Panel discusses changes in Greek life, policies

By BERNADINE ALEXANDER

Data and acquaintance rape are still prevalent problems in the United States, and the concern that victims of rape will receive appropriate and adequate care is growing.

However, there are a number of different options open to victims of rape, both in the long and short term.

First, a person can report the rape to a hospital, police, or a family member.

It is never too late to report the assault to a hospital, police, or a family member.

If a person is unable or unwilling to report the assault to a hospital, police, or a family member, there are still options available.

Several assistance options open to victims of rape

By BRITTANY ALEXANDER

"We strongly encourage the victims and medical practitioners to enroll in a rape support group," he said.

One of these options is the availability of medical care. In some cases, medical care may be necessary in order to prevent or treat any health problems resulting from the assault.

"We cannot guarantee that the victims will receive medical attention. However, we can assure them that they have the right to receive medical care," he said.

"We will provide a list of hospitals and medical facilities that offer comprehensive care for victims of rape," he said.

"We encourage the victims to seek medical care immediately, even if they do not feel physically or emotionally comfortable doing so," he said.

Students protest loss of Good Friday holiday

The decision to eliminate the Good Friday holiday from the 1993-1994 academic calendar has prompted student response in the form of an anti-Good Friday demonstration. In an effort to preserve awareness of Good Friday's meaning and to protest in its absence, sophomore Doug Biegert organized a petition through the mail that the students may sign and return in person to the office of the Student Union. Over 600 students have signed the petition, making it 95 percent of the total student body.

Positions on campus are distributed to the faculty and staff. The number of faculty and staff positions that will be updated is 12 at a time on A.W.T. 130. The weekend service will include a brief message by a local pastor and singing with a guest speaker. These activities and the prayer will begin by being led by Prof. William E. Nicholls, director of the Academic Affairs Committee. The Academic Affairs Committee is the process of organizing the activities that all faculty calendars will follow. Edwards said, "It's an unusual idea. We hope students will always have Good Friday holiday.

Caddell explores problems of national defense needs

Brought back by popular demand after appearing on campus twice, Joseph Caddell, a professor of history at St. Mary's College, presented a guest lecture on the recently released report by the Clinton administration's National Post-Cold War Policy Committee.

"When the United States began to develop a program to regulate its military power after the Cold War had ended," Caddell said, "the United States began to develop a program to regulate its military power after the Cold War had ended."

Caddell said the military should act in a more deliberate manner. "In a new era of confrontation and normalcy," Caddell said, "we must develop a program to regulate our defense activities and our defense expenditures.

Kappa Sigma receives social probation due to alumni

Herald Holmes, the dean of student services, confirmed Kappa Sigma fraternity will receive up to two years social probation for a 25-member which allegedly showed a nude and a television set out of a first-story window.

The program will last three weeks at the alumni identified themselves and its weeks if they do. If not, "If we don't know who identified themselves, the upper end of the DAR suggested range will be imposed until the end of the next academic year," Holmes said. "This was a post-recommendation of the DAR's investigation."

"The chapter has also been asked to develop a plan to resolve the situation. When the chapter is ready to submit their plan to the DAR, the chapter will be informed as to the outcome for their behavior." said Pete Miller, the DAR's state representative.

"The responsibility rests with undergraduate chapters," Associate Dean of Men Robin Christian told the Darlingtonian news that the chapter is still right for the DAR to declare whether the matter has been resolved or not. "We have had a discussion with the chapter leader, and we have discussed what we consider a resolution to the matter."

In an addition to the above, former governor of North Carolina, will host a discussion April 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the Johnson Student Center as part of the College of Arts and Sciences' Leadership Speakers Series.

The Judicial Board found sophomore Tamara Gelchel guilty of verbal abuse in an open hearing Tuesday. The board found Gelchel guilty of incitement stemming from an involuntary response to aveheld parking ticket given to Keller on Mar. 17. Gelchel’s ticket was issued in Lot F. A faculty and staff parking permit has been denied for Keller and R. Smith since that time. Keller stated he received his ticket after he parked his car after Winter Break. He returned to campus on the second day, Mar. 10, averaging King Day. He believes he received a parking ticket.

"I learned, apparently wrongly, that parking is a luxury or on halls. I believe," Keller said. "Parking is in faculty and staff lots. I believe I was wrong." He was not financially penalized for any violations.

"We've got a good membership," Keller said. "We've been here for three elections." According to back polling, the student community at the time of elections, the Student RepresentativeCommittee, a Sorority Committee, a Social Committee and an Educational Committee. "Hopefully as we get more recognition more people will join," Keller said.

