Students and professors read poetry to raise funds for hunger

By Joe Brosh

Commissioner of Agriculture

The university participated as one of more than 150 institutions throughout the country "Share Our Strength's Writers Harvest." a literary event organized to bring nationwide hosts to benefit for hunger.

President Turner said the board honored and thanked the executive director of the national event, which takes place at colleges and universities this year, in its campaign against hunger.

Socratic wisdom must be used to combat hunger, said Ms. Turner, adding that a moral commitment to use knowledge for the benefit of others is necessary. "A university must have moral character," said Ms. Turner. "We must have a moral character that is based on the principles that the university was founded on."

The president further elaborated on the importance of poetry, Angelou said, "As the president of a university, I believe that poetry is important because it helps us to see things from a different perspective. Poetry allows us to express our emotions and our thoughts in a way that is not always possible with words alone."

In his financial statement, April Kizer, a media relations director, reported that Wake Forest has completed a thorough investigation of NCAA allegations. "We are not in the NCAA anymore," said Ms. Turner. "We are independent of the NCAA and we have moved on."

Fund established by five area businesses to promote civic responsibility

Five Winston-Salem corporations have been named President Thomas K. Hearn Jr. by endowing a fund in his name to promote civic responsibility.

Wake Forest Corporations, Southern National Bank, R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, First National Bank and Green manufacturing announced the $3.000,000 fund in a memorial dinner held at the Old Town Club marking Hearn's 50th anniversary as president.

Hearn and future presidents will be able to use the fund at their discretion in promoting civic responsibility and leadership among students. The fund will be used for things as running projects, new programs and initiatives for general purposes.

Dovey, the chairman, chief executive officer and president of Southern National Bank, said, "Ethics, leadership, and civic responsibility are the hallmarks of the administration of Thomas K. Hearn Jr."

The Thomas K. Hearn Jr. Fund for Civic Responsibility will be a living legacy of President Hearn's leadership of Wake Forest.

We're always grateful to our community leaders who are willing to invest in the future of our university," Wake Forest president Thomas K. Hearn Jr.

The Thomas K. Hearn Jr. Scholarship for Leadership and Service will be awarded to three rising seniors on the basis of their leadership and contributions to the university.

SBAC begins 1993-4 budget allocations process

By Jeannine Warrant

SCAC opens 1993-4 budget allocations process.

The Student Finance Committee (SFC) will meet Thursday, Oct. 6 at 11 a.m. in the North Building, to begin the 1993-4 budget allocations process.

The SFC allocates funds for about 40 different student groups, according to Cameron Bell, the SFC chairman. "They include all the groups that have a Student Activities Board (SAB) dollar and some of the classified groups as well," Bell said.

Next year's budget will be approximately $800,000, according to one SAB dollar, said Cam Johnson, the SAB coordinator. "This is a decrease from this year's budget, but it will probably be larger than next year's," Johnson said.

The SAB dollars are comprised of $120,000 from the Student Activities Fund, $60,000 from the University Student Government, and the Bonds of America (BOA) Fund.

Athlete's legacy lives on in fight against cancer

By: Tricia Maca

For many years, Brian Piccolo was a name that carried much weight in the world of college football. Born on November 21, 1940, in Chicago, Illinois, Piccolo was known for his exceptional skills on the field and his dedication to the sport he loved. His career was cut short when he was diagnosed with cancer at the age of 21, and his legacy continues to inspire and motivate people around the world.

Brian Piccolo was a student-athlete at Wake Forest University, where he played football and basketball. After graduating, he continued his football career in the NFL, playing for the Baltimore Colts and then the Chicago Bears. Despite his success on the field, Piccolo's life was cut short when he died on October 20, 1970, due to complications from his cancer.

In the years following his death, Piccolo's legacy has continued to grow. The Brian Piccolo Cancer Fund, established by the Brian Piccolo family, has raised millions of dollars to support cancer research and treatment. The fund is supported by donations from Piccolo's fans, as well as through special events and other fundraising initiatives.

Piccolo's story has been told through books, films, and documentaries. The 2002 film "Brian Piccolo" starring David Mamet and John Cusack brought attention to Piccolo's life and the challenges he faced in fighting cancer.

Today, the Brian Piccolo Cancer Fund continues to honor Piccolo's legacy by supporting cancer research and treatment. The fund has been successful in raising funds through various initiatives, and it has supported numerous research projects and initiatives.

"Today, we are proud to be able to continue Brian's legacy by supporting the fight against cancer," said Joe Ford, the executive director of the Brian Piccolo Cancer Fund. "We are grateful to all of our supporters who have helped make this possible, and we are committed to continuing to make a difference in the lives of those affected by cancer."

Students must assist in steering of vision

We often speak too much about time; 100 years from now, the students...

Academics first

As the undergraduate studies representative on the President’s Planning Committee, I was charged with soliciting student comments in the administration faculty. Now, however, I look back with much satisfaction on possessing the opportunity to share my views with the committee.

Many administrators and students seem to believe that the \"student body\" is a \"Wake Forest\" college. \"The students are the same\" is often said. \"Why should the students be so interested in the way Wake Forest is run?\" is often asked.

In my opinion, \"the students\" are interested in the academic program, the administration, the general living conditions and the social aspects of school life. It is just as possible for a student to be interested in the \"administration\" as it is for a student to be interested in the \"students.\"

When asked, \"What do you think of the curriculum?\" or \"What do you think of the campus?\" or \"What do you think of the administration?\" I would usually say, \"I have no idea.\"

I think of the curriculum as the courses offered; courses are a part of the program. The program is administered by faculty who are interested in the program. The administration offers the program. Thus, I have no clear idea of the curriculum or the program. To me, they are the same.

