Rise of Moral Majority prompts fears, questions

Buddie Bevel and Tom Southers

The Moral Majority, a social conservative and political movement that emerged in the United States in the late 1970s, has faced significant opposition and scrutiny. Its influence and impact have been a subject of debate among social and political analysts, as it continues to shape discussions on morality and politics in contemporary society.

Administration awaits fraternity plans

Sarah John

The future of off-campus parties lies in the hands of the near future. After Friday's student Senate meeting, the student body is left to wonder what will happen on Mudweek. Much remains to be discussed as to whether mudweek will continue or not. Mudweek was a weekly tradition for students at Wake Forest University. It provided an opportunity for students to engage in mud-related activities and festivities, often culminating in a mud day.

Midweek party future unresolved

Ryan Bray

The future of off-campus parties lies in the hands of the near future. After Friday's student Senate meeting, the student body is left to wonder what will happen on Mudweek. Much remains to be discussed as to whether mudweek will continue or not. Mudweek was a weekly tradition for students at Wake Forest University. It provided an opportunity for students to engage in mud-related activities and festivities, often culminating in a mud day.

College Bowl All-Stars look to national tourney

Martha Robinson

Even though the WF football team failed to capture a bowl bid last season, the university's hopes for a national tourney this season are far from dead.

The team was three successive matchups in December right to the regional tournament in Charlotte last weekend. The regional tournament is scheduled for February.

The all-star team included captain Victor Hastings, a senior on the APO Flying Wings and APO Student captain; junior on the WF football team; and college captain; senior on the WF football team; and college captain.

PIRG shops around for the best bargains

Nathan Dwyer

The Western Political Research Group (PIRG) has conducted a comparative study of local fraternities and sororities in the area. The study was conducted to determine which fraternities and sororities provide the best value for students in terms of the services they offer.

Midweek party future unresolved

Ryan Bray

The future of off-campus parties lies in the hands of the near future. After Friday's student Senate meeting, the student body is left to wonder what will happen on Mudweek. Much remains to be discussed as to whether mudweek will continue or not. Mudweek was a weekly tradition for students at Wake Forest University. It provided an opportunity for students to engage in mud-related activities and festivities, often culminating in a mud day.

College Bowl All-Stars look to national tourney

Martha Robinson

Even though the WF football team failed to capture a bowl bid last season, the university's hopes for a national tourney this season are far from dead.

The team was three successive matchups in December right to the regional tournament in Charlotte last weekend. The regional tournament is scheduled for February.

The all-star team included captain Victor Hastings, a senior on the APO Flying Wings and APO Student captain; junior on the WF football team; and college captain; senior on the WF football team; and college captain.

PIRG shops around for the best bargains

Nathan Dwyer

The Western Political Research Group (PIRG) has conducted a comparative study of local fraternities and sororities in the area. The study was conducted to determine which fraternities and sororities provide the best value for students in terms of the services they offer.

Midweek party future unresolved

Ryan Bray

The future of off-campus parties lies in the hands of the near future. After Friday's student Senate meeting, the student body is left to wonder what will happen on Mudweek. Much remains to be discussed as to whether mudweek will continue or not. Mudweek was a weekly tradition for students at Wake Forest University. It provided an opportunity for students to engage in mud-related activities and festivities, often culminating in a mud day.

College Bowl All-Stars look to national tourney

Martha Robinson

Even though the WF football team failed to capture a bowl bid last season, the university's hopes for a national tourney this season are far from dead.

The team was three successive matchups in December right to the regional tournament in Charlotte last weekend. The regional tournament is scheduled for February.

The all-star team included captain Victor Hastings, a senior on the APO Flying Wings and APO Student captain; junior on the WF football team; and college captain; senior on the WF football team; and college captain.

PIRG shops around for the best bargains

Nathan Dwyer

The Western Political Research Group (PIRG) has conducted a comparative study of local fraternities and sororities in the area. The study was conducted to determine which fraternities and sororities provide the best value for students in terms of the services they offer.

Midweek party future unresolved

Ryan Bray

The future of off-campus parties lies in the hands of the near future. After Friday's student Senate meeting, the student body is left to wonder what will happen on Mudweek. Much remains to be discussed as to whether mudweek will continue or not. Mudweek was a weekly tradition for students at Wake Forest University. It provided an opportunity for students to engage in mud-related activities and festivities, often culminating in a mud day.

College Bowl All-Stars look to national tourney

Martha Robinson

Even though the WF football team failed to capture a bowl bid last season, the university's hopes for a national tourney this season are far from dead.

The team was three successive matchups in December right to the regional tournament in Charlotte last weekend. The regional tournament is scheduled for February.

The all-star team included captain Victor Hastings, a senior on the APO Flying Wings and APO Student captain; junior on the WF football team; and college captain; senior on the WF football team; and college captain.