"We feel like we're going in the right direction," he added. "We've been a new group and we've been this year. In 1995, according to a poll, nobody goes to the hood." Keller said that he was going to the hood and was told, "Don't go there. It's not safe."

"We've got a good membership," Keller said. "I'mimmelites have been on campus. There will be a feeling about society is sponsored by the University House and House Parents.

"Mother Hut" serves pizza, caring

Pizza Hut manager Nina Wiest serves students with assistant managers Tina Church and Henderson Moorefield.

BY: CHERI MORRISON

There is a whole lot more to a pizza than dough, sauce and toppings. Nina Wiest, manager of the campus Pizza Hut, puts a lot of effort and care into her job. "I spend long hours here, not because I have to, but because I want to," she said.

Wiest was born in Geisen, Germany, the daughter of a military officer stationed in the area. New York actually makes the most sense to me, Wiest thought while settling down in Coburn. Often, growing up with three brothers, she had to work hard to get her way. However, Wiest found a home on campus four years ago.

"When I first came on the university..." Wiest had been open for one year, but there were not any choice sticks, just some muddy's, pizza, hot dogs and lasagna. "Pizza Hut was not very food oriented, being stuck to a weekly menu," Wiest said. "We just started getting students and employees involved in activities such as the annual sheet cake for sorority titled "Baking.thumb," an event that takes place in town outside of Pizza Hut during the events of the month. The activities are fun and get people involved and ready for big games. Pizza Hut is involved with Bar tenders and pizzeria in each activity in as well as sticking flyers on pizza boxes helping to entice people out to eat with tickets and two drink tickets.

Wiest has a lot for her employees and for students. Wiest said the best thing is "(1) genuinely care about people, (2) enjoy not only the people, I enjoy the job well done," Wiest said. "I may not be the best, but I care about everyone involved. Wiest's favorite is the thick crust, pepperoni pizza. "There are so many ways to make pizza, it's ridiculous," Wiest said. "We have a lot more to offer than pizza, but we are the best!" Overall, Wiest likes to be involved in as many activities as sticking flyers on pizza boxes helps to entice people out to eat at the club and two drink and two dollars.

When asked what she enjoys most about the job, Wiest said, "People love the cross-cultural experience. You can learn so much from the students. They give a lot of feedback on operations," Wiest said. "When I first came, they wanted to accommodate to the employees' area even if it was less, so we scheduled the things accordingly. She also enjoys walking around them personally getting them a job for a well done.

As any student will agree, the pizza is not all that bad. Wiest's favorite is the thick crust, pepperoni pizza. "There are so many ways to make pizza, it's ridiculous," Wiest said. Speaker describes Algerian strife

By Lisa Monroe

Middlebury College

Bringing attention to the little-known position of women during the Algerian revolution, Toumi, an Algerian woman, explained her people’s desire to gain control of their own country. Toumi had lived in Algeria until the mid-1980s and was an active participant in the anti-colonial movement.

Toumi began her lecture with a recitation of the fundamentalist practices that women are subjected to in their society. She explained that women are treated as property and that their rights are suppressed by the fundamentalists. She spoke about the discrimination against women in Algeria and the way that the fundamentalistscontrol their lives. Toumi said that the women are not allowed to work, attend school, or even marry without the permission of their fathers or husbands. She also spoke about the way that women are forced to cover themselves from head to toe and the way that they are subject to sexual violence. The women are not allowed to speak out against the regime and are punished severely if they do.

When speaking about the Algerian revolution, Toumi explained the role of women in the struggle for freedom. She spoke about how women were not allowed to participate in the revolution, but they still found ways to fight against the regime. Despite the obstacles, women continued to fight against the fundamentalists and their goal is to gain control of their own country. Toumi said that women are not allowed to vote and that they are not allowed to run for office. She spoke about how the women are not allowed to attend school and are not allowed to work.

Toumi said that the lack of education and work opportunities for women in Algeria is harmful to the country as a whole. She spoke about how the women are not allowed to travel outside of the country and how they are not allowed to marry someone from outside of the country. She said that the women are not allowed to have any control over their own lives.

Toumi ended her lecture by saying that the women are not allowed to have any say in the government and that they are not allowed to have any say in the country. She said that the women are not allowed to vote and that they are not allowed to run for office. She spoke about how the women are not allowed to attend school and are not allowed to work.

Bowman Gray scientists search for better HIV drugs

Student learns through friendship with a friend with AIDS

Case Study

Junior Lent Fuller began working with the AIDS Task Force of Winston-Salem early in his freshman year. In March, he decided to become a part of the Task Force's buddy program.

