Winter-Salem suffers its second winter storm in a many months as two to three inches of sleet and snow fell on the city. However, the weather was seen back to normal in the forecast by yesterday afternoon.

Four Top Officials Cancel Tuesday Classes

By SCOTT PRETORIUS

President Edwin G. Wilson said that four members of the executive council "get together Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and surveyed the weather conditions" before deciding to cancel classes for that day.

John Anderson, vice-president for administration and planning; Leon H. Corbett, vice-president for legal affairs; John Willie, vice-president and treasurer; and Personenisa Moore, said that the decision was influenced by Wilson’s recommendation. William B. Thomas, Jr. was in Atlanta Monday.

Moore said that members of staff and students could safely make it to campus. However, he said, media generally do not carry conventions and cancellations, and the students would be a good idea to go on ahead and make that decision in council," Wilson said.

"We felt that there was a degree of danger in," Wilson said. "We were consulted easily by the fear of ice coming down on campus, and there would be no time to be for that to do that.

We understand that the decision to cancel classes "probably was to" done by the administration in order to protect ourselves and employees of the university, Moore said. "There were many opinions to the weather forecast of missing them for a day of classes.

The Zione Images Speech Competition took place on Feb. 2, a program certified by "Forensics to Freedom: A Documentary in Race, Power, and Poetry," which told the story of the black man in America. Beginning with slavery and continuing through the abolishment period, the Harlem Renaissance, during the word of April 13. The convocation will open with a program created by students and staff members. All groups will take part in the convocation, including the Wake Forest community, the department of religious studies, and the Wake Forest community.

The convocation will be held on the main campus of Wake Forest University, located in Winston-Salem, North Carolina. The event will feature a keynote address by Dr. James Washington, the dean of the College of the Arts and Sciences at Wake Forest University. The keynote address will be followed by a panel discussion featuring faculty members from the departments of English, History, and Political Science.

The convocation will also feature a performance by the Wake Forest University Chorale, under the direction of Dr. Robert Jump. The Chorale will perform a selection of works from a variety of genres, including classical, contemporary, and African American. The performance will be followed by a time of reflection and prayer, led by the Rev. Vicki Tamer, Associate Pastor of the Wake Forest United Methodist Church.

The convocation is free and open to the public. All are welcome to attend and to participate in the conversation that will follow the performance. The convocation is sponsored by the Department of Religious Studies and the College of the Arts and Sciences at Wake Forest University.

Wake Forest's campus is located in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, just a short drive from the city of Raleigh. The campus is home to over 5,000 students and offers a variety of academic programs in the fields of arts, sciences, business, and law. The campus is known for its beautiful surroundings, including the Wabash River that flows through the campus. The campus is also home to a variety of activities and events, including sporting events, concerts, and cultural events.

For more information about the convocation, please visit the website of the Department of Religious Studies at Wake Forest University. You can also contact the Department of Religious Studies by phone at 336-758-7248 or by email at religiousstudies@wfu.edu.

Please join us for this special event! We look forward to seeing you there.
Maine, McCaffrey Win Teaching Award

By ELIZABETH MONTOR on Page -

Thomas E. Mullen, dean of the college, presented the Heflin-DeGraff prize for excellence in teaching to co-winners Barry Maine and Susan McCaffrey at the Annual Faculty Convocation on Feb. 8. Mullen said, "The award is given to a faculty member who has the characteristics of each department is entitled to nominate one can- didate for the award. The candidates are selected by secret ballot. The winner is the candidate who receives the greatest number of votes. The award is designed to honor the teaching excellence of individual faculty members."

Barry Maine is a professor of English. He has been teaching at the University of Maine for 25 years. He has written several books and articles on contemporary American literature. He has received numerous awards for his teaching. In 2000, he was named the "Outstanding Professor of the Year" by the University of Maine Alumni Association.

Leadership Upheld

It is apparent that Jeff Riddell, in his editorials this past semester, did not have the nicest ideas about leadership and the leadership role. He is an opinionated editor on board and he is always ready to debate with anyone who has a different opinion or viewpoint. Riddell has always been a vocal proponent of the "black student protest" and he has been very critical of the administration and its policies.

My father, a former ROTC cadet and now an active member of the Black Student Union (BSU), was a frequent contributor to Wake Forest. I have, therefore, been able to observe the leadership and student life. My experiences at college, coupled with my own knowledge of leadership and politics, have provided me with a unique perspective on these issues.

From freshman experiences, I can see that there is no reservation that the Army is the most critical of these actions. If it

Social Laws Exaggerated

I was happy to read that Brian Austin and his friends were planning to open a store in downtown Winston-Salem. I think that the campus drinking problem that has been at the forefront of our minds should be taken seriously.

Obviously the de facto drinking spread from a few isolated incidents to become a major problem on campus. The problem is that there will be fewer people at tailgates than there were at the beginning of the year. And as long as we are unchallenged by the drinking policy, it will be a matter of a few years before we see a return to normal.

I have seen that there are a number of people who are concerned about the drinking problem. I believe that the university administration should take this problem seriously and not only the students.

Forage:

Social and political organizations on campus are often criticized for their lack of diversity. However, I think that the university administration should take this problem seriously and not only the students. The university administration should look into the reasons behind the drinking policies and consider making changes to improve the situation.

Amerika: My Kountry 'Tis Of Thee...

I just received a call from C.J. Nigelt, a friend of mine in Hollywood, who got me a new role in a new TV series. He said it was a good opportunity for me, and that the producer's last name is a C.A.P.

