Campus alcohol policy experiences changes

By Noél Rabonne

OM Editor at Large

Friday marks the first day of registered parties on campus and with it, there have been a lot of Student activities and events.

Although the policy may seem like a departure from previous guidelines, it is a necessary reenforcement of the rules that have existed for years at the university, said Paul Barnes, the associate dean of Residence Life and Housing.

"In the past, things have been a bit of a hodgepodge, but now there will be a more consistent focus," he said.

In the normal procedural policy making, Greek procedures and social events received social hour licensing training areas and a service on intervention strategies. "Procedural policy making was the norm, but we feel it is different things to give support to the running of the BYOB policy," Barnes said.

"We really want to make sure that everyone's behavior is consistent and consistent, and that people both inside and outside the university cannot be prevented from participating.

"In the long run, it would be a more effective system because a given group may expect to run the function as it should be run," he said.

Students in their role of campus consu- mers often notice the pricing of different items and sometimes question the cost structure of some items. One exception to this perception is found at the Sundry Shop, but some students question the price of the campus convenience store.

"Recently my roommate came back from campus and said that it was surprising to see how much more expensive things were in the store," student Diego Rodriguez said. "We really expected it to be less.

Campus prices differ greatly with off-campus grocery stores such as Lowe’s. While a student might pay $1.79 for a six-pack of Pepsi cans, the same product is available for 65 cents at the Sundry Shop.

Two years remaining before it opens for classes, the divinity school led by Bill Leonard, the dean of the divinity school, is gearing up to recruit students and faculty and to begin to plan its Diversity Program.

Although divinity schools across the country are fairly similar, the faculty, students and the nature of the university will give the program here some unique drawing cards, Leonard said.

Even though the process of lining faculty will not start for another year, Leonard has already set goals for the five-to-six member committee, which he says will have a strong spiritual foundation.

For instance, Leonard would like to have a Roman Catholic despite. Such an unusual choice might be surprising at a divinity school that is part of a formerly Baptist university. However, according to Leonard, "The Baptist tradition is one that does not translate.

He also hopes to have new faculty members (a more than the 15 already on staff), Leonard plans to only appoint in-year appointments, but in two years may add more faculty, as is done at other universities, Leonard said.

"We're in a position to hire new faculty because we've already received several grants including $130,000 from the Campus Friends," Leonard said.

The process of hiring students is still ongoing, and Leonard said the process will involve an initial screening of students, followed by an on-campus interview, which he said will be in late April.

"We've received extensive feedback from students and individual scholars who have come to visit. Congregations have also discussed some money. Although the school has also received several grants, including $130,000 from the Campus Friends," Leonard added.

Parking spaces remain a problem

The number of additional spaces that will be provided by the new Polo Residence Hall has not yet been determined.

Furthermore, problems may arise for faculty and staff who use the College and Colliery halls, which is being used for construction purposes. According to the university, "Actual construction will not take place until February, but the foundation will be started shorty," Lawson said.

"Currently, all of the lots are full, and there is no place to park in the lot. Also, it would not be fair to other students to park in the lot," Barnes said.

Regarding the enforcement of policy guidelines, however, Barnes said, "I don't see any real problems that come into play this year. We expect to shut down any place that is causing trouble."

"I think that this year's policy is going to help the people. I have not heard any reports of any problems," Barnes said.

Barnes said that a number of students have been working with the university Police to keep the lot clean and the students happy.

"We are going to have a lot of effort put into this," Barnes said. "We have already changed some of the policy guidelines, and we expect to have a lot of success this year."

Diane’s driver more intoxicated than was previously reported

PARKS — Reports from the French newspaper Le Monde and Fox News stated of former Princess Diana, Paul may have been higher than previously reported. Paul was the driver of the limousine which crashed Sunday, killing Paul, Princess of Wales, and her boyfriend, Dodi Fayed.

Police are still waiting for Diana’s bodyguard, the only person in the car to survive the crash, to recover enough to interview about the events of that night.

Postal employee shoots two women, including his ex-girlfriend

MAIL BEACH — Two women are in the hospital Tuesday after being shot by a postal worker.

Police say that Jesus Antonio Tamayo entered a Miami Beach post office Tuesday afternoon and shot his wife and her friend one time each in the upper torso.