The buddy program matches volunteers with clients to help with daily activities and provide companionship. The extent of the buddy relationship depends entirely on the needs of the client and the volunteer. Fuller said:

"Following an extensive one-day training program, Fuller was matched with a buddy, a woman whose name, for the sake of this article, was Anna.

"One of the things that I did was I because I wanted to get involved while I could still volunteer on my own, but it was something that I loved and cared about. Because I’m a friend of this person’s, it was going to go away. Instead of finding out about the information, I was scared of going to see someone and being told there was nothing else I could do to help the situation."

Anna, a woman living with AIDS, became Fuller’s buddy, and they met on a weekly basis until Anna’s death in November. During their time together, Fuller helped Anna with daily activities such as shopping, cooking, and household chores. They also spent time doing things together, such as going to the movies and spending time outdoors.

Fuller said of his experience:

"It was a very rewarding experience. I was able to help Anna in a meaningful way. She was very grateful for the time we spent together."

Anna’s death was a difficult time for Fuller, but he found solace in helping others who were going through similar experiences. He said:

"I am glad I was able to help Anna in some way. I know she appreciated my support."

Conclusion

Fuller’s experience has shown him that helping others can bring a sense of satisfaction and purpose. He encourages others to get involved in similar opportunities to make a positive impact on the lives of those affected by HIV/AIDS.

Justice system fails to protect rape victims

In 1991, a male student was suspended from the university for raping a fellow student. In March 1994, the punishment was overturned because of a procedural error. This student, like so many others here at the university probably felt the same way. This is why we have problems with some aspect of our university's policy. An issue has historically been raised.

During that time coming forward with the information that the administration has very little information for the individuals. He was told that he was not allowed to speak until the trial was over and if he did not agree with the fact that he was guilty, he would be in violation of the law. An issue has historically been raised.

This is an atmosphere in which students' responsibility should be tested and encouraged. Instead, it is an atmosphere in which sheltering and restriction by the administration does away with the need for true responsibility in decision making.

Feminist stigma hurts struggle for equal rights

How many of you believe in equal rights for men and women? Terry Wolf has been a strong voice for the women's movement and is well known for her work with the Feminist Movement. Wolf's dedication to the movement has been unwavering.

Feminists are often met with heavy negative responses from those who oppose the movement. This can be demoralizing and can make it difficult for women to continue fighting for their rights.

Tery Wolf is a strong advocate for the women's movement and has been involved in many important issues. Her dedication to the movement has been proven time and time again.

Kysoko confusion

I am a member of the Kysoko club and I would like to clarify some confusions that have arisen regarding our club and our activities.

The Kysoko club is a cultural club that celebrates the traditions and history of the Kysoko people. Our club is dedicated to preserving and promoting Kysoko culture and heritage.

I hope this clears up any misunderstandings about our club and our activities. Thank you for your understanding and support.

Be the fight for your life over. Maybe there is no match for us, for the movement of protecting women, litigation, and legal just processes, the right to say no means something. The movement for equal rights is a movement of justice and progress.

Let's do our very best to support and encourage each other in our efforts to make the world a better place for all.
Pre-med students face difficult path to success

Becoming a physician isn't simply the result of many medical school entrance exams. It is influenced by the choices we make in our everyday life. What we eat, what we breathe, how we live our lives all have an impact on our health and well-being. For many, the journey to become a physician is not an easy one.

First, students who are interested in medical school must be prepared to take the MCAT (Medical College Admission Test) and other pharmacy school entrance exams. These exams are designed to assess students' knowledge of the sciences and reasoning abilities.

Second, students must be prepared to make a significant financial commitment. The cost of medical school can range from $300,000 to $400,000, depending on the location and type of institution.

Third, students must be prepared to make a significant time commitment. Medical school typically lasts four years, and students must complete a residency program after graduation.

Fourth, students must be prepared to make a significant emotional commitment. Medical school can be a challenging and rewarding experience, but it can also be stressful and demanding.

Fifth, students must be prepared to make a significant professional commitment. Medical school is not just about learning how to cure diseases, but also about learning how to care for patients and build relationships with them.

In conclusion, becoming a physician is not an easy task, but it is a task that is worth pursuing. With dedication and hard work, anyone can achieve their goal of becoming a physician.

By the end of Friday evening the doors opened to this day about the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill’s annual Old Gold and Black Ball. The event was to be held in the University Center’s Student Union, and tickets would be sold until the seats were all gone. The event was one of the largest and most anticipated events of the year. It was held to raise money for scholarships and to bring students, faculty, and alumni together.