PIRG shops around for the best bargains

Nathan Dwyer

The Western Political Research Group (PIRG) has conducted a comparative study of local fraternities and sororities in the area. The study was conducted to determine which fraternities and sororities provide the best value for students in terms of the services they offer.

Midweek party future unresolved

Ryan Bray

The future of off-campus parties lies in the hands of the near future. After Friday's student Senate meeting, the student body is left to wonder what will happen on Mudweek. Much remains to be discussed as to whether mudweek will continue or not. Mudweek was a weekly tradition for students at Wake Forest University. It provided an opportunity for students to engage in mud-related activities and festivities, often culminating in a mud day.

College Bowl All-Stars look to national tourney

Martha Robinson

Even though the WF football team failed to capture a bowl bid last season, the university's hopes for a national tourney this season are far from dead.

The team was three successive matchups in December right to the regional tournament in Charlotte last weekend. The regional tournament is scheduled for February.

The all-star team included captain Victor Hastings, a senior on the APO Flying Wings and APO Student captain; junior on the WF football team; and college captain; senior on the WF football team; and college captain.

PIRG shops around for the best bargains

Nathan Dwyer

The Western Political Research Group (PIRG) has conducted a comparative study of local fraternities and sororities in the area. The study was conducted to determine which fraternities and sororities provide the best value for students in terms of the services they offer.
Moral Majority

(continued page)

Carr thought the Moral Majority might encourage beliefs as justification for activism in the civil rights and feminist movements, the campaign against the "fiery sky," he said.

"I think the American people are a little too

"They have ethical objections, quite another to insist that

"I think the Moral Majority might encourage

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the Moral Majority might encourage

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too

"I think the American people are a little too
Lecturer defends Berkeley

Amy NVIDIA

A discussion of modern philosophers Berkeley, Hume, Locke and Hume as part of the philosophy department's annual Student-Faculty Appreciation Lecture will be given at 4 p.m. Monday in 1901 in Kinston Room.

The free lecture, which is part of the Student-Faculty Appreciation series, is open to all and will be given by Dr. Neil F. Peabody, professor of philosophy at Princeton University, Washington, D.C. Professor Peabody will discuss the work of Berkeley, Hume and Locke as part of a discussion of the philosophy of the 18th century.

The primary qualities of space, extension, figure, infinity, and mobility, according to Locke, were the elements of the world. The secondary qualities, according to Berkeley and Hume, were the qualities of the mind. By affirming the existence of the secondary qualities, the primary qualities would be annihilated.

In making these two additions, Locke agreed with Berkeley, who said: "We see, hear, smell, taste, touch, and, in short, perceive all the objects of sense."

The lecture will be open to the public and is free of charge.
Dear Editor,

This year the WF football season draws to a close. I would like to see you to the WF football team and coaches. We did, we go 8-3, and we weren't invited to the Sugar Bowl. As you may see, I'm rather disappointed by the fact that this has been true. In the past, Wake Forest University's football team has had a winning record, and I'm sure that this year's team will not be any exception.

I am pleased to see that the students at Wake Forest have been given the opportunity to express their opinions through the Student Body Council. This is an important step in the development of student governance and I hope that it will continue in the future.

Sincerely,

David Marcus
President, Student Senate
Elephant Man

Triteness flaws ambitious effort

David Marshall

"The Elephant Man," directed by David Lynch, is probably the most ambitious and star-studded movie made in quite some time. The movie, taken from the play of the same name by Peter Shaffer, tells the story of Dr. John Merrick, a hideously deformed waxworks exhibition figure made up of a circus sideshow. Lynch's filmYe even an意味

Yet "The Elephant Man" is not what it seems. Early views of the Elephant Man stress that he is a monster, a part of the circus sideshows. The emphasis on the monster in the film leaves no room for the character in the play, John Merrick. The play is a story about a man, a character, and the Elephant Man simply is a part of the story. The emphasis on the monster in the film leaves no room for the character in the play, John Merrick. The play is a story about a man, a character, and the Elephant Man simply is a part of the story.

The realistic makeup and costumes make the same kind of mistake as Merrick's false face. The faces in the movies are too strong, too unique, too different from the man behind the face. The characters in the play are more real, more human, more alive. Yet "The Elephant Man" is not what it seems. It is not a story about a man, a character, and the Elephant Man simply is a part of the story. The emphasis on the monster in the film leaves no room for the character in the play, John Merrick. The play is a story about a man, a character, and the Elephant Man simply is a part of the story.

The Early Music Consort recently resurrected the spirit of the Middle Ages last Thursday in a concert featuring music of the Middle Ages and Renaissance at Reynolda House.

