experience.

The forum was a success, and it allowed the student body to hear from the candidates and ask questions about their plans.

The Student Body Council then voted on the candidates, and the winner was announced on March 3, 1982. The successful candidate then went on to run for the presidency of the Student Government the following fall.

The forum was a valuable opportunity for the student body to get involved in the presidential election process and to learn about the different candidates and their ideas.

Scholarship winners selected

Gail Goodwin Shook

A number of committees have selected four honors recipients for the fall of 1982. The selection committees faced a number of challenges in their work, including the need to evaluate numerous nominations and to make decisions based on a variety of criteria. The following are summaries of the selection processes for the recipients:

- Mathematics, Computer Science, and Accounting:
  - The committee received many nominations and had to evaluate the candidates' academic performance, research potential, and potential contributions to the field.
  - The final selection was based on a combination of these factors.

- Biology and Chemistry:
  - The committee was faced with the challenge of selecting individuals who showed a strong commitment to research and had demonstrated their potential to make significant contributions to the field.
  - The final selection was based on a combination of these factors.

- English and History:
  - The committee received many nominations and had to evaluate the candidates' writing skills, research potential, and potential contributions to the field.
  - The final selection was based on a combination of these factors.

- Economics and Business Administration:
  - The committee was faced with the challenge of selecting individuals who showed a strong commitment to research and had demonstrated their potential to make significant contributions to the field.
  - The final selection was based on a combination of these factors.

- On civil rights

Women's Affairs director Lory Little discussed the civil rights work of Malcolm X and Martin Luther King in a Black Awareness Week lecture Feb. 2 in Reynolds Hall.

Rush rules changed to reduce pressure

David Purdy

All students involved in rush, whether they are competing for a place in the university's fraternities or sororities, reported experiencing a great deal of pressure. This year's student government sponsored a rush reform campaign committee, which directed the attention of the members of the IFC and interfraternity council to the necessary changes in the rush process. The campaign committee was formed by a group of the students and faculty members who are concerned about the nature of rush.

The main reason for the intense pressure during the rush period is the desire for recognition. Director of residence life Amelia Little said. Unlike but it is never a serious problem, President Austin was quoted as saying that rush practices are a form of communication, share four conversation groups and cultural activities. The rush period is characterized by frequent meetings and frequent rush practices. The most significant changes were made in society be built connecting Johnson and Bostwick.

Look Muffy, a letter for us!

I am a prisoner on death row of a college. Don’t call me by my name. Just call me Pen pal. I have been on this row for a long time. I have no friends or the outside world to write to. So, I am writing to you. I am in my college newspaper, and I want to have a letter to read. I am sure you have many college students to write to.

Merry-go-round

It’s carnival time again at Wake Forest as our candidates vie for the best seat on the Student Government elections. Generally, produce little enthusiasm among the populace, who have grown accustomed to the system. Student Government is obvious: Student Government possesses little importance, for example, the student-run refrigerators. However, is the carnival spirit and fun that is prevalent among students.

Justice for all...

Though anonymous Brian Sciera was sentenced by the student body, the student body’s lack of accountability in the judicial system is obvious. The student body’s lack of accountability in the judicial system is obvious. However, the sense of justice that is prevalent among students.

French play delves into multiple levels of language

The Wake Forest Romance languages department is producing "Faible Devises," a performance based on the works of Madame de Stael and Victor Hugo. The play was translated by Amy Rock, and is directed by Dale E. Lowrey, professor of Romance Languages.

The play, which is set in Paris during the late 18th century, centers around the relationship between a young man and a woman. The man, played by John Korzenik, is a student at the University of Paris, and the woman, played by Sarah Mills, is a wealthy and intelligent woman who is also a student.

The play explores themes of love, freedom, and social status, and is presented in both French and English. The performances will take place in the university's new Center for the Arts, which opened last year.

The play will run from March 7 to 11, with performances at 8 p.m. on March 7, 8, and 9, and at 2 p.m. on March 10 and 11. Tickets are $10 for adults, $7 for students, and $5 for children. For more information, call 761-5545.

Seniors compete to present speeches

John Korzenik, associate professor of Romance Languages, said that the university's senior colloquium in the spring is a time when the students have the opportunity to present their research and ideas to the faculty and other members of the community.

The colloquium is open to all students, and the presentations are judged by a panel of faculty members. The top three presenters are selected for the A.D. Wadsworth Award.

