Hearn explains purpose of letter

By THOMAS H. HEARN, JR.

Wake Forest students maintain a strong preference for Ronald Reagan over challenger Walter F. Mondale, even after the first round of official debates, according to this week's Old Gold and Black straw poll. Among other things, the poll shows a strong preference for Reagan in the state of North Carolina.

Of the respondents, 75 percent said they preferred Reagan in the first debate, 71 percent said he had not switched, 73 percent of those who preferred Reagan had changed because of the debates, those who preferred Mondale had changed. However, the poll said in a separate poll of the Tar Heels, 64 percent of those who preferred Reagan had changed because of the debates, those who preferred Mondale had changed.

The political preferences of Wake Forest students reflect the status of students nationwide. According to a national straw poll conducted by CBS News on Oct. 1, before the first round of official debates, Reagan received 51.7 percent of the vote, Mondale received 48.3 percent of the vote. In a separate poll of the Tar Heels, 75 percent of those who preferred Reagan had changed because of the debates, those who preferred Mondale had changed.

Homecoming dance will be held on campus

By ANNE M. HABER

The Alcoholic Task Force at Wake Forest is planning to hold a homecoming dance during the week of Oct. 15-19. The purpose of the dance is to provide a safe and enjoyable environment for students to enjoy each other's company.

The dance will be held in the Student Union on Friday night, Oct. 18, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. There will be food, drinks, and music provided. The theme of the dance will be "20th Century." Tickets will be sold at the doors for $5 per person. The dance will be open to all students, faculty, and staff.

We beat Carolina!

The Winthrop Universitv

The Winthrop University soccer team defeated North Carolina 1-0 Saturday afternoon. The team, which is currently ranked 5th in the nation, had an excellent performance against the Tar Heels.

The team's next game will be against the University of South Carolina, which is ranked 12th in the nation. The game is scheduled for Friday, Oct. 18, at 7 p.m. at Winthrop's home field.
Reece enjoys his non-academic duties

By KIM SMITH

Mark Reece graduated from Wake Forest in 1949 with a B.S. in general science. He worked in the physics activity office for two years and in the Dean of Students.

Several jobs dealt with the non-academic sides of college life. He works with many campus organizations to produce programs and assists various residents of the quality of life on campus, and hopefully, contribute to the games, values, and traditions of Wake Forest.

Reece has supervisor responsibilities for the on-campus directors of student groups, the director of campus grams, director of housing, and the on-duty resident advisor role.

His first report of breaking and entering of a home came from an out-of-state crime. It was received last Saturday, inncident almost a one-month span. A previous article had the number of such incidents.

A 1985 Volkswagen Jetta's rear window on the passenger's side was broken on the weekends, and the vehicle's wheels stolen. The incident occurred at 11:15 p.m., behind the chapel, on Saturday, Sept. 29th. Crime Stoppers, the Wake Forest-North Carolina highway patrol, and anyone who could point out to individuals that are of assistance in solving campus crimes. Any information you provide could make the difference in solving campus crimes. Any information you provide could make the difference in solving campus crimes.

We are looking for Wake Forest friends to serve on a safety program and work with College Housing, residence life, fraternity and society activities, in the college of competitiveness of self. He increases many activities and makes sure that they are an accomplish.

Reece, the spins of his life, fraternity, and society activities, orientates and the ID card system are just a few areas in which he works with students, either in controlling another campus organization at times.

Hence, make sure and remember assignments for the student body, and do not take it too seriously. He works with many campus organizations or sites.

Our professional stylists will recommend the NEXUS Conditioner that is right for you.

Ideal Party helps

Many folks at the party took advantage of the opportunity to measure their blood alcohol content. As smoker that did so gracefully provided the Winston- Salem Police Department. And, while some regrettably turned this into an opportunity to clandestinely test who could register the higher blood alcohol concentrations, really does have more brain functions, really does improve a personal understanding of what it felt like for student groups who were really excited to turn out to the Inter- College Union, Circle K, and Black Student Union, an awareness of them. Perhaps the next time, next time, for Wake Forest students.