Early music charms and refreshes

Robert S. Howes

Music lovers greeted with surprise and enthusiasm those who ventured to refreshment booths with program music by the Early Music Consort. The concert, composed of five professional performers, offered an exciting view of the Middle Ages. The program included several selections from early music with an English demotic voice from the early Middle Ages. During this era, music was developing from the monophonic nature of early Middle Ages chant into the texture known for polyphony. The medieval composer added to the voice and its intonation rather than the voice and its intonation.

The difference between the Middle Ages and Renaissance is certainly made by the Polyphonic texture known as polyphony. Polyphonic music creates an expanse of voices with a built-in keyboard. The program included polyphonic music which used voices of the Middle Ages and Renaissance.

The program included selections from the Middle Ages and Renaissance. The differences between the Middle Ages and Renaissance is certainly made by the Polyphonic texture known as polyphony. Polyphonic music creates an expanse of voices with a built-in keyboard. The program included polyphonic music which used voices of the Middle Ages and Renaissance.

The program included selections from the Middle Ages and Renaissance. The differences between the Middle Ages and Renaissance is certainly made by the Polyphonic texture known as polyphony. Polyphonic music creates an expanse of voices with a built-in keyboard. The program included polyphonic music which used voices of the Middle Ages and Renaissance.
Ten years later, Piccolo lived...

Page 13 of 17

In the early morning hours of June 30, 1970, the body which represented the life of Piccolo, the fallen Devil football player, was found in a natural state on the campus of Wake Forest University. The death of Piccolo was a tragic end to a story that had begun years earlier in the lives of two men.

In the early 1960s, two young men, Fred and Bob, were attending Wake Forest University. They were both members of the football team and shared a common interest in the sport of football.

As the years went by, the lives of Fred and Bob diverged. Fred went on to become a successful businessman, while Bob remained active in the sport of football as a coach and administrator.

However, the tragic event of Piccolo's death brought a sense of closure to the lives of Fred and Bob. They found solace in the memory of their friend and mentor.

Today, the story of Piccolo continues to inspire others in their own lives, as they remember the lessons learned from his tragic end.

---

(Photograph of Piccolo's statue)
Deacons take the air

When the Wake Forest Deacons take on the Appalachian State Mountaineers at Groveway Stadium tomorrow, there will be a lot of expectation. With the Deacons coming off a victory over a ranked team, they are looking to continue their season.

While the Deacons lost their last win in the nationally-ranked weekend loss to Carolina, the team's enthusiasm remains high. Intestinal injuries and emotional struggles, however, do not exactly side with the Deacons as they prepare for this game.

Head coach George Kennedy, however, does not exactly support the Deacons. Although Kennedy did not comment on the coach's thoughts, he did have an above 500 record in his first year at the helm. Kennedy's mark now stands at 1-8.

Linda Jenkins, however, does not exactly support the Deacons. Jenkins continued her comments by completing 34 of 50 passes for 306 yards on Saturday. Jenkins' performance has made him the key to the team's success.

While Jenkins has been a key player, the Deacons have also been able to gain an NCAA playoff bid. The team's focus now is on improving their record in ACC play.

Wake harriers finish season

Evans, who played with the Deacons, is looking forward to the opportunity to get back into the swing of things. The team's work was in vain as they could not keep up with the strong, aggressive team.

The Deacons finished the season without a victory, but it was a good season, Evans said. They could not keep up with the strong, aggressive team.

WF spikers lose in fourth round

The Wake Forest women's volleyball team's season ended in the third round of the NCAA tournament. Controversy may surround the results, but the team's effort was still felt by their supporters.

Despite the disappointment, the Deacons have been able to gain an NCAA playoff bid. The team's focus now is on improving their record in ACC play.

Kathleen Renfro

Kathleen Renfro scored seven points and added a strong showing.

The Wake Forest women's volleyball team's season ended with a disappointing loss to Wake Forest in the third round of the NCAA tournament. Controversy may surround the results, but the team's effort was still felt by their supporters.

The Wake Forest women's volleyball team's season ended with a disappointing loss to Wake Forest in the third round of the NCAA tournament. Controversy may surround the results, but the team's effort was still felt by their supporters.
Growing spirit, participation revive marching band

Molly Weller

Not only do Deacons fans watch the football games more now than in past years, but they also watch the halftime show. The WF marching band is stronger than ever.

"I don't think the band has ever been bigger," said seventh-year director, Burgess Hunt. Burgess said that the band has become more visible in recent years, due to increased student participation and the band's success on the field.

Burgess said that he is excited about the band's upcoming season and believes that it will be the best one yet. He also highlighted the contributions of student leaders, such as the drum majors, who help to keep the band organized and focused.

"The band is stronger than ever," Burgess said. "I think we are going to have a great year."