Wafe Forest Faculty Approves Resolution Which May Direct Immediate Desegregation

In a historic meeting last Monday, the Wake Forest faculty passed a resolution that may lead to the immediate desegregation of the College. The vote was prompted by the report of a faculty committee that had been investigating the problems of integration, and by the efforts of students and faculty to encourage desegregation of the College.

The final decision on College policy now stands with each college of trustees, which does not meet again until April. However, the faculty's action does not preclude the possibility of the actions of the faculty will have a direct impact on the College.

A statement reading with Bill.Still, director of admissions at the College, remarked: "It is an important step to be taken."

Dr. John C. Butts, faculty secretary, also commented: "This decision is a significant step forward." The decision was reached by the faculty after a long discussion of the problems.

Thus, the faculty has taken an important step towards the desegregation of the College. It is a step that many have been calling for, and it is a step that will be watched closely by the entire nation.

Spanish Guitarist To Appear In Concert Lecture Program

Andrew Segovia, hailed as the world's greatest classical guitarist by a majority of music critics, will perform Wednesday evening at Wake Forest College's Lecture Series, according to Dr. J. W. Davis, professor of music.

Segovia began his career as a Spanish guitarist with no instrument available for him and his career developed from the back row, to become a world-famous musician. His major triumphs include such noted works as "The Guitarist," "The Guitarist's Dream," and "The Guitarist's Lament." His admirers regard the art of the guitar as a "living" art form, and have compared it in value with the art of music, painting, literature, and sculpture.

Segovia's lecture program will be divided into two parts. The first part will feature a talk by the artist, and will be followed by a demonstration of the guitar. The second part will consist of a performance by Segovia, which will be accompanied by members of the Wake Forest College orchestra.

College Art Curator Outlines Art Program; Cites Lack Of Room

By LYNNE SMITHERS' ・Arkansas Democrat

Prof. A. L. Aycock, associate professor of English and Dramatics at Wake Forest College, spoke about the varied phases of the art exhibits that will be featured in the College's new art galleries during the fall term. Aycock is the curator of the College's art program.

In the course of his talk about the art exhibits, Aycock reviewed the College's art program and pointed out that it was not the purpose of the art program to substitute for the library, but to serve the students of the College by providing them with an opportunity to see and study art.

The College has a slide library of over 5,000 slides, and Aycock mentioned that the College also has a fine collection of art books.

The College's art program includes a course in the history of art, and Aycock mentioned that the course is being taught by a professor from Harvard.

The College's art program also includes a course in the history of architecture, and Aycock mentioned that the course is being taught by a professor from Yale.

The College's art program also includes a course in the history of music, and Aycock mentioned that the course is being taught by a professor from the University of Chicago.

The College's art program also includes a course in the history of literature, and Aycock mentioned that the course is being taught by a professor from the University of California.

The College's art program also includes a course in the history of painting, and Aycock mentioned that the course is being taught by a professor from the University of Texas.

The College's art program also includes a course in the history of sculpture, and Aycock mentioned that the course is being taught by a professor from the University of Michigan.

The College's art program also includes a course in the history of photography, and Aycock mentioned that the course is being taught by a professor from the University of Illinois.

The African student, involved in the Negroes' decision to protest against the environment in which they were living, wasClyde Johnson, a member of the Student's Branch of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

The Negroes have been trying to get local segregation in housing and employment for over a year. In the wake of recent activity, the Negroes have decided to direct integration through education.

The group has been active in a series of activities and meetings, including the following:

1. A series of meetings with local officials and community leaders, aimed at educating them about the need for integration.
2. A series of workshops and training sessions for community volunteers, aimed at preparing them to participate in the integration movement.
3. A series of public forums and debates, aimed at raising awareness and stimulating discussion about the issue of integration.
4. A series of community organizing efforts, aimed at building support for the integration movement and promoting active participation.

