Elections Committee Disqualifies Sanford

By HARRETT CHAPMAN

The student government elections committee voted to disqualify Sanford Miller from the presidential race on Monday night after hearing Miller speak in another campus location. Although Sanford spoke at an earlier meeting of the Student Union’s Saturday downing of “... after last year that more than one million votes were cast.”

Sanford said that the last Saturday elections committee has no way to monitor this. The last year’s election saw a new record in voter turnout.

Concerning the incident, Sanford said that “it has happened before. The people who have the right to run for president in a student government election should have to do their part to make sure the election is a fair one.”

Sanford explained the incident of the talk showing up on the last meeting’s agenda as a request by the Pennsylvania State University to express its concern over the whole student government elections.

Sanford also said that he would like to see some greater transparency in the campaign. "It seems like we are doing a lot of stuff behind the scenes and not quite as much as is being done publicly," he explained. Sanford added that he wants to see more student input in the decision-making process.

Deke's Reject IFC Proposal, Will Not Seek WFU Recognition

By DOUG LAMORE

After unanimously rejecting a proposal from the Interfraternity Council that required compliance with university alcohol policy, the Delta Kappa Epsilon (DKE) fraternity has decided not to seek recognition for the fall semester. For the past two years, the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity as a member of the Interfraternity Council has been in a "laughing stock" position.

Ashikari, the interim president of the students' council, said that the decision was "the right thing to do." She added that the IFC President's Club, which funded the event, made the decision to recognize the fraternity for their part in the event. pancakes. almonds. waffles. sweet tea. WFU Delegation Gets Bill Passed in NCSL

Old Gold and Black Staff Report

Wake Forest sent five representatives to the North Carolina Student Legislature's 50th Annual Session earlier this month. The bill authored by the Wake Forest delegation was passed by both houses of the Legislature and signed by the Governor, thus making the North Carolina Student Legislature the only student legislature in the nation of two legislative chambers, the House of Representatives and the Senate.

This year was particularly important because of the expiration of 30 years of legislation. Special guests were on hand to help celebrites, including Wake Forest alumnus Gene Worrell, who served as NCSL's first lieutenant governor 50 years ago. Other guests included the use of the Legislative Chambers Assembly, the old Capitol Building, where the old legislature met in two separate chambers, the House of Representatives and the Senate.

Winston-Salem students attending the legislature consist of 130 students representing Wake Forest, Davidson, Furman, and Davidson College, and a delegation from Trinity University.

Students representing Wake Forest were: Secretary of State and former delegation chairman Lori Chatlam, delegation chairperson Steven Efird, and Huffman dorms this year.

Under the plan, students may be allowed to paint their own rooms, build beds and make various other improvements in their living areas. He also presented some changes in the housing sign-up which would make it possible for students to move in the same room for several years.

Wake Forest Represents Yearly French Conference

BY CHRISTINE M. VARIHO

Wake Forest will host the 50th Annual Conference of the North American Society for Seventeenth Century French Literature (NASCSF) April 11-13. Although the conference will be held on the campus of the University of Toronto, Canada, and Europe are expected to attend for three day symposium, including Montreal M. Roppin, associate professor of Romance languages and president of the society.

NASCFL is an international society whose aim is to increase the study of seventeenth century French literature in the U.S. and Canada, and as such to work in close cooperation with scholars of similar disciplines. The society seeks to achieve these aims by publishing a biannual conference and publishing the proceedings.

Letter to the Editor

A black student, I was not surprised when I learned that Derek Stars, the student body president, had denied the request of Mr. Moss, one of our faculty members, to take part in the Annual Gold and Black Day. As an African American, I was not surprised because this is the same attitude that our society has toward African Americans. The bottom line is that we have a long way to go. But, you are what you wear and the color of your skin is not one of those factors.

Sir, I do not believe that this incident has been adequately handled. In my opinion, it is a much more serious matter than you have represented it to be.

Mr. Moss is a faculty member of our university and he requests to be included in the school's annual Gold and Black Day. While he is not an African American, his views are important to us all. I believe that the president of the student body should have taken the time to understand the significance of this event and the importance of Mr. Moss's request.

In conclusion, I urge the Student Body President to reconsider his position. We must remember that we are not a separate society, but a part of the larger society. We must work together to overcome the problems that we face.

I urge you to reconsider this decision and take the necessary steps to ensure that all members of our community are included.

Sincerely,

Wake Forest Retires As Deacon Baseball Coach After 12 Years at Helm

By LOUIS MONTENEGRO

The Wake Forest baseball team honored the legendary Coach Buddy Jenkins at Sunday afternoon’s game against Georgia Tech. In 13 years at Wake Forest, Jenkins compiled a 537-262-1 record and led the Deacons to two second-place finishes in the ACC.

Jenkins, who is retiring after this season, was named to the ACC all-commissioners team in 1991 and 1993.

The Wake Forest baseball team was presented with a plaque as a token of appreciation for Jenkins’ years of service to the program.

Jenkins is the fifth Wake Forest coach to retire in the last 12 months, joining head coach Dede Allen, assistant coach John Kowalewski, and the athletic department administration of the new 2,140-seat BB&T Ballpark.

In the wake of the announcement, Jenkins said that he had been given a new lease on life and that he was looking forward to the next year or two, but that he was happy to move on from the baseball coach’s role.

"It’s going to be a young man’s job that I’m not getting any younger," Jenkins said. "Success is what I’ve always wanted to bring to the Reynold’s Hall in South signing with the New York Yankees in 1987 at a cost of $1.4 million, because the team had been around for 100 years."

Jenkins was a four-year starter at Wake Forest from 1972-75 and was named to the ACC all-commissioners team in 1973.

The new 2,140-seat BB&T Ballpark will open in 2001.

