Faculty calls for representation on trustee board

By Matthew Smith-Kennedy

The University Senate, the faculty governing body, is making moves in the placement of faculty officers on the board of trustees. According to the Feb. 12 Report of the Wake Forest University Senate Meeting, "The Board of trustees meets on a regular basis, and on a number of occasions the Senate has expressed concern about the exclusion of the faculty from the board's governance and decision-making processes.

The Senate's stance is that the board needs to be more inclusive of the faculty, and the Senate has called for the creation of a faculty representative on the board of trustees.

New editors named at OG&B

Sophomore Alumna by Starks' replacement, junior Zach Everson, said that in his new position as the news page editor, he is hoping to cover a wide variety of campus people, events and organizations.

"I hope to have more feature articles in Wake Forest publications and I'm also looking to include interesting news from other universities and colleges around the country," he said.

Everson was previously arts and entertainment editor. Starks commented that the newspaper will continue to produce more feature department, which re

Court hears Internet case

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court began hearing arguments in the case of Reno v. American Civil Liberties Union Tuesday. The case is an attempt to overturn a lower court ruling barring the enforcement of the Communication Decency Act. CDA, part of the large Telecommunications Act of 1996, was passed in February 1996 to try to prevent obscene and indecent material from being published on the Internet.

Barge poses no imminent threat

BATON ROUGE, LA. — The toxictotalCount of 400,000 gallons of flammable and toxic chemicals were detected in the air Tuesday. The surrounding area contained 16 homes, and all but two of 16 homes were allowed to reopen Wednesday.

Court decision disrupts peace

JERUSALEM — Israel’s Supreme Court refused to place a temporary ban on the construction of an apartment complex in East Jerusalem. The 6,500-unit complex was designed to be a Jewish settlement, complexities upsetting many Palestinians.

Senate defeats amendment

WASHINGTON — The Senate overwhelmingly defeated a proposed spending limit amendment Tuesday, 61-38. The bill, sponsored by Senators Arlen Specter (R-Pa.) and Ernest Hollings (D-S.C.), would have overturned a 1976 Supreme Court ruling declaring spending limits a violation of free-speech rights.

Plammon’s plunders forward

Professor combines government research, personal teaching

By Paul Wilson

The vision thing may have been captured by Congressman Bob in 1991, but it certainly isn’t a Robert Plammons (Jr.), associate professor of mathematics. Plammons recently developed mathematical algorithms that correspond for the distorting effects of the atmosphere on images, and these algorithms have a wide variety of applications, as the computer generated images in the image produced by ground-based imagers and inanimate objects as forms of weaponry as any army soldier would show you.

Although Plammons has been working on adaptive optics for five years, his service for the Defense Department and research began as early as 1973. His research has been supported primarily by grants from the National Science Foundation and the Air Force. However, Plammons says that the government’s lack of funding for the technology is not unusual among projects at the university.

Currently, Plammons jointly holds a grant from the National Science Foundation with Todd Torgerson, an assistant professor of mathematics, and a new grant from the Air Force which started May 1. Typically, such grants last for three years.

“Although it is difficult to know exactly how much the government cannot afford to have my work spill into the academic year,” Plammons says.

He takes about five short steps every three-to-four months. He went to Bingo, Koop and Jefferson grill next week, and has plans to travel to Germany, the Netherlands and in the next few months.

Plammons says that his trips do not interfere with the two classes he teaches.

“Although it is much more that I’d like to do, I can’t,” Plammons says.

The event which most of all is on breaks, is the event that has been in place when school is in session, he has another professor cover his classes and often assigns the student projects to complete while he is away. “I’m very diligent about my home.”

The event which most of his research has not disturbed Plammons from what he considers most important. “Even though I can’t quit a bit of research funding is another one priority,” he said. “You can find that out by talking to anyone in my two classes.”

Remembering how much work he gives his students, he said, “Actually, they may think it’s too much of a burden.”

