SG Passes Resolution After Extended Debate

By Barry Robinson

The legislature after an arduous and protracted debate finally on Monday night passed a resolution which ultimately resulted in the approval of the Student Act of Administration (S.A.A.). The resolution, passed on Monday, only after a 10-week session by the University Senate and Student Assembly which had been held in a state of legislative deadlock.

Many students who are acknowledged with the black student problems on campus considered the defeated resolution to be the most important part of the entire session. The resolution would have given the black student representatives the right to participate in the drafting of the University Senate's budget and financial policies.

The resolution which was passed contained two points, both of which were aimed at improving the education of black students. The first point was that the University Senate should establish a committee to study the needs of black students and make recommendations to the Senate. The second point was that the University Senate should provide funds to support black student organizations.

Students Give Money, Time, To Stirring Ibo Affairs

By William Miller

More than a thousand students have been raising hundreds of dollars for the Ibo cause in recent weeks. The number of students who have contributed to the Ibo cause has increased significantly in the past few weeks.

According to the records of the university, more than $1,000 has been raised by the students since the Ibo cause was first brought to the university's attention by the Student Action Committee. The students have been raising money through a variety of means, including selling calendars, raffles, and bake sales.

The students have also been giving the university permission to raise money on their behalf.

Wake Begins Search For Tate's Successor

By Barry Robinson

The University is considering two candidates for the position of Athletic Director. The candidates are John Allen and James Robinson, who are currently employed at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The search for a successor to Tate Raines, who died last week, is expected to be completed within the next few weeks. The new athletic director will be responsible for overseeing all aspects of the university's athletic program, including the football team.

University Is Granted $1,370,000

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill has received a $1,370,000 grant from the National Science Foundation to support research in the field of computer science.

The university has been awarded the grant for a 4-year period, totaling $5,000,000. The grant will be used to support research in areas such as artificial intelligence, machine learning, and data mining.

Students Still Working
To Complete Pledges

To DIANE JONES
Approximately 30 students are bidding to participate in a benefit performance of Mozart's "Don Giovanni." Diane Jones, director of the student chapter of the American Association of University Women, said the pledge drive was begun after the student's concert was disrupted by a snowstorm

"There are two houses pledged for work by 90% and 70%," she said.

"We have filled and are filling the last houses in an effort to get the last pledge," Diane Jones said.

The pledge drive, which was scheduled for Friday, Dec. 6, ends at 9:30 p.m.

Personal And Vocational Counseling

BY NANCY BECK
STAFF WRITER

Students respond to the atmosphere of University life in different ways, some of these turn to the Center for Psychological Services.

Dr. A. Van C. Vanslad, assistant professor of psychology and assistant director of the center and the member of students seeking help in the center's two offices, said the center has seen a steady increase in the number of students seeking counseling and testing.

The center serves three functions: counseling, testing, and research. The counseling function, Vanslad said, is the focus of two educational—counseling and personal. "Most of the students form a group and are interested in talking through problems," he said.

The center conducts many counseling and testing clinics for students on campus. The center is concerned with helping students who have personal problems or who are having difficulty with adjusting to college life.

Dr. Vanslad, son of Dr. T. Vanslad, of the end of the sophomore year. Therefore, a student who has been having problems with personal problems and who reads the pamphlet realizes that he may now come here for help.

Personal counseling involves problems of all kinds, according to Vanslad. These problems may be serious or may be solved with a few sessions or even a few minutes. The most common problems handled by the center are those involving adjustment to college life. Other problems handled by the center are those involving problems of health, sex, and family life.

Negroes’ Progress Has Been Continuous

By GRAY LAWRENCE

Albeit it has sometimes stumbled, the Negro in the last decade has been continuously advancing.

Support for Negroes equalized. By 1967, social life for Negro students had reached a point where there was no longer any segregation in the social life of the campus.

The last decade has seen a tremendous increase in Negro student population. A number of factors have contributed to this increase, including the civil rights movement, increased awareness of the importance of higher education, and the gradual elimination of racial barriers.

The Negro population at Wake Forest is now a significant part of the student body. While the university has not yet achieved full integration, there has been a steady increase in the number of Negro students over the past decade.

Negroes’ Rights Treaty

In January 1967, the United Nations General Assembly adopted the Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples.

This document, known as the International Convention on Indigenous Rights, was the result of years of negotiation and debate among representatives of many different countries.

The treaty recognizes and affirms the inherent dignity and worth of the human person. It also recognizes the right of all peoples to self-determination, the right to their own land, and the right to cultural expression.

The treaty includes provisions for the protection of individual rights, such as freedom of expression, freedom of religion, and freedom from discrimination.

The treaty also includes provisions for the protection of the environment and the rights of indigenous peoples to participate in decision-making processes that affect them.

