Blackfest Celebrates African-American Culture Saturday

By BRIAN WILLIAM

The stately pews of piggies. The tiny army of black and white gowns of the African nation. There are the sensations of Blackfest. The festival covered a wide range of African culture throughout the world, the Black Student Alliance students performed on the Magnolia Plaza.

The festival was important because it focused on the positive aspects of black culture," said junior Marc Delros, the president of Alpha Sigma Tau. The feature included a wide range of African culture, with a strong focus on cultural education. John Cruft, a security officer, kept every controversial performance in line.

The effects of controversial performances, such as the controversial performance of Delta Sigma Theta performed on April 4, were being managed.

Bettie Samples, a 66-year-old woman, dropped dead on the floor of the Magnolia Plaza on April 5. She died of a heart attack. She was pronounced dead at the scene, and her body was taken to the coroner's office.

The paramedics deserved immense praise, Cranfill said. He added that they were the only officers who had access to the student heart attack. The paramedics were praised for their timely response.

Springfest Begins Monday

By Eric Rice
New Phoenix

Springfest's spring can officially begin April 15, 2001, with the conclusion of the weeklong Springfest celebration. The weeklong celebration will be centered on April 15, the day of the Springfest concert, which will be sponsored annually by the Student Union. The background information leading up to the Springfest celebration will be centered on the theme of "Springfest: Virtual Reality is Based on Acceptable Campaigning." Springfest will be held in the college's main quad, and admission will be free.

The "Springfest" celebration will focus on the concept of "Virtual Reality," which will be used as the backdrop for the Springfest celebration. The concept of "Virtual Reality" will be used to create a virtual environment where students can experience the Springfest celebration in a unique and engaging way. The celebration will include various activities and events, such as live performances, games, and interactive experiences, all designed to engage students in the Springfest celebration.

Disqualified

Freshman Ben Jasse, a member of the Election Committee, informed the other members of the committee of the disqualification of a candidate. The candidate was disqualified because he had not met the requirements set forth by the committee. The decision was made after a thorough investigation of the candidate's qualifications.

Jasse said that the candidate was disqualified because he did not meet the required criteria for participation in the election. The committee had set forth a list of requirements for candidates, and the candidate did not meet all of them. The decision was made in accordance with the committee's rules and regulations.

Jasse also said that the decision was made in the best interest of the students. He said that the committee needed to maintain the integrity of the election process, and disqualifying the candidate was the best way to do that. The decision was made with the goal of ensuring that the election process was fair and just.

Jasse said that the committee would continue to follow the rules and regulations set forth by the Student Union. He said that the committee was committed to maintaining the integrity of the election process, and would continue to make decisions in accordance with the rules and regulations.

Rights' handbook says, "Residence hall staff and resident and maintenance personnel may assign students rooms atreasonable times for purposes of inspection, maintenance, or to repair rooms and furnishings or for causes of health and safety."

"Search of residence hall rooms may be made by authorized university officials, including residence hall staff, in emergencies when life or property appear to be in danger or in investigation of suspected violations of state or federal law or university policy where reasona­ble cause has been established."

The handbook says, "Surrounded meals are not in the residence halls include illegal drugs and weapons, the chronic drug problem, the socialization and the drinking problem have been caused by the legal drinking age, unregistered guests and parties or parties and alcohol on campus.

"Beds and dormitory rooms may not be used to store in dorm rooms for decorative pur­poses."

Holmes said he does not feel that having the students who are drinking alcohol in the residence halls is the problem. Those students who are drinking alcohol in the residence halls are the problem.

Holmes said he feels that, since the Lake Forest Jour­nal system is supposed to be educational, the students who were written up was a more effective alternative approach than punishment would have been.

He said he suggested to those who were members of the residence halls who were members of the residence halls, they will be governed by our university policies policies to that in the future other pledges will not have the same prob­lem.

He said he hopes the women will use the experience they had to help others.

Holmes also said he will be working with Dennis Gregory, the director of residence life and housing, in addition to working with the residence hall staff and He will be working with D. Gregory and I will be working with RLS staff and Holmes to form of notice being distributed," he said.

"He said as a result of the incident, the university is supposed to be educational; educating the students who were written up was a more effective alternative approach than punishment would have been."

"We were working to make things as comfortable as possible for all," Holmes said.

The other 13 students who had alcohol confiscated were for escorts. However, he said he recognizes that most of the stu­dents who were written up were for escort services, but there were four incidents and complaints, 32 requests for assistance, four alarms and two medical assists.

College Can Not Shield Children From Effects of Divorce

By KENNETH BONKOWSKI

The University Counseling Center has had a 20 percent increase in the number of children seeking counseling as a result of parental divorce.

"It's a very exciting time," said Professor of Sociology Ronald M. Rubin, "but it's also been a traumatic time, for both children and adults." Rubin has been counseling many students who have been going through a divorce or separation.

Grief Stages May Vary, Can Result From Any Loss

By KENNETH BONKOWSKI

Although grief is generally associated with the death of a loved one, it is a process that occurs in many different situations. Even though everyone experiences grief in different ways, there are some common characteristics that accompany these stages.

