Salem Hall Closed Until at Least April 6 Because of Discovery of Asbestos

Salem Hall was purchased March 12 after a thorough physical due to asbestos, according to the university. The building is home to the chemistry department and several Japanese professors.

The building, which houses chemistry labs, offices, classrooms and an informal student-professor office, will be closed until at least April 6. Contractors will seal and clean the building to prepare it for possible use later in the school year.

According to university officials, a asbestos survey of Salem Hall was conducted March 8 by Environmental Impact Services Inc. in Herndon, Va.

The survey, which was conducted by a second lab found that the workers became suspicious of a ceiling pipe's wrapping. "Even though we were not trained to do that kind of work, we knew something was wrong," said Moore.

Small began to bend the rules to keep them eligible for competition. "These institutions have a purpose that is deep and far-reaching than what these institutions exist, is ethically unacceptable," he said.

Johnson, Kitchin To Become Coed

Johnson-Rowland Hall will become coed for the fall semester, and Sigman Nu will live in Kitchin House, and Bruce W. Farnsworth, the vice president of research and economic development, said.

These institutions have a purpose that is deep and far-reaching than what these institutions exist, is ethically unacceptable," he said.

The university has been changed because of asbestos by leaving housing programs as is, he said.

The changes in housing patterns are being made to decrease the concentration of freshman men to Kitchin and to decrease the concentration of Greek organization in Primo Floors, Farnsworth said.

Signs by humanity will transfer from 10 spaces in Primo to 26 spaces in Kitchin, he said.

The larger house will move to the larger house, Farnsworth said.

Kitchin will have 55 spaces for freshmen men, 52 for upper-class men and 57 for upper-class women, Farnsworth said. The article said.

Ten Students Spend Vacation Building Houses in Mississippi

By Bill Hunter

Ten students from Oklahoma State University will spend their spring break working with Habitat for Humanity in Coahoma, Miss., to help families improve their living conditions.

The conference will begin on the campus of Mississippi College in the town of Coahoma, Miss., and will conclude with a visit to the Mississippi Delta. The tour will include tours of the Delta and a visit to the Delta Blues Museum.

The students will work with Habitat for Humanity to build houses in Coahoma but only about $1,000 is needed for the building effort. The students will work with the staff of Habitat for Humanity to help families improve their living conditions.

The students will also have the opportunity to tour the Delta and learn about the history and culture of the Mississippi Delta.

The conference will conclude with a visit to the Mississippi Delta, where the students will have the opportunity to learn about the history and culture of the region.

Debate Teams Finish Third in Tournaments

By Eric Willis

Wake Forest’s debate team was seeded at a recent tournament in Florida.

At separate national tournaments last weekend, two Wake Forest de- bates made finished cuts, reaching the semi-final round of competition.

"We had a 7-1 record in the preliminaries and a 2-1 record in the elimination rounds," said Fledderman.

According to assistant coach Gordon Mitchell, Fledderman and Peery's showing was "the best we have been this year in the elimination rounds." Fledderman and Peery were among the top 64 teams that qualified.

The tournament, sponsored by the American Debate Association, was held at George Mason University. Fledderman and Peery placed a record of 6-2 in the preliminary rounds.

This record earned them a win over the eventual tournament winner, George Washington University. According to assistant coach Mitchell, Fledderman and Peery's showing was the highest ever by the debate team in any tournament.

The Wake Forest debate team will be seeded at a national tournament later this month.

Letters to the Editor

Historic Mistakes

A simple statement from Stephen Ambrose brings me to the point this month in Letters to the Editor. Mr. Ambrose states that the United States had to involve itself in the conflict in Korea in 1950.

I must say that I agree with Mr. Ambrose. The United States had to involve itself in the conflict in Korea in 1950. Our military presence there was necessary to ensure the safety and security of the American people.

In fact, I would argue that the United States should have taken a stronger role in the conflict from the very beginning. The Korean War was a critical turning point in the Cold War, and it was essential that we stand firm against the spread of communism.

Mr. Ambrose's statement is further supported by the fact that the United States had previously played a significant role in supporting South Korea. In the early 1950s, the United States had provided significant military and economic aid to South Korea as a way of containing communism in Asia.

In conclusion, Mr. Ambrose is absolutely correct. The United States had to involve itself in the conflict in Korea in 1950, and it was essential that we take a strong stance against the spread of communism.

Extend Change Westward

A great many of the rival Depries have been following the lead of the United States in their recent attempts to extend their influence in China. In this, China has nothing to be ashamed of.

In fact, I would argue that China has a long history of extending its influence in the region. The Chinese have been extending their influence for centuries, and this is nothing new.

China's recent attempts to extend its influence in the region are simply a continuation of this long tradition. In fact, I would argue that China has a right to extend its influence in the region, as long as it does so in a peaceful and non-aggressive manner.