The treaty is a significant step forward in the recognition of the rights of indigenous peoples. It sets a new standard for the protection of these rights and provides a framework for the development of further initiatives.

The treaty has been ratified by many countries, including the United States. It is a reminder of the ongoing struggle for the recognition of the rights of indigenous peoples around the world.
Positive Protest

On the evening of November 19, a letter to the Wake Forest Journal raised the question of how students feel about the United States involvement in the Biafran campaign. The writer of the letter pointed out that Wake Forest students are pro-American and felt that there should be some way of publicizing their opinion of the Biafran campaign. The writer argued that Wake Forest students should be able to express their feelings on this important issue, perhaps by including their opinions in the student Government's annual Blue Book on campus activities.

The Biafran campaign can be successful if it is properly planned and executed. However, the major majority of black people are affected by the war, so any action against the Biafran campaign would have to be handled carefully. We are all aware of the history of the Biafran people, and it is important that we not take any actions that could cause harm to them. We must also be mindful of the fact that we are all human beings, and we should not make decisions that could cause harm to others.

Only a Start

If any of my diagnosis of the football team is correct, the Wake Forest team is going to lose the vast majority of its games this year. We have not fulfilled our obligations to this university and to Wake Forest students.

Electoral College Product of Outdated Politics

Minority Can Overide Clear Majority

MINORITY CAN OVERRIDE CLEAR MAJORITY

The electoral college system of choosing the candidates of political parties is an outdated system that needs to be changed. The electoral college system was established in the 18th century, and it has not kept up with the changing times. The system is not representative of the will of the people, and it allows for the possibility of a candidate winning the election without having a majority of the popular vote.

The electoral college system is a relic of the past, and it is time for it to be replaced with a system that reflects the will of the people. There are many alternatives to the electoral college system, such as a direct popular vote or a system of proportional representation. These systems would allow for the will of the people to be reflected in the election results, and they would be more democratic and fair than the current system.

Thanksgiving

In a world of so many things to be thankful for, one thing stands out clearly: we are so much better off today than we were a few years ago. We have made tremendous progress in so many areas, and we have so much to be thankful for. We should take a moment to appreciate all that we have, and to be grateful for the opportunities that we have been given.

Giving Thanks

I am so grateful for the opportunities that I have been given. I have had the chance to meet so many wonderful people, and to see so many beautiful places. I have learned so much, and I have grown so much as a person. I am so thankful for all of this, and I am so grateful for the chance to be here now.

32 Schools Complete in Debate Meet Here

The Thirtieth annual District Debate Meet was held in Wilmington in May. The debates were held at the University of North Carolina, A&T College and at the First Baptist Church and Central Methodist Church. The tournament covered regional debating and included 32 schools in the state. Each team debated in the affirmative and negative sides of the same topics. The debate meet was presented for the first time in the state and the fourth and third place teams were awarded certificates for their efforts. The first-place team included the quarter-finals finished first in the top three schools.

12 Seniors End Wake Forest Football Careers At FSU

Six Assistants Leave, Feathers Is Retained

In addition to 12 seniors and a head coach, Wake Forest lost three assistants from its coaching staff. "I'm very pleased to announce that Dr. J. C. O'Farrell, professor of German, who has given so much to the University of whom our country is quite proud," said Coach Landrum. "Dr. O'Farrell is retiring from his duties at the end of this term. He has served as a valuable member of the staff for many years, and we are grateful to him for his service.

Twelve were chosen for the All-American team last year, and only one Wake player made the cut. This year, however, the Deacons have five players on the team, and the Coach estimates that he will have a team of around 20 players in the spring.

The services of three offensive linemen will probably be missed most of all. Rick White, right tackle, and Bill Scheib, left tackle, have been accepted at Bowman Gray, while Ivey Smith, left tackle, is a leader in the ACC and has been named All-American twice in a row. White was a star in the defensive line, while Smith was a star in the offensive line.

The offensive line will also be missing its star, Rick White. "Rick was a star in the ACC and has been named All-American twice in a row. He was a great player, and we will miss him greatly," said Coach Landrum.

The 12 graduating seniors have included a large number to replace, especially in the offensive line. "We have a lot of talent on this team," said Coach Landrum. "But it will be tough to replace the guys we lost."

Viewing the Deacs

Thank You, Bill

The inevitable came last week when Bill Tate resigned from his position as head coach of the Wake Forest basketball team. The unexpected resignation capped a five-year re-relationship with the University.

But following the 1964 season, the Deacs' season again were able to reach the .500 level. The 1965 team was the first year the Deacs have had the opportunity to recruit the type of players he believes can win for Wake Forest.

"I hope it will be six years before the Deacs can be considered a real football team," Tate said last year, "but it's a real team. It's a team of hard workers, and we're going to make it a team of winners."