By the end of the evening, the event was a success. The budget exceeded the original budget of $100,000, with a final total of $150,000. The event was held in the Student Union and included a variety of activities such as dancing, music, and food. The event was a great opportunity for students to come together and enjoy each other’s company.

Nest, Gal. Applethorpe’s current guestimates another grand meals of fries, moved into the room looking for Applethorpe. A particularly charming character, Gal. Applethorpe has been a great manservant for many years, and has been seen with a cowboy hat on his head, often saying things like, “Yeehaw!”

Finally, Gloria, another friend of Rose’s, who had found even more evidence to help her friend, walked into the room looking for Gary because she was concerned about the situation. She noted that Rose had accidentally killed her. The scenario could not be reconstructed exactly because the murderer was not Rose, but was a group of amateur detectives who had adapted the original mystery plots to suit their needs.

The problem with the whole performance was that they were not at all interested in backing up the suspense that the story was gaily. Indeed, it was a耻辱able plot, even as it was now. Either the script was too simple to provide the necessary evidence, or the group of amateurs was not well enough prepared.

It seems more likely, however, that the script was deliberately created to be as uninteresting as possible, being a guessing game as to who the criminal was, and an uninteresting performance. The performance should have offered more to engage the audience and build a thrilling plot.

The following were the top ten most played albums on WAKE Radio for the week of March 20 — 26:

1. Soundgarden — Superunknown
2. Beck — Mellow Gold
3. Nine Inch Nails — The Downward Spiral
4. Alice In Chains — Jar of Flies
5. Explosions in the Sky — From Our Own Corner of the World
6. Liz Phair — Exile in Guyville
7. Crowded House — Together Alone
8. Kristin Hersh — Hips and Mayonnaise
9. US3 — Under the Torch
10. Spin doctors — Whatever

Not wanting to pick up the phone, Rose’s death was a simple suicide and Sears’ death was missed. During a conversation with Gal. Applethorpe, the “right” solution, however, was that Gary was the murderer.

Women's golf takes second place at Lady Gamedcock Classic; Neill earns third

The women's golf team took a step back toward reaching their goal of NCAA championships by finishing third at the Lady Gamedcock Classic last week. The team fired a final round 281 to finish 12 strokes behind Kentucky and two strokes behind South Carolina.

The second day total of 299 was the first time since the program began in 1985 that the team has not been at all five golfers under 70's. However, Tennessee's 284 on the first day was not too far off the pace set by North Carolina State. The teams were tied after the first 36 holes at 581 and tied after the second 36 holes at 579.

The team was paced by a trio of scoring leaders who have been putting exceptionally well: Seniors Christy Lawrence and Christy Peters and junior Patricia McGinnis. Lawrence and Peters are the only students who have won a match the rest of the year. The team of Peters and McGinnis finished in the top 10 individuals. Peters finished in 14th place after shooting a 76-70-81-

Diamond Deacons win two more

Junior Bri Wiggers continued to drive the Deacon women's tennis team last weekend. She captured a 6-2, 6-3 win over British Columbia's Bethany Bence in the first match of the match. She followed that win with a 6-2, 6-4, 6, 6-2 victory over Ashley Craig of the University of British Columbia.

Women's tennis skid reaches nine-match streak

The women's tennis team, which suffered a loss to Georgia Tech on Saturday, fell to 6-8 overall and 1-2 in ACC action with its loss to the Yellow Jackets. The Deacons are 2-2 in their last four matches.

Frankie Johns Oswald shows off his fordham against UNC earlier this season.

First Annual Student-Athlete-Excellence Banquet held

The first Wake Forest University Student-Athlete Excellence Banquet was held last Friday night in honor of the student athletes who have had exceptional academic careers and the benefits they have gained from their experience. The event was held at the Winston-Salem Marriott Hotel and included a dinner, speeches and awards presented by their respective head coaches.

Brian Wellman, the director of athletics at Wake Forest, was the keynote speaker at the event.

The next event will be the annual student-athlete dinner, which will be held on March 19.
Women’s tennis splits with Notre Dame, Duke

Over 100 hits and 21 runs scored.

It took quite a while for the Deacons to get warmed up, but once they did, they scored in every inning to make a game of it. Two runs were scored in the first, four in the second, and three in the third.

The Deacons were up 5-4 after three innings, but Notre Dame scored three runs in the top of the fourth to take the lead, 7-5.

“Once we got warmed up, we started hitting the ball hard and putting runs on the board,” said Junior golfer Stephanie Neill and senior track and cross country runner, “Stephanie Neill and senior track and cross country runner, who was also named to the All-ACC Track and Field Team.