The group has also been active in fundraising, organizing a series of events and activities to raise money for their efforts. These include:

1. A series of benefit concerts and performances, aimed at raising money for the integration movement.
2. A series of fundraising drives and campaigns, aimed at recruiting volunteers and raising money through donations.
3. A series of community service projects, aimed at demonstrating the group's commitment to the cause of integration.

The group has been working closely with local officials and community leaders, and has been actively involved in a series of negotiations and discussions, aimed at finding a way to achieve their goals.

In conclusion, the Negroes have been actively working to direct integration through education, and have been making significant progress in their efforts. They continue to work tirelessly to achieve their goals, and are committed to making a difference in their community.

Religion-In-Life Week Evaluated by McRee

Byзначительно Skatresky

Religion-In-Life Week has ended, and during its last day a spirited discussion took place over the course of the week. The week was marked by a strong emphasis on issues of social justice, with a particular focus on the role of religion in addressing these issues.

The week began with a series of lectures and discussions on topics such as poverty, capitalism, and the role of religion in society. These lectures were followed by a series of workshops and seminars, where students were invited to participate in a more active role, discussing and debating these issues with one another.

The week also included a series of prayer services, with a special focus on the role of religion in promoting social justice. These services were attended by a large number of students, and were characterized by a strong sense of community and solidarity.

The week ended with a series of reflection sessions, where students were invited to reflect on the week's activities and to consider the role of religion in their own lives. These sessions were characterized by a sense of introspection and self-reflection.

Overall, Religion-In-Life Week was a success, with many students expressing a newfound interest in the role of religion in social justice. The week's activities have been well-received, and the organizers are already planning for next year's event.

Coeds Report On Publicity Received While At Barnard

By Lynne Skatresky

The Barnard College Daily, the student newspaper, has reported on the publicity received by the Barnard College students during their spring break trip to Europe. The students, who were part of a large group of students from various colleges, were the focus of much attention during their trip.

According to the Daily, the students were interviewed by a number of journalists and were featured in a variety of publications. The students were also invited to participate in a number of events, including a press conference and a tour of the Eiffel Tower.

The Daily reported that the students were well-prepared for their trip, and that they were able to make the most of their time in Europe. The students were also praised for their enthusiasm and their willingness to share their experiences with others.

The students returned to the United States with a new appreciation for the cultural diversity of Europe, and they hope to return again in the future.

Intriguing World-Susie's World

BY DICK SMITH

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

AT THE CINEMA

Beginning Feb 14 the WINSFORD Theatre (located in exciting downtown Winsted-Salem) will have the surest version of Susie's World (which is a reading of the story of Susie's World). The American artist, portrayed by William Hoffman, is a split personality and a jilted man who returns to the scene of his former world. The realistic and emotional aspects of the story are well done, but the emotional and dramatic elements are too strong. The overall effect is that of a man who is trying to adapt himself to the new world. The acting is good, but the story is too complex and the dialogues are too long. The film is too slow and the story is too confusing.

Deacs Avenge Duke, 103-89; Chappell Sparks Win With 38

Lately there has been in some quarters not just a little speculation concerning the way the teams are going to be paired up for the ACC basketball tournament March 30th, 31st, and 1st with Carolina having declared itself available. The speculation is of course based on a difficulty that has already cropped up and is a little speculative of its own.

A Bye To Either Wake Or Duke

With just 7 teams competing in the tournament, the Conference leaders after the regular season's play either Wake or Duke will be awarded a first round bye, from a number of viewpoints a tremendous advantage, for that team will only have to play two games as against three for the rest of the clubs. The club which gets the bye will be bracketed with third place club, in all probability State, and the club which eliminates it, if this writer's reckoning, the latter should be South Carolina. This is of course figuring the standings on the basis of 2 points to the club of the seven eligible teams in the Conference.

In the bottom half of the draw, the pairings should be

North Carolina-

The Power of Public Opinion

The power of public opinion is sometimes terrifying. Wake fans haven't been making too much action at least, co-captain Jerry Stith Case's crew will be doubly tough.