In conclusion, I would like to urge China to continue to extend its influence in the region, as long as it does so in a peaceful and non-aggressive manner. This is nothing new, and it is a right that China has long enjoyed.

Give Proper Respect

As a "native" of the Hawaiian Islands, I must say that I am not impressed with the attitude of some people towards the Native Hawaiians. It is not fair to mistreat the Native Hawaiians just because they are not as rich or powerful as the Asian Americans.

The Native Hawaiians have a long and proud history of their own, and they deserve to be treated with proper respect. It is not fair to judge them based on their ethnicity or background.

In conclusion, I would like to urge everyone to give the Native Hawaiians proper respect. They are a proud and important part of the Hawaiian Islands, and we should all do our part to make sure that they are treated with proper respect.

Tuition Prices Out Students

Edward Dufresne, who built some of the last of the counter-culture Bob’s Big Boy restaurants, was a vivid example of the debate on the cost of higher education.

Colleges' administrative staffs have been pared by 18% since 1980, but the cost per student has increased 6.5% after inflation, Lehigh University's president, John E. Leonard, said last week.

The bottom line: tuition and student debt are reaching new heights - and in some cases, becoming insurmountable.

The competition for students has intensified as schools are forced to compete for students with other schools. This has led to an increase in tuition, which is now reaching unprecedented levels.

The trend is expected to continue as more students enroll in college, pushing up the demand for higher education and driving up tuition costs.

In conclusion, the debate on the cost of higher education is not likely to die down anytime soon, as students and parents continue to grapple with the rising costs of education. And they aren't alone.

Spending Points to Real Priorities

Sometimes I wonder about the priorities of Wake Forest’s administration. When I see that the university wants to spend millions of dollars on a new football stadium, I can't help but ask myself: are they really looking out for the best interests of the students?

There is a growing concern among students and faculty that the administration is more interested in building new facilities than in addressing the needs of its students. This is especially true when it comes to funding for academic programs and student support services.

Moreover, the administration's decisions seem to be driven by a desire to boost the university's reputation and attract more students, rather than focusing on the academic and intellectual development of its current students.

In conclusion, it is time for Wake Forest to realign its priorities and prioritize the needs of its students, rather than spending millions of dollars on new facilities that may not benefit them.

Partisan Battles Threaten To Make Policy-making Hellish in the 1990s

As a political analyst, I must admit that the current state of the nation's political landscape is not exactly conducive to making effective policy decisions.

The current election year, coupled with the ongoing partisan battles in both the House and Senate, has only served to exacerbate the already difficult situation.

It is clear that both political parties are more concerned with winning the next election than actually addressing the problems that need to be solved.

In conclusion, it is time for both parties to put aside their differences and work together to find solutions to the many pressing issues that face our country.

Wake Forest...Home of more than Southern Baptists

Students More Money-minded, But More Active in Religion, Too
By John Keeler

What would you think of your professors? Today’s Wake Forest students are more than likely to rate their professors highly, but they are not necessarily passionate about their faith. This conclusion is based on a recent survey conducted by the School of Religion at Wake Forest.

The survey was administered to a random sample of Wake Forest students and included questions about their religious beliefs, practices, and experiences. The survey revealed that while many students hold strong religious beliefs, they are not always actively engaged in religious activities.

For example, when asked about their religious beliefs, 45% of students stated they believed in God, while 55% did not. When asked about their religious practices, 25% of students reported attending religious services once a week, while 75% reported attending religious services less than once a week.

The survey also revealed that many students are more focused on their financial futures than on their spiritual ones. While 60% of students reported that they were interested in religious matters, only 20% reported that they were interested in community service.

Despite these findings, the survey also revealed that many students are actively engaged in religious activities. For example, 30% of students reported that they were involved in religious clubs, while 20% reported that they were involved in religious organizations.

In conclusion, while many students hold strong religious beliefs, they are not always actively engaged in religious activities. However, the survey also revealed that many students are actively engaged in religious activities and are interested in community service.

CHARLOTTE - It was an Atlanta Civic Center Tournament to remember. The Fighting Deacons, who have been known to "play" hard when the occasion demands, made a quick exit with the state of North Carolina cleared March 11 in the First Round. The Tigers went on to claim the ACC title.

The Tiger win was expected, having defeated the Deacons in the regular season conference game, 79-70. The Tigers were led by 16 points each from Qatar and Young in double figures. Young also had four players in the game in double figures, including Young who had 21 points, 12 rebounds and 10 assists.

The Tigers led 18-11 with 10:58 to go when the Deacons took the lead 28-26 with 7:28 left. The Deacons led 33-32 with 1:50 left, but the Tigers went on to take the lead 79-70 with 7:04 left.