Actors associated with the Royal Shakespeare Company ended their week of residence at Wake Forest with performances of William Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" last Thursday and Friday in the Purnell Center. The performances, the first of the company's "Twelfth Night" tour, were directed by Harold Pinter and starred a series of actors who have performed the role of Viola in other productions of Shakespeare's play. The performances were described by the audience for the most part as entertaining, though some found the plays to be disappointing. The performers were said to be "above average" in their acting, but the production as a whole was described as "moving slowly." The performances were held at 7:30 p.m. each night, with a matinee performance on Saturday. The program ended with a question-and-answer session with the audience. The audience was divided in their opinions of the performances, with some finding them to be "dull" and others finding them to be "entertaining." The performances were held at 7:30 p.m. each night, with a matinee performance on Saturday. The program ended with a question-and-answer session with the audience.

Richardson discusses Greeks by JANET MOOREDOCK

Edwin Richfield, a British actor affiliated with the Royal Shakespeare Company, presented a lecture on Greek drama at the University of Washington on Saturday, October 10th. The lecture was part of the university's semester-long study of Greek drama. Richfield discussed the history of Greek drama, the development of the Greek theatre, and the significance of Greek drama for modern theatre. He also discussed the plays of Aeschylus, Sophocles, and Euripides in detail.

Buying culture

The Wake Forest University administration should reconsider the offer that it is providing to its students. The offer, which is designed to encourage students to register, is a great deal, but it is not enough. The university should be more creative in its efforts to attract students.

The administration should consider offering a greater variety of classes, including more on the arts and humanities. This would not only provide a more enriching educational experience for students, but it would also help to attract more students.

Religion

I find the article you wrote on the subject of religion to be quite interesting. However, I think that the article could be more comprehensive in its outlook.

The article only focuses on one aspect of religion, and that is the way in which it is practiced in the United States. While this is certainly an important topic, there are many other aspects of religion that should be considered.

Cynicism

I was not impressed with the article you wrote on the subject of cynicism. It seemed to me that you were trying too hard to be clever, and as a result, the article ended up being somewhat difficult to read.

I think that the article would have been much more effective if you had simply stated your opinion in a straightforward manner. This would have made it easier for the reader to understand your point of view.

Letters to the Editor

I was very disappointed with the response I received from the editor to my letter. It seemed to me that the editor was not really interested in what I had to say.

I think that the editor should have given more attention to my letter, and that he should have taken the time to consider my arguments carefully.

Concert

The concert was great! I really enjoyed the music and the performance. I think that the performers did a wonderful job.

I hope that they will perform again soon, so that I can see them again.
Wake Forest responds to tuition hike proposal

I've already imagined thousands of haltedlier-than-late-night dormitorys, all of which would be the most absurd of all. The noise and the ... in the style of a brochure, or a random page from an instruction manual. I tossed those thoughts into consideration when making a final decision on what to do next.

Eric Haysley

Old Gold and Black has rounds a question about tuition hike based on a report distributed to the faculty and staff of the University by Dr. Hearn, Jr. The report discusses various proposals of what could happen if certain restrictions on students, particularly those with the lowest financial means, were made.

First, the report lists the top ten proposals. The first proposal is to increase tuition by 10%, the second is to increase tuition by 20%, and so on. The ten proposals are listed in order of their estimated impact on the university's financial situation.

Next, the report lists the ten proposals again, this time in order of the percentage of students who would be affected by each proposal. The highest percentage of students affected is 51%, and the lowest is 3%

Finally, the report lists the ten proposals in order of the estimated impact on Wake Forest's reputation. The highest impact is on Wake Forest's reputation as a noble university, and the lowest impact is on Wake Forest's reputation as a cheap university.

The report concludes that the university should consider the ten proposals carefully, and make a decision that is best for the university's financial situation, reputation, and students.

David Bailey

Wake Forest needs an image change. But perhaps this is not at all what you think. President Hearn? Big bucks, or big problems. And if we don't think about it, we are not going to get the tuition hike that we desperately need.

According to the recently released U.S. News & World Report's "America's Best College" rankings, Wake Forest is ranked 15th among the nation's liberal arts colleges. But perhaps this is not at all what you think. If we don't think about it, we are not going to get the tuition hike that we desperately need.

The students at Wake Forest do not see this as a problem. They see it as a challenge. They believe that Wake Forest can turn its reputation around and become a truly great university.

Bowie fails with "Tonight"

By BEN ROSENBERG

Once upon a time, David Bowie, the man who both loves and detests the spotlight, stated that he was done with music. Twenty years later, the rock star is back with a new album. But even Bowie himself is not sure whether he can pull of this album.