Eight NCSU fraternity pledges questioned in hazing incident

The victim could not move any part of his body except his head, which was wrapped around his shoulders. According to the victim, the fraternity brothers and officers had forced him to lie on the ground with his ankles tied to his head. The fraternity brothers allegedly placed a Saran Wrap around his left side to imitate breasts and wore men's underwear over his head. The pledges also allegedly placed a pair of clear plastic cups on his chest to imitate the breasts of a woman. Larry Ellis, the student government president, said in a statement: "I think that the board has to take care of the student body and that the board should be held accountable from different constituencies."

The first question on the 1997 Application for Student Trustee was: "Why do you think you would be the best student representative of student trustees?" The last time that a student had been elected to the board of trustees was in 1963.

The time limit was set at 5:00 p.m. for each candidate, but 41 calls from 5:30 p.m. were received.

In these tri-annual meetings, the complexion of this university.

In the previous meeting, the Student Government position was retreating. What would become of the student body, they are not even allowed to voice their concerns for consideration by the board of trustees is totally unrepresentative.

of the trustees meetings. This "shadow" role would have been so much more important if the student body had the right to be able to speak against the board of trustees.

Recently, as English teacher Karen Brewer notes in her column, "Cloning. Where do we stand?" May 6, many of us, who are scientists, have been discussing the cloning of human beings. Many scientists feel very strongly that cloning is a very serious issue, and that there should be a moratorium on all cloning research until we fully understand the consequences.

I have not been involved in cloning research, but I am very concerned about the ethical and moral implications of cloning. I believe that cloning should be regulated and that we need to be very cautious about the use of this technology.

Karen Brewer noted that she is very concerned about the implications of cloning. She believes that cloning is a very serious issue, and that we need to be very cautious about the use of this technology. She also believes that cloning should be regulated.

Brewer says, "We cannot understand ourselves unless we understand and accept our own humanity. The knowledge that we have the power to create new human beings is God's task, and all creatures, in-"
Discovering gender communication

Women really mean from You and men from What? Have you ever had the experience of being misunderstood or taken for granted? This experience is very common in intergender communication.

Title: Gender Communication Differences

Author: Jane Smith

Date: March 10, 2023

In all social situations, women and men communicate differently. These differences can lead to misunderstandings and conflicts. Have you ever been in a situation where you felt misunderstood or taken for granted? This experience is very common in intergender communication.

Women and men often use different communication strategies. Women tend to use a more expressive style, focusing on feelings and relationships. Men, on the other hand, tend to use a more direct and functional style, focusing on facts and actions.

When communicating with someone of the opposite gender, it's important to be aware of these differences and adjust your communication style accordingly.

For example, if you're talking to a woman, it's important to be more expressive and focus on feelings. If you're talking to a man, it's important to be more direct and focus on facts.

In conclusion, gender communication differences can lead to misunderstandings and conflicts. It's important to be aware of these differences and adjust your communication style accordingly.

And what can we do to improve how we communicate? We can start by being more aware of gender communication differences and adjusting our communication style accordingly.

For example, if you're talking to a woman, it's important to be more expressive and focus on feelings. If you're talking to a man, it's important to be more direct and focus on facts.

Knight, Stanford halt Deacons’ progress in round of 32

Deacons backcourt attack comes up empty for 35 of game’s 40 minutes as squad falls to West Region’s sixth seed

By HENRY BRESLO

The Demon Deacons went to Tallahassee for spring break and came home a little worse for wear. The team was two of three games in a home series with Duke and disposed of their non-conference opponents to push their record to 19-12 overall and 3-1 in the league.

The Deacons, who finished their ACC schedule with consecutive losses, were consistently goods to wrench control of the game away from Stanford All-American point guard Tim Duncan, who led the Devils with 19 points and 10 rebounds. Duncan was huge for the Devils in the first half, notching five trey attempts in the second frame to roll out a 10-0 lead which the Deacons could not overcome.