The Tigers led 70-67 with 4:32 left, but the Deacons scored 11 straight points to take the lead 78-70 with 2:22 left. The Tigers led 70-67 with 4:32 left, but the Deacons scored 11 straight points to take the lead 78-70 with 2:22 left.

Women's Golf Team Takes 7th Spot

By Paul Madland

On Monday, April 16, the Wake Forest women's golf team started a two-day trip to the ACC Championship, held at the Country Club of Virginia in Lynchburg, Virginia.

The Deacon women won the second round of the ACC Championship with a score of 237 over the three rounds for a total of 917, which placed them in seventh place. It was the second straight year that the Deacon women won the second round of the ACC Championship, after placing seventh the year before. The Deacon men placed 11th with a score of 938.

The Deacon women were led by Karlie Sullins, who was the medalist with a score of 219, which was six strokes below par. She was the only Deacon woman to make the cut for the second round.

The Deacon men were led by Eliot Fields, who was the medalist with a score of 224, which was two strokes below par. He was also the only Deacon man to make the cut for the second round.

Women's Tennis Team Falls to Duke

By Paul Madland

The Wake Forest women's tennis team lost to Duke on Monday, April 16, at the Wake Forest Tennis Complex.

The Blue Devils won the first doubles match, and then took the first two singles matches. The Deacons then won the last three singles matches, but fell short in the doubles matches.

The Deacons were led by Patrick Cole, who won the first singles match, and then won the doubles match with partner John K. Davis. The Deacons were also led by Emily Cavanagh, who won the third singles match, and then won the doubles match with partner Maya Shukla.

Louisiana State, Penn State, South Carolina, West Virginia, Georgia, and other ACC teams would make up the schedule. It was a 3-3 tie after deciding the day's play.

Richie Ashmeade of Holy Cross High School, St. Francis (Pa.) High School and Montross, voted a first team All-Metropolitan basketball performer.

Clemson completed its home schedule against Florida State in the nightcap, winning in nine innings for an 8-7 lead up to 11-9, but the streaking Demon Deacons salvaged a split of the double-header with a 7-5 win.

With the addition of Montross, North Carolina now has four runners that will be participating in the McDonald's All-American game, which is composed of the top 20 high school seniors in the county.

The Demon Deacons are now 4-11 and 3-24 in the ACC.

October's Fast Pace Diminishes Intensity

By Stephen Dillenburg

With all the high-octane films that hit the screens last month, it is not surprising that the audience had a hard time distinguishing one from the other. The difficulty in picking out a film to watch is further compounded by the fact that most of the films are released in a very short span of time. However, for those who read the novel of the same name by Tom Clancy, the movie is as exciting as the book.

As action films go, the long-awaited The Hunt for Red October is better than expected. The film is not a typical espionage thriller, as it features an unexpected turn of events. When the Soviet submarine Red October is captured by the United States, Captain Ramius, the commanding officer, decides to defect to the United States. The movie is a real thriller, with Captain Ramius and his crew fighting to survive in the United States. The audience is on the edge of their seats, anticipating the outcome of the conflict.

Films like The Hunt for Red October are a welcome change from the typical action films that are released every month. They offer a fresh perspective on the genre, and their success is a testament to the talent of the filmmakers.

For those who read the novel of the same name by Tom Clancy, The Hunt for Red October is a thrilling experience. The film is as intense as the book, with the audience on the edge of their seats, awaiting the next turn of events.

The movie is a true delight for fans of the novel, and it is a great addition to the list of films released this month. It is a must-see for anyone who enjoys a good action thriller.
Paintings Enrich Writing Center

By Molly Sleburg

The Writing Center, located in the basement of Sara Hall's C wing, now provides a place for students to discuss their problems as well as improve their writing abilities. Each Tuesday, the center's director, said, "The art work makes the Writing Center more inviting and professional. It helps make it more of a student place." Many students, including art major, by.unonymous. Art 112 students agreed that this added to the center.

Elizabeth Wilson, a senior history major, organized the exhibit, arranging it to be the featured and hang in the center. "Hopefully, this will be something that will continue in the Writing Center because it gives custom a chance to see paintings. It makes a whole lot more than a sheet of paper." Eleven students from Page Laughlin's Art 112 project worked on 13 paintings for the exhibition. The participating students include Elizabeth Wilson, Chris Jenkins, Elizabeth Bilyeu, Chris Jenkins, and Block Laughlin's class. The paintings were originally part of the students' final project in Laughlin's class.

Students were asked to focus on the theme of changes, and they were given the opportunity to create paintings that relate to this theme. The paintings were originally part of the students' final project in Laughlin's class.

Although the paintings were created by students, an interesting exhibit that will work well together as an exhibit. "Park said.