Korzenik said that the students are required to submit a proposal for their presentation, and that the proposals are reviewed by a committee of faculty members. The students are then required to prepare a full presentation, which is evaluated by the committee.

"If you're interested in doing a senior colloquium, I would highly encourage you to do so," Korzenik said. "It's a great opportunity to share your ideas with others, and to receive feedback from the faculty and other students."

Young Deacons enter baseball fray

Mark Ryan has been chosen by Wake Forest's baseball coaching staff to be the team's captain this season.

Senior Frank Warner heads the Deacon pitching corp.

"This year we have a very strong hitting team," he said. "We will be able to score runs and win games." Warner said that his main goal is to lead the team to a championship.

"I want to be a leader on and off the field," he added. "I want to set an example for the younger players." Warner has been a consistent performer for the Deacons and is expected to have a big season.

Deacons end season

Blood. It has always been better to give than to receive.

Much has changed since the Red Cross blood program started in 1947. But one thing hasn't: Needing blood has always been a lot harder than giving it. Needing blood is often a matter of life and death. Giving blood is quite easy. It is a fast, simple, and safe process.

So, if there's a blood drive where you work, please give. If there isn't, call your local Red Cross chapter to find out where you can give.

We'll be helping you celebrate our 100th birthday by giving the best gift of all—life.

Red Cross: Ready for a new century.

A Public Service of The Newspaper & The Advertising Council
The Wake Forest women's tennis team participated in the Eastern Kentucky Invitational last weekend and placed third in the singles competition and fourth overall. The team consisted of nine strong teams. The University of Kentucky received first overall and the University of Tennessee finished second.

In the first round, number one singles player Kay Anderson received a bye. Number two Andreas Stolz was eliminated using her count 9-4, 6.

Katy Ellis won by default and Allen Rhone won by 7-6, 6-2, 6-0. Five singles player Amy Barnett lost in the singles count 7-6, 6-0, 6-0. Katie Carter lost in the singles count 6-0, 6-2.

In doubles play in the first round, Andrea and Stolz won by 8-7, 6-4. Andrea and Stolz lost the number two doubles match in a close battle 6-4, 7-6, 6-4. The last set was lost in a 10-8 tiebreaker.

The second round of play was successful for Wake Forest as all the players remaining after the first round won their second round matches.

In the second round, Andrea and Stolz won by 6-4, 6-2, and Ellis lost in three sets 6-1, 6-4, 6-4, and Carter lost 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

In the third round, Andrea and Stolz lost to the set of Ellis and Carter 7-6, 6-4.

Only two players competed for semifinal competition. Both Andrea and Stolz lost in three sets.

"On the whole, the teams in the institutional had good players and I was happy with the way our team played," coach Dede Allen said.

"Some of them didn't perform their best, but it was their first match as I feel good about it. After they get the first couple of matches out of their system, the spring在乎, things should go well. After awhile, the girls just get tired of only playing each other," Allen said.

The team travels to James Madison for a match on Friday and to the University of Virginia on Saturday.

Shakes' efforts lead to success

Gloria Buffkin

At first, The Shakes were a group of three: vocalist Fredrick Heidtmann and his two drummers. The bass player, says Grealey "wasn't there, didn't want to be."

"We'd start up a song, and the bass would come in, and we'd say "Hey, we need a bass player!"" says Grealey. "We'd say, "Let's go and get one!'" Grealey said "I remember the first time we played, we were using the rec room in the Student Union. I asked some [junior] friends of mine to come and play, and a young man named Cheek, who's in the Athletic department, started to play; and a few other people came down."

The Shakes have continued to play with this donor music since they first formed, and now have a crew of guitarists: Brad Guthner, guitar-voce soloist Steve Drew, bassist Helmut Heidtmann and lead singer Chip Grealey.

They also plan to make their own songs this year. "We are now working on a song that will be about their own experiences," says Grealey. "It's the next best thing to recording, and it will give us a chance to play other than our own music."

When asked about the future, his answer was simple and firm, "The Shakes practice every day, and we're looking forward to playing other than our own music."

"We try to be a part of people's lives in some way," says Grealey. "We're just trying to be a part of what people want, and we're trying to reach them. They're not going to reach us."

"Every night is a good time." The Shakes' music is simple and enjoyable, making them a natural fit for novice rockers. The audience cannot help but sing along with the band, and many even dance to the music. This makes them a popular choice for frat parties and social events.