For me, the limited students who have been interviewed by me have given a right representation of the university's spiritual planning, and the university would be well-advised to find out what students want and to try to improve the quality of the student body. The technology of this facility has been improved in the last ten years or so. We wish to express our appreciation to the university for its efforts in this direction.

Our first priority is to discuss the university’s vision: to express to the students the importance they have in the decision-making process. The vision of tomorrow must be the students' vision. If the university wishes to make future decisions, it must consult with the students. In order to make such decisions, the university must understand the needs of the students.

Students should be actively involved in the planning process. They should be consulted on the development of new courses and programs, and they should be given the opportunity to participate in the planning of the future of the university.

Furthermore, the students should be encouraged to express their views on the university's vision and the plans for the future. This will help to ensure that the university's vision is consistent with the students' needs and expectations.

Hearn heads for change, for better or worse

President Thomas H. Hearn Jr. is at a crossroads in his tenure as head of Wake Forest University. He is leading an administration that is beginning to show signs of maturity and strength.

As a result of his leadership, the university now has a clear sense of direction and purpose. The administration has identified a number of areas where improvements can be made, and it is working to address these issues.

Under Hearn's guidance, the university has made significant strides in many areas, including academic programs, student life, and athletics. The university is now recognized as a leader in higher education, and it is attracting top students and faculty from around the world.

However, Hearn's leadership has also been marked by controversy. Some have criticized his decision to eliminate certain programs and to cut back on student services.

In the end, Hearn's leadership will be measured by the success of Wake Forest University in meeting the challenges of the 21st century. If he is able to lead the university through this period of transition, he will be remembered as a leader who has left a lasting legacy.

Health plan should meet all citizens needs

Walter E. George University

Scott Yglesias

Health insurance, one of the most perplexing of economic issues, continues to be a matter of concern. The U.S. healthcare system is energy-consuming and often inefficient, with high costs and limited access to quality care.

In the United States, the most common cause of death is heart disease, followed by stroke and cancer. Despite advances in medical technology, these conditions continue to exact a toll on individuals and families.

The JAMA/Annals of Internal Medicine report highlights the need for comprehensive and affordable healthcare solutions. The report underscores the importance of patient-centered care, which involves understanding the patient's needs, preferences, and values.

Many people struggle to afford health insurance due to high premiums or deductibles. The Affordable Care Act, also known as Obamacare, aimed to address these issues by expanding access to coverage and reducing costs.

Despite some challenges, the ACA has made significant progress in improving the health insurance market. However, there is still room for improvement, particularly in ensuring affordability and accessibility for all citizens.

In conclusion, the healthcare system in the United States is complex and multifaceted. Addressing the challenges will require a multi-faceted approach involving policymakers, healthcare providers, insurers, and patients.

Shakespeare comes to the big screen in Much Ado About Nothing

By Marlon Rose

One can judge a film adaptation of Shakespeare in two ways:

The first is to ask how faithfully it adheres to the original play and how well it preserves the Bard's language and style. The second is to judge how well the film provides for the audience's entertainment. Much Ado About Nothing falls somewhere in between. The film is entertaining, but it doesn't quite capture the spirit of the original play.

Under the direction of Kenneth Branagh, the Threepenny Opera screen adaptation of Much Ado About Nothing is a fresh take on Shakespeare. Branagh's production is a lively and engaging interpretation of the play. The film is a labor of love for Branagh, who has a deep appreciation for Shakespeare's work. He has directed a number of films based on the Bard's plays, and Much Ado About Nothing is one of his most memorable.

Much Ado About Nothing is a film adaptation of Shakespeare's play Much Ado About Nothing, which is a romantic comedy. The film is set in a small Italian town in the late 1600s, and it is about two lovers who fall in love. The story is told through a series of misunderstandings and mistaken identities, which are typical elements of Shakespeare's comedies.

IMPORTANT SCHOLARSHIP OPPORTUNITY FOR FRESHMEN:

The James S. Kemper Foundation has designated Wake Forest as a participating institution in the Kemper Scholars Grant Program. Each year the Foundation selects one Kemper Scholar from among the freshman class, who will have the opportunity to renew the scholarship for subsequent years should his or her academic performance warrant such renewal.

The selection process is competitive, and the recipient will be selected based on several factors, including academic achievement, leadership potential, and financial need. The scholarship provides a full ride tuition, room, and board for four years.

To apply, students must submit an application, a high school transcript, a recommendation from a teacher or counselor, and a personal statement. The application deadline is January 15 of each year.

For more information, students should contact the Office of Student Financial Aid at Wake Forest University.

If interested, please call Piedmont Research Associates at 768-8062 Monday-Friday 8 A.M. - 5 P.M.
EMPLOYEE SPOTLIGHT

Congratulations to Brian Smith for receiving Reynolda Cafeteria's Employee of the Month Award. Brian has been employed with ARA Services for 10 years, the last five of them being at Wake Forest University. He started at the very young age of 16 as a Chef's apprentice. After two years as an apprentice, he began taking classes at W.H.Q., where he learned how to be a professional cook, food management skills and many other culinary talents. When he is not at work, Brian enjoys weightlifting, watching sports and listening to reggae music. He is also very proud of his 15-month-old daughter Jasmine. Many thanks to Brian for all of his hard work and dedication!