Debbie Rubin, a counselor at the University Counseling Center, said that children are very much in need of counseling as a result of parental divorce. Rubin has been counseling many students who have been going through a divorce or separation.

Dispelling Myth Of Exclusion

Two editorials to dispel myths surrounding campus race relations.

Respect Difference

The Interfraternity Council wishes to apologize to all students for the recent fall-out which has occurred because of our disregard for the dignity of others. The Interfraternity Council is composed of students of different backgrounds, races, cultures, and religious beliefs.

The lack of respect some students have for other students is inexcusable. We believe all students should have the right to pursue their studies free from harassment and their campus community free from racial slurs and offensive behavior.

The Interfraternity Council is committed to maintaining a safe and respectful environment for all students, and we encourage students to speak out against instances of disrespect.

Stop Generalizing

We are writing this letter in response to the recent statement by a member of the Interfraternity Council. We believe that all students, regardless of background, should be treated with dignity and respect.

We call on our fellow students to join us in creating a campus community that is free from racial slurs and offensive behavior.

RLH Treats Students as Inmates, Not Humans

Dean Stansel
Student Columnist

What is the responsibility of a nation toward its citizens? Does that nation have a responsibility to protect the health and safety of those citizens? What is the role of government in providing these protections? These are questions that have been raised in recent events involving Wake Forest University.

The Student Defense League, a group of students who are fighting against what they perceive as unfair treatment by the university, recently published a report alleging that the university is engaging in activities that violate the rights of students. The report, titled "RLH’s Inhuman Treatment of Students," claims that the university is treating students as if they were inmates.

According to the report, the university is violating the rights of students by conducting searches of their rooms without a warrant, by accessing their personal information without their consent, and by limiting their freedom of speech.

The report also claims that the university is engaging in "inspections," a term used by the university to describe searches of student rooms. The report states that these inspections are conducted without a warrant and that they are used as a way to justify the university’s actions.

The report goes on to say that the university is violating the rights of students by limiting their freedom of speech. The report claims that the university is using "inspections" to justify the removal of student property from their rooms, and that this is a violation of students’ First Amendment rights.

The report concludes by saying that the university is treating students as if they were inmates, and that this is a violation of their basic human rights.

The university has not yet responded to the report, and it is unclear what action, if any, will be taken as a result of the report's publication.

Battle Against Prejudice Should Start at Home

There are few things as important as fighting against prejudice. It is a battle that we all must fight, and it is a battle that we cannot afford to lose.

Prejudice is a disease that affects all of us, and it is a disease that harms us all. It harms those who are targeted, and it harms those who are targeted.

We must fight against prejudice because it is a disease that spreads. It spreads from one person to another, and it spreads from one group to another. It spreads easily, and it is hard to stop.

We must fight against prejudice because it is a disease that harms us all. It harms our ability to work together, it harms our ability to learn, and it harms our ability to live.

We must fight against prejudice because it is a disease that is preventable. We can prevent prejudice by educating ourselves about it, by educating others about it, and by working together to create a world where prejudice is no longer tolerated.

Baseball Team Falls to Camels, Drops Two of Three to Cavs

Wake Forest Offense Shut Down by Cavaliers

By Dave Breaux

The Demon Deacons baseball squad capped one of the most successful 12-game stretch of late last season with a 6-2 loss to the Virginia Cavaliers Saturday at Bailey Field in Buies Creek. The Demon Deacons, who had been 4-2 in their previous six games, were outhit 11-4 in the contest.

With one out, Dave Kruse propelled the Virginia Cavaliers to a 6-2 victory over the Demon Deacons. Virginia jumped out to a 1-0 lead in Saturday's first inning, but out of the game, and moved to second on a sacrifice, but reliever Randy McLaughlin retired the side on a ground ball.

The Demon Deacons had much better success on offense, but West Virginia starting pitcher Todd Reilly retired the side on a ground ball.

In the seventh, the Demon Deacons loaded the bases off Wake Forest starter. Women's Tennis Team Outlasted by Tar Heels, 5-4, Tops Virginia

The Tar Heels got a chance to play in two tournaments last weekend in Chapel Hill and slipping past Virginia in conference play for the Deacons, who finished with a 16-3 record in the ACC.

Following the same script as the final two matches of the year, Wake Forest drew the swift decision for the singles, but brought two of three matches in the men's match for the Deacons.

At the Deacon, the Demon Deacons of the south are still suffering from a sore decision, while Noelle Dallwitz, who turned 18 doubles to the annuals, is right down the road. Now, the Demon Deacons will face the Cavaliers, Karen Kerr and Ly-Lan Bourke, who turned 15 matches on the year's most successful team for the Deacons.

The biggest decision of the singles matches over the weekend was that they were starting to get a different look for the Deacons.