"No—Newspaper Political Party. Administrators have been known to pounce into an oppositional photo identification system.

"Sounds like the Inquisition."

"No. What about it?"

"Did you lose your job?"

"No, I just received a call from the administrators, who sent the school's religious beliefs to the police by the mistreatment of its members.

"That must be due to the system—no explanation was given, and that's a mistake."

"This has to be an extreme we-can't call it the first time."

"No, it's something different."

"I know, but the point is they have been forced to the police by the mistreatment of its members.

"Through the tyranny of the secular police, the police has ordered the dissolution of the university."

"And what will they do?"

"The first party."

"What?"

"The uterus!

"What?"

"This man, who has a lot of last minute editing to do."

"Well, Cary, you can't see."

"Is there anything you can do?"

"Of course. We're going to have a meeting on campus.

"I see."

"What?"

"Our films enter the public forum."

"The Vietnamese film industry faces various challenges due to the problem of continuous developments. If we can run the film, we can control the effect of the '20,000 leagues under the sea', we can cut out the whole regal in the same sense that we call them the 'right.'

"Why did you do it?"

"We had a lot of last minute editing to do. It was just routine work for a manufacturer."

"What was it?"

"Taking out all the exciting parts. We also had to work out the bugs of the sexual behavior, which we eventually cut. Another big waste.

"Since you have an enemy for history, politics, and the arts."

"This is Steve LeHane, a political major, who has a lot of last minute editing to do."

"He seems to be good."

"They seem to be good friends."

"The thought of the Soviets occupying our country."

"It's a big waste."

"I think the film actually was going to be released as 'Kollege Wood and Black', and it's going to be a hit."

"I think this is it."

"The man who was running."

The Empire Strikes Out

The TV series I have been working on is currently in production. Recently the series gave me the opportunity to work with an interesting cast.

"What?"

"I don't know, but it's interesting."

"That's not the sort of work."

"It's not the sort of work."

Rebels Force Queen to Take a Look At Human Nature

By GARLAND KIMMER

The University Theatre opened the spring semester with a broad-based production of "Queen of the Desert," which was written by Upa Betti. The play was one of the most imaginative productions to have come to the Theatre in the past few years. The audience was taken on a trip into the mountains near the border of a neighboring nation. As the actors opened dialogue, the play zipped past like the wind of the open prairie that the desert is known for.

Old Gold and Black

By GARLAND KIMMER

While the audience was enjoying the show, the actors were a bit hard to understand. The entire action, or rather the actions of the characters seem to indicate that period of time was a bit too much for the audience. Program Improves Cardiac Patients’ Lives

By HARRETT CHAMPAN

Nearly 200 people are currently enrolled in Wake Forest University’s cardiac rehabilitation program, according to program director, Paul M. Ribisl. The cardiac rehabilitation program is designed specifically to help patients recover from heart attack, surgery or other cardiac conditions. The program includes instruction from dietitians and physiologists, and a cardiovascular work program with encouragement from the medical staff.

The multi-institution program was established in July 1977, as a joint effort of the Department of Medicine at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine, Wake Forest University’s department of health and sport science, the North Carolina affiliate of the American Heart Association and local physicians.

Assistant Dr. Harry S. Muller, professor of medicine at Bowman Gray, co-ordinated the program. He called the program as innovative and expansion great obtained from the Division of Integrated Rehabilitation Services, Wake Forest University.

The program addresses four areas of health: dietary, exercise, stress management, and teaching behavior. During the opening phases of the program staff members perform laboratory, mental, psychological and vocational status evaluations on each patient. Following this, Ribisl said, there is a team working on each patient to make sure that patients are able to self-administer the care that has been taught.

The regional tournament will be on August 5 in the national capital in Richmond, Virginia. The program will begin in the fall for the patients who have been taught, for people who can go home and for those who cannot return to the hospital.

The regional tournament is sponsored by Wake Forest University.

Deacon Women Upset N.C. State to End Streak

By BOBBY ROBERTS

Wake Forest upset 12th-ranked North Carolina State 69-59 Wednesday night, breaking an 11-game losing streak and recording its first win over the Wolfpack since 1969.

The victory was especially sweet for coach Bobbie Beecham, who was named Interim Head Coach when women's basketball coach JoAnn Smith died of cancer in February.

"It means so much to us," Beecham said. "We've tried to stay focused on getting better every day and this is a big win for us.

The Deacons were led by freshman Lisa Carter, who scored a career-high 27 points and added 11 rebounds, and Good, who scored 13 points and added four assists. Stewart and Allee Nuss each contributed 11 points and Stewart also pulled down nine rebounds.

"Our philosophy is simple," Beecham said. "We believe in playing defense and rebounding.

The Deacons forced 18 turnovers and the Wolfpack shot just 22 percent from the field.

"We've had some tough losses," Beecham said. "But we've been consistent in our effort to get better every day.

The Deacons started the game with a 5-0 lead but the Wolfpack quickly tied it. The Deacons responded with a 7-2 run to go ahead 12-7.

"We were focused on playing defense and rebounding," Beecham said. "We knew we had to get some easy baskets and we did.

The Deacons led by 12 points at one point in the first half but the Wolfpack refused to quit.

"We always have a chance to win in this conference," Beecham said. "But we have to work hard every day.

The Deacons will now focus on getting ready for their next game.

"We have a tough road ahead of us," Beecham said. "But we're excited for the challenge.

The Deacons travel to Virginia Saturday for their next game.

"We'll have to play well on defense and rebound," Beecham said. "But we're confident we can win."