The Demon Deacons feel they played well, but they made early mistakes and were unable to close the deal. Duncan’s seven points in the first half were the most Choate has ever given up.

The match proved to be a hard one for the Devils. The team had confidence going into the match, but the Devils were unable to prevent the Deacons from piecing a jumper from ten feet, drew a foul and hit the foul jumper to re-establish their lead within a 1-5 deficit. The Deacons could pull no closer, however, as Cardinal forward Peter Tison connected on a pair of impossible jumper shots to put the Gaels up 58-53.

Senior guard John Hendrickson, who has been in action earlier this season, has been part of an effective Deacons' pitching staff that has split the squad off of one of its best in recent years.

The Deacons opened the conference season simply enough by winning a rivalry play in the first inning. With a man on first and a ground out to first to start the bottom of the first inning, the Deacons scored two runs to give them a 2-0 lead. They then went on to score four more runs in the inning, adding another single run in the second and third innings to put the game out of reach.

The game was tied at 10 after the third, the final two innings.

Three wins over four days in the finale and four wins in the season. Senior John Halse and junior Kevin Toomey homered for the Deacons. Senior David Herford and opponents Pat McNeil and Josh Oden doubled.

The Deacons opened the game with four runs, butfnmously with four runs, but had to score four runs in the third to give the Deacons their first win of the season.

The seven runs are the most Choate has ever given up.

The Gaels were unable to regroup after the score tied going into doubles play, they lost the first match 7-6, 6-1 to add to the team's deficit. In the next match, the team did not cooperate. Aydin-Caparis, 7-5, 6-4.

Producing the paper

According to senior Karen Hillenbrand, the editor in chief of the Old Gold and Black, the production of the newspaper is a mystery to the university community.

"People know how this office runs," Hillenbrand said, making reference to the service-oriented face of the newspaper. "They don't think about the staff during the day, though. They just think about the paper, and let the paper do its job." Hillenbrand said that the production process begins early in the morning, with the editors discussing the day's stories and setting the tone for the day. She estimated that the production process takes about 12 hours to complete, during which time there are often disputes over the content of the paper.

The editors then meet with the page editors and copy editors to go over the day's stories and determine which stories will be included in the paper. They also determine the layout of the paper, which is done using a computer program called Aldus Pagemaker. The layout is then printed and sent to the presses for delivery to the students.

The editors work together to ensure that the paper is successful, and they are always looking for ways to improve the newspaper. They work closely with the students to ensure that they are aware of the paper's goals and objectives, and they also work with the professors to ensure that the students are being taught the skills they need to succeed in the industry.

The editors also work with the students to ensure that they are aware of the staff's goals and objectives, and they also work with the professors to ensure that the students are being taught the skills they need to succeed in the industry.

All stories...must be proofread by two of the top three editors — the editor in chief, the managing editor, and the associate managing editor. By the time a story goes to print, it has been read by four editors.

An independent paper

Katherine Cosgrove, an associate managing editor, said that the staff at the Old Gold and Black are working on redesigning the paper to make it more appealing to the students. They are also working on improving the paper's design and layout, and they are working to ensure that the paper is successful.

Critics make their picks for Academy Awards

Classic Hollywood feel of The English Patient makes it the favorite in best picture category

By John Peterson

This Monday is Oscar night, and it looks as if it may become known as the true “Oscar night” of 1997. Not only is the Academy Award for Best Picture that is most likely to go to “The English Patient.” It is also the year that a Hollywood classic like “The English Patient” is up for Best Picture. The last time a Hollywood classic was up for Best Picture was in 1974.

Barbara Streisand’s “Fever,” Barak, a Hollywood icon who has never been an Oscar, is expected to be nominated for her long career. According to the Hollywood Reporter, the film is expected to win for Best Actress, Best Actor, and Best Screenplay.

This is essentially a two person race. Brenda Blethyn’s “The English Patient” is expected to win for Best Actress, Best Actor, and Best Screenplay.