As a sophomore at Hicks in 1986-87, Rasmussen averaged 13.7 points and 8.5 rebounds. Gardner said that Rasmussen’s skills are very much like Roy’s. "He can jump, he’s quick, he’s fast and he can shoot. I think his best basketball is still ahead of him. He’s just finding himself, just letting it all go."

Rick Bell, a former player on the junior college basketball record-breaking Rambler Tubes, said Rasmussen is an excellent shooter with a strong desire to become an offensive threat. "He’s more comfortable at the five than he is at five feet. He’s a perimeter player for us."

Gardner agreed with Bell’s assessment, citing that Rasmussen’s outside shooting ability will allow opposing teams to employ more zone defenses against Wake Forest.

Gardner said that Rasmussen’s uniqueness adds on an already strong team. "We’re a very, very solid team."

Simón's Marrying Man Disappoints, Espressates

By Michael Pies

Simón Vale and John Travolta are star-crossed lovers who have several clandestine marriages in their credit — all on the set of "The Complete Wedding Ceremony." The film was shot in a picturesque Spanish village.

The film's opening scene is the wedding of Simón, a handsome and charming man, and his bride, Maria. Simón is played by John Travolta, while Maria is played by a Spanish actress.

The wedding is a joyous occasion, with friends and family attending from all over Spain. The ceremony is captured beautifully by the camera, highlighting the love and affection between Simón and Maria.

However, the film turns dark when Simón's ex-girlfriend, Maria, arrives unexpectedly and attempts to disrupt the ceremony. She Claims that Simón is her true love, and that their relationship was ended too soon.

Simón is forced to decide whether to stay with Maria or to continue with his wedding to Maria. The film explores the complexities of love and relationships, and the importance of making difficult decisions.

The film ends with a happy ending, as Simón and Maria finally get married, surrounded by their friends and family. The audience is left with a sense of joy and contentment, as they celebrate the union of Simón and Maria.

Gilbert & Sullivan's Iolanthe

ABOUT THE PLAY

Iolanthe, based on "George and Fawne" in the 1887 libretto, is a fusion of operetta and farce. After a period of exile at the bottom of a well for having married a mortal, the fairy Iolanthe is produced. She visits her son, Strephon, who is a"fly away down in the well, but his legs are mortal." Strephon, who has grown up as an Arizonian shepherd, loves Phyllis, a ward of the Lord Chancellor. Various Lords in love with Phyllis had to apportion Strephon to the young-Iolanthe. Subsequently, the Lord Chancellor decides to give Phyllis to the most eligible suitor - namely, himself. But the Queen of the Fairies intervenes. Iolanthe will go into Parliament and throw the House of Lords open to competitive examination. Iolanthe then reveals that Strephon's father is the Lord Chancellor; the Peer marries Phyllis; the Queen of the Fairies marries Private Willis; the Parliament secretary and Strephon and Phyllis are reunited.

A TALK WITH DIRECTOR JAMES DODDING

Why did you choose to direct IOLANTHE?

I have enjoyed directing Gilbert & Sullivan Operas in the past and believe that the student actors, musicians, and technicians at Wake Forest Theatre bring fresh, energetic life to these productions and make them special.

Another reason is that Gilbert & Sullivan Operas make demands on Actors and Singers and also the Orchestra. By doing a classical sort of musical, Performers can learn more about the craft of singing and smooth work, and the musicians can increase their skills by playing the music of a notable composer. This play poses a challenge and reward for everyone concerned because it features the Performers, and is at the same time enjoyable.

One of the most magical elements in Iolanthe is the wonderful story of Gilbert's An Elixir of Love. What is the set and costumes like?

The set will be a fusion of topsyturvydom and charm. The costumes will be like what any child thinks of as his fairy down to the waist, but much so much more. The finale of Act one is a very young M.P.'s division, If you have a brain and confettinough. They've got to leave that brain outside, and vote just as their leaders tell them.

In addition to its satirical songs, Iolanthe is bright with lifting lyrics of love."I'm to be married today, today," "None shall part us from each other," "Poor heart never was hit half." and more. The finale of Act I is one of the most lively in any of the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, with the Peers and the pets challenging one another in various rhythms and languages. And the nightmare patter song of the Lord Chancellor is a sort of musical, Performers can learn more with lots of regalia. We aim to make the costumes colorful and a delight to the eyes.

What about the Mascot?

Iolanthe probably contains Sullivan's best musical score. This play is regarded as having an ideal combination of libretto and music. There are many musical jokes such as Wagnerian motifs in Iolanthe, one of the longest first-half finales of any musical which consists of continuous singing for twenty minutes. Sullivan was knighted after the first production of Iolanthe and was at the peak of his musical career when he wrote it. The music is exquisite - challenging and hard, but definitely rewarding.

Any other comments?

One of the staples of Gilbert and Sullivan is the group of comic songs known as "Working Boys" in Iolanthe. The audience is not aware of all the hard work that has gone into it by so many people. We ask you to come to the Theatre and enjoy Iolanthe. Give our your laughter, attention, applause, and we will return your good faith by giving you an evening's enjoyment that makes you glad that you came to Wake Forest Theatre.