Tamayo then left the building before taking his life. Manuela Acosta (Tamayo’s ex-wife) and Mirna Mendoza are both listed in critical condition at Jackson Memorial Hospital.

No other people were injured. Nearly forty people have been interviewed as post office in the past decade.

Option to consolidate student loans temporarily suspended

WASHINGTON — The Department of Education has temporarily halted consolidating student loans.

This move is prompted by a large back load of applications with which Electronic Data Systems, the government contractor handling the requests, cannot cope.

This means that, for the moment, college students can not combine all of their loans into one. Combining all of one’s loans not only makes it simpler to pay back, but also makes it easier and more flexible to refinance.

We’ve explored and exhausted many leads and will continue to follow up on new information,” Lawson said.

Lawson wanted to remind all students to constantly be aware of their surroundings and to remain alert.

He also reminded students the importance of not drinking alone or while walking alone at night and using good judgment when mixing alcohol and social situations.

“Every student has the right to be treated with respect and the right to live without fear,” Lawson said.

“Here we are in the heart of the state university city and we need to be able to enjoy the environment without fear,” Lawson said.

New alcohol policy endangers students

Since the responsibility of party hosting lies in the hands of the Office of Student Conduct and Office of Residential Life and Housing, the student alcohol policy is something that can and will be rearranged that will significantly affect students in the future.

In this column, we will discuss a recent resolution that was passed by our student body, involving the new alcohol policy. As the title suggests, we are concerned with the implications this policy has on the safety of our classmates.

To understand the new policy, we must first understand the old one. To be clear, the old policy involved a much greater usage of alcohol on campus, with kegs that contained up to 20 gallons of beer being allowed. Under this system, the Greek functions were allowed to have kegs regardless of other restrictions.

Under the new policy, the Greek functions are allowed kegs as long as they are outside, the keg is properly accounted for, and the keg is kept on the property of the Greek organization. This is not a large change, but it is a significant one.

Other than the Greek functions, the new policy only changes the rules of possession of alcohol. Under the old policy, alcohol was considered to be a controlled substance, and only those under the age of 21 were allowed to possess it. Under the new policy, alcohol is considered to be a non-controlled substance, and anyone under the age of 21 is allowed to possess it.

The new policy was passed with a vote of 680 to 220, which is a significant change from the old policy, which was passed with a vote of 450 to 300.

The new policy was passed with the support of the administration, who claimed that it was a necessary step to reduce the amount of alcohol on campus. However, we are concerned with the implications this policy has on the safety of our classmates.

Under the old policy, there were no restrictions on the use of alcohol. Under the new policy, there are restrictions, but they are not as strict as the old policy.

The new policy does not restrict the amount of alcohol that can be possessed, nor does it restrict the amount of alcohol that can be sold. The only restriction is that alcohol must be consumed in an outdoor area.

We are concerned with this policy because it is not a solution to the problem of alcohol on campus. The new policy only changes the rules of possession of alcohol, but it does not address the root cause of the problem, which is the consumption of alcohol.

We are concerned with the implications this policy has on the safety of our classmates. Under the old policy, alcohol was consumed in a safe and responsible manner. Under the new policy, alcohol is consumed in a manner that is not safe or responsible.

Men’s golf welcomes Jerry Haas as new head coach

Former Wake Forest All-American Jerry Haas has been named the new men’s golf coach.

"I’m very excited about the opportunity to return to Wake Forest as a golf coach," said Haas. "I love the university and the atmosphere that exists here academically and athletically.

Haas was a three-time All-American for the Deacons as a sophomore in 1983, and named second-team All-American honors prior to graduating in 1985. He was selected to the ACC Academic Squad two times and represented the United States on the 1985 Walker Cup team.

Haas replaces Jack Lowen, who resigned last month in order to pursue a playing career on the PGA Senior Tour.

Football team selects this season’s team captains

Four seniors have been elected team co-captains by the football team. Wide receiver Brian Doak, outside linebacker Chris Cardullo, and defensive back Tom Gargiulo were nominated by their peers and subsequently voted on by senior football players.