"Low" and "Heroes," two albums Bowie released in the 1970s, are usually regarded as Bowie's best efforts. "Tonight," does not even begin to reach the high status of either "Low" or "Heroes." A recent Rolling Stone interview with Bowie stated that he had little time to prepare for this album of eighteen songs. Bowie's best song is love, and he and his wife take long walks and enjoy music on the LP are "htar-uh," "Stardust," and "Loving the Alien." Bowie stated that he had little time to prepare for this album and that love was the only thing that can help him aloud. Bowie's best song is love, and he and his wife take long walks and enjoy music.

"Low" is a masterpiece of electronic music that successfully blends the electronic and the organic. The album contains a variety of styles, from the electronic music of the 1970s to the more conventional pop music of the 1980s. Bowie's music is a unique blend of electronic and organic elements, and it is this blend that makes "Low" such a timeless piece of music.

"Heroes" is a more upbeat album that features the same blend of electronic and organic elements. This album is more focused on the electronic side of things, and it features some of Bowie's most well-known songs, such as "Life on Mars?" and "Space Oddity." Bowie's music continues to evolve with each album, and "Heroes" is no exception.

Overall, "Low" and "Heroes" are both masterpieces of electronic music that showcase Bowie's unique talent for blending the organic and the electronic. These albums are must-listen for any fan of electronic music, and they continue to be popular today.
Deacons look for third ACC victory

By BOB GLOVER
Head Coach

This week Wake Forest travels to Charlottesville, Virginia to play the University of Virginia in the Atlantic Coast Conference, the third year in row. The Deacons last visited the ACC in 1981 and were victorious. Since then Wake Forest has compiled a 6-6-1 record in conference play. This year they are 5-1-0 in the conference with 13 points.

Wake Forest’s Bill Geithner, a standout on the Florida Atlantic League, is the starting quarterback. The Deacons last week defeated Maryland, 22-0. This week they are facing a team that Wake Forest has not defeated since 1975. This year’s game is scheduled for Thursday, October 18, at 7:30 p.m. at Kenyon.”

In the semi- final round, Appalachian State beat North Carolina, 15-9, for a double overtime victory. Appalachian State will play in the finals, Appalachian State is the only team in the ACC that the Deacons have not defeated since 1975. The Deacons have won their first three games of the season since 1975. Finally it was the first time that Wake Forest has lost back-to-back games.

In the quarterfinal round, Appalachian State beat Furman, 19-14, to advance to the semifinals. The quarterfinal round was played in the North Carolina Athletic Center. Horton leads ACC backs

A year ago at about this same date, Ethan Horton of North Carolina and Robert Lavette of Georgia were Nos. 1 and 2 in the Atlantic Coast Conference rushing race, and Horton has changed little in the interim.

Horton, however, was enjoying a bigger advantage last year than he is to as of now, and a slight edge, Wake Forest's Mike Ramseur, is also making his presence felt in the race this year. Each was at the top of the class of the season with a three-game winning streak and with top three finishes in each of the last three ACC races. Horton has been up at the top of the class since the start of last year's ACC race when he turned in a 19th-place finish at the Georgia Tech tournament. Ramseur has been in the top 10 in the ACC for each of the last two years, with his best finish last season coming at the Maryland State tournament where Ramseur placed third.

Both Horton and Lavette were the only two perfectionists who reached for more than 100 yards in last week's games, and both achieved that feat in the ACC. While Horton turned in a 19th-place finish at the Georgia Tech tournament, Lavette finished in the top 10 at a similar ACC event.

In fact, Horton has had a great season going, with six top-10 finishes in seven ACC games, including last week's ACC-leading 19th-place finish at the Georgia Tech tournament. Ramseur has also been consistent, finishing in the top 10 in all ACC games except for last week's ACC tournament.

In the ACC, Horton leads in total rushing yards with 1,178, followed by Lavette with 1,123. Ramseur is in third place with 1,022 yards. In the ACC, Horton leads in points scored with 58, followed by Lavette with 51 and Ramseur with 40. In the ACC, Horton leads in total touchdowns with 10, followed by Lavette with 8 and Ramseur with 6. In the ACC, Horton leads in total offensive players with 18, followed by Lavette with 16 and Ramseur with 14. In the ACC, Horton leads in total yards per game with 189.4, followed by Lavette with 188.3 and Ramseur with 180.9.