Lost in the Fifties: Pass the Caffeine

My brother is nine years younger than I am, but we have a lot in common. He is very much like me, in fact. We both have the same interests and hobbies. I don't know whether he is too young to have a sense of humor yet, but he sure is amusing.

We were talking about our childhood memories the other day, and how much we enjoyed each other's company. We talked about the fun we had together, the games we played, and the adventures we went on. We even reminisced about the times we played hooky from school, which was a lot of fun. We both think it's a shame that kids today don't have the same opportunities for play and exploration that we did.

We talked about the old-fashioned games we played, like hide-and-seek, tag, and red rover. We even talked about the old-fashioned clothes we wore, like the overalls and suspenders our dad made for us. We both think it's a shame that kids today don't get to wear clothes like that anymore.

We also talked about the old-fashioned food we ate, like homemade cookies and ice cream. We both think it's a shame that kids today don't get to eat food like that anymore. Dixon Gives Recital

Old Gold and Black Staff Report

Patricia Dixon, classical pianist, performed beauty in a recent recital at the Department of Music’s series of beauty concerts.

The first half of the performance consisted of works by Villa-Lobos, the first piece was the sonata and Villa-Lobos’ Symphonie Brésilienne, Tho was the “Mancha Choros”. The next three songs were by Brésilienne. The last Dixon was joined by Marlene Choros, violinist and vocal instructor, on “Marche” and “Dichiaratà Briosi di Atto”.

The second half of the evening featured the works of Chopin, Schumann and Franck. Dixon opened with Schumann’s “Appassionata” and Franck’s “Siciliana”. The evening closed with Chopin’s “Siciliana” as Dixon played "Les Sylphides" for the encore.

The recital series is an opportunity for patrons to witness the talent of the faculty of the music department, and Dixon demonstrated her abilities very well in this performance. Students are also giving recitals through the month of April and should not be forgotten.

‘Ten Men’ Conveys Warmth and Depth of Director

Ten Men’ was written by Michael W. Thomas, and is set in the 1960s, during the Civil Rights Movement. The play explores themes of justice, race, and the power of community. The cast features ten actors, each representing a different role, and the action takes place in a small, rural town.

The play begins with a series of vignettes, each depicting a moment in the city’s history. The scenes are interspersed with a musical performance, played by a group of local musicians. The music is an integral part of the play, serving to underscore the themes of the story.

One of the most powerful scenes is when the town’s residents come together to listen to a speech by Martin Luther King Jr. The actors portray a variety of characters, each with their own unique perspective on King’s message. The performance is both moving and thought-provoking, leaving the audience with a deep sense of the impact of King’s words.

Overall, ‘Ten Men’ is a powerful and thought-provoking piece of theatre, with a message that is as relevant today as it was when it was written. Its themes of justice, race, and community are important ones, and the play serves as a reminder of the power of art to bring together people from all walks of life.

Wolfpack End ACC Losing Skid
With 6-3 Win Over Wake Forest

By CRAD KILLEMBEE

On site at Wake Forest

N.C. State broke a four-year conference losing streak by defeating Wake Forest's men's team 6-3 Wednesday in Raleigh, handing the Deacons their third Atlantic Coast Conference loss of the week.

The Wolfpack lost a longest match April 2, 1983, and had lost 32 consecutive matches to ACC opponents. They captured four of the six singles contests and two of the three doubles matches to improve to 9-5 overall, 1-3 in the ACC. Wake Forest fell to 6-4, 0-2, having lost to Maryland and Virginia last weekend before defeating Virginia Tech Sunday.

The only Demon victory was at No. one and No. two singles and number one doubles. Top seed Mark Billings defeated Grant Leaver 6-4, 6-3, second seed Richard Grimm and No. six seed Mark Kronemer defeated Kristofer Carlson and Steve Thurman 6-2, 6-3. The Dallwitz brothers, Stefan and Christian, lost three-set match at number one doubles to Lars Svensson and Alfonso Ortin 6-4, 6-3.

N.C. State Head Coach Crawford Henry said the three-set win for his squad was the keys to breaking the losing streak.

"We were always glad to break the streak, but I'm glad that everything we did was just a matter of doing the things we were doing and making things happen," Henry said. "We have played a few good matches. We were due to win some matches.

The Wolfpack had several close matches in houses to North Carolina and Duke, including three corns against the Blue Devils in which Wolfpack players were serving for the match, and Henry felt the dominating conference was right around the corner.

"I know the team could compete," Henry said. "It was just a matter of closing the door and winning a match. It was that -a little bit of a road block that I felt was with us right until the arm. We finally kicked it off.

"I think we were up by four after the first match, and obviously they had slippery grounds and we were playing in the Houston Invitational. Next weekend, Wake Forest will play in the ACC Championships.

DEACON NOTES

UM Teams Finish Fourth

Representatives of Wake Forest finished a disappointing fourth place in the annual Big Four Invitational Championships held this past weekend in Raleigh, N.C. State, the host team, took first place in the men's division, followed by Duke, North Carolina, and Wake Forest.

The men's team from N.C. State also captured the first place crown, with 31 points. They were followed by North Carolina with 25 points, Duke with 17 and Wake Forest with 11.

Coach Lee Ellison, the director of tennis, was disappointed in the amount of people that Wake Forest's team only put one entry in each event. He also put his thoughts on the people who went. "You have to put in the events you want," Ellison said. "I think that we left many good athletes on course. We were able to make a few one-on-one changes, and didn't have some teams that we thought we ought to.

"I don't want to ask anything away from the kids who went there. They got a lot of experience," Ellison said. "I think that's the first time since I've been here that we've put depth in both divisions, so I'm obviously disappointed," Ellison added.

"They didn't have the depth that we've had," Ellison said. "They didn't have the depth that we've had."