The seniors elected to be Wake Forest’s 1997 Football Team Co-Captains are:

- Brian Doak, Wide Receiver
- Chris Cardullo, Outside Linebacker
- Tom Gargiulo, Defensive Back

The men’s golf team has selected three student-athletes and is the Pre-season Mastercard College Golf Rankings according to the College Golf Foundation.

Deacons upset 14th ranked 49ers

The Wake Forest men’s soccer team demonstrated their tenacity Tuesday night by going on the offensive against St. Louis University.

The Deacons out-shot the Billikings 14-1 in the first half and 23-7 in regulation. The Deacons were able to keep the Billikings at bay throughout the second period when they earned two yellow cards in quick succession. In the last fifteen minutes the Billikings defense finally closed in on the ball.

The only chance which UNC-Asheville had in the second half came at the 23 minute mark when the goalie, Croan, let the ball away from him momentarily before passing on it.

The Deacons dominated in the second half and earned a rebound of a St. Louis shot in time for the goal of the game in the last five minutes before closing. The last second two Deacons shots deflected off of the Billikings goalie.

Deacons win ACC Preview Festival doubleheader

Deacons' 6-0 win over UNC-Asheville Saturday at Salem Stadium was their first game since their last 1-0 victory over the 14th ranked 49ers.

"We played very well against UNC-Asheville," said Vidovich but he then added, "It was a little hit some rough spots... The team had the chance to take the lead in the game, but it was our fault that we didn't get it done."

The team had the chance to take the lead on four occasions in the first half, but the Demon Deacon defense did not please Head Coach Shovitz.

"Our team didn't play the way we wanted to," said Shovitz.

The win completed the Demon Deacon's regular season schedule. The Demon Deacon's season record is now 9-7-1 and they are 3-1 in the ACC and 6-6-1 overall.

Field hockey loses opener, 6-0

By Greg Wilson

The field hockey team started the season off with a 6-0 loss at the hands of Robert Morris University. The Demon Deacons were looking for some momentum at the beginning of the season.

"It was a little bit of a surprise," said Marshall. "We didn’t get the ball into the back of the net."

The team had a busy off-season, attempting to improve upon their 1996 season which saw two assistant coaches added to the staff and four players added to the team.

Amy Robertson was hired away from the U.S. National Team to continue coaching the Demon Deacon’s women’s field hockey team.

"Anytime you lose a player of Robertson’s caliber, it’s a big void to fill," said Marshall. "But when you have someone like this, you just have to try and fill it as best as you can, just like all the other seasons."

The team’s goal this season is to return to the NCAA Tournament. The Demon Deacons were selected third in the ACC Preseason poll.

The four recruits fill voids left by graduation of three of the Demon Deac’s top performers. Two Deacons named ACC Players of the Week.

- Oscar Sanchez, Midfielder
- D’Angelo Drummond, Defender

"Our team didn’t play the way we wanted to," said Shovitz.

"We're looking to prove our- selves," said Marshall.

The only chance which UNC-Asheville had in the second half came at the 23 minute mark when the goalie, Croan, let the ball away from him momentarily before passing on it.

The Deacons dominated in the second half and earned a rebound of a St. Louis shot in time for the goal of the game in the last five minutes before closing. The last second two Deacons shots deflected off of the Billikings goalie.

The Deacons upset 14th ranked 49ers.

By Matt Harrington

Golden and Black Reviewer

With a newly released album and a role for the television show "Against the Stars," the Dambudamos are riding a high wave of success.

The band, consisting ofרשא-רשא, ルー・ンセ, and Batman, has been making waves in the music industry for some time, and their latest album "The Carnival" has earned them critical acclaim.

"The Carnival" features a mix of genres, including hip hop, reggae, and soul, and it has been praised for its catchy hooks and thought-provoking lyrics.

"I think the band's success is due to their ability to blend different genres and create something unique," says a music critic for the Golden and Black Reviewer. "They have a great sense of rhythm and timing, and their live performances are always a treat."

Roll with the New

With the MTV movie awards tonight, the "Dead Presidents" and "Lil' Tune-Yardz" Chris Rock has been hot commodity in the club scene, and his new stand-up show being almost a year ago. Chris Rock has been a hot commodity in the urban entertainment industry. Director Doug Liman takes all of this in stride, but finally found one at a low profile record store.
