Chapman Receives Coveted Rhodes Scholarship

By CHRISTINE VARBOLO

Richard O. Chapman, a senior math major, has been the first woman and the first student in over 20 years to win a prestigious Rhodes scholarship.

The award, presented annually to 15 students from across the country who have demonstrated the highest scholastic achievement, includes a grant to study at Oxford University for a year.

Chapman plans to study mathematics at Oxford, a field in which she has excelled.

The New Alcohol Regulations for Parties

The following are excerpts from the new alcohol regulations that took effect on Wednesday:

Proximity and severance parties can be classified as

- closed or open for the spring semester 1966.

- If a party is classified closed, it must be under the host's invitation to its messengers or guests.

- The party must be registered with the Dean of Student Affairs and a permit must be obtained by two days before the end of the week.

- The party must be supervised by two or more faculty members, which would then be responsible for any violations of the regulations that might occur.

- The concept was designed to allow students to attend closed parties without having to wait in long lines.

Brings Together Graduate Students and Faculty
By LESTER ROGELL

The first Graduate Student Association of the GSA was held Feb. 16. A panel of graduate students and faculty met to share their views on the role and mission of graduate study at the national level and to identify primary research areas.

The purpose of the program was to bring together students from across the country to discuss common research interests. In the future, the GSA will sponsor a graduate student council to promote communication and collaboration among graduate students.

The GSA has the potential to provide a national voice for graduate students, who often feel isolated and disconnected from their peers. By bringing together graduate students from across the country, the GSA can provide a platform for discussion and collaboration.

The GSA is open to all graduate students at the university and is free to attend. For more information, please visit the GSA’s website at gsa.university.edu.

The Sigma Nu recently received the letters on their honor after being recognized by the university's faculty association.

The lather also said that finding an available day to use the Chapel was difficult and limited time in the facility due to pressures. If they had to decide on another night, top UI students said they would make the decision again because they said they were not as interested in the law student support.

However, in the future, UI will probably be more careful to be in the presence of hands. They can be a skill for younger, less-well-versed hands which carry a smaller price.

This may not mean the end of good occasions for Wafeo Forest students. The letter wrote that the group the hands could be stressed with the formal Colleges which would offer students lower prices, including transportation to Gonzales, which would be in the new rock and roll bands.

In November 1984, an agreement was reached between the Fraternity and the C,UI. The final decision at the six-hour hour because the hand had forgot about another engagement in a film to video.

Car pooling and use of these resources were beyond their control, but still have CUI’s a credibility.

To open an offer to students about this week, this CUI and part of the problem in Wafeo Chapel is a very difficult place to hold a conference because it only seats 3,500. With a smaller area, the price for each ticket must be higher and because more expensive items had to be purchased, the ticket price was limited with four series of equip- ment. Wafeo will rent a third of a for Wafeo Chapel, they had to bring it as is because the extra space on their tour were to larger areas. Therefore it is more expensive to book such a hand as opposed to a smaller hand which would have been equipment.

Manners Before Human Rights

Black South Africans are more concerned about their political rights than their economic rights.

I don't think this is hyperbolic; I do believe that the whole attitude of the South African government towards political rights is very much the same as the Japanese government towards economic rights. If you look at the way in which many Western governments have been dealing with their economic problems, you will see that they have not been concerned with the political rights of their citizens.

In other words, while we are concerned about the economic rights of our citizens, they are more concerned about the political rights of their citizens. While the South African government has been trying to improve the situation, the Japanese government has not.

We hear a lot about new and different policies, but after a while, it seems that they are not doing anything to improve the situation. The Japanese government has not been doing anything to improve the situation.

The future of the relationship between Japanese and South African is still uncertain. However, I am hopeful that things will improve, especially if the government of South Africa continues to implement economic policies that are beneficial for the country.

"It's beautiful. It's magic. It's a game that requires everything from the brain to the muscles to the heart. It's a game that can change the course of history."

The Long Range Summit Goals

Ten months have passed since the summit meeting in Geneva. I know that it won't be simple.

But before I continue, I want to reiterate the importance of our mission. After all, we are the most important summit in the world. It is not just about the different issues, but also about the general state of the world. I believe that the world needs a summit to discuss solutions. In the past, we have seen that a summit can bring about changes.

Shells, wait dialogues before arms control. What dialogue? What is dialogue? It is the process of communication between states. Dialogue is necessary because it is the only way to prevent war. Without dialogue, there can be no peace.

The Truth in Journalism

"Media has become quite a popular fast food these days. Everybody gets in the act from 'snarky' bloggers crusading against the old CBS newsroom to middle-aged housewives complaining about too many images of naked bodies on the internet."

"The criticism of political parties is real, not that it's real in the media. Support of this argument says the press is too sensitive. If the press was really good, the press would be lose good and when they look at the truth, they make it look bad. This is the basis of all the criticism of the press."

The criticism of the press is without base, the press is more responsible than ever before. It is all that we can do and it is all that we can do."

"You know, I don't think we can ever win the war."

"In my opinion, I just hope we can get back to the way it was."

"Well, I'm not sure if they can."

"We're playing. We can't play without a quarterback."

"We're winning. We have to do something about it."

"Back then, it was unworkable. It was a real challenge against Hopkins. Remember what happened last month against Seattle Pacific."

"We're winning. We can't win without a quarterback."

"Really? Do you think the boy is a student or anything. Dick, I have to say I'm a fan of Hopkins. Scow added a question about darkness and the people of Hopkins didn't even look at me."

"Really? Me? Me, the same Hopkins?"

"No, I don't think that's his name."

"What did you mean?"

"I was just wondering if you might want to get paid somewhere from Hopkins State or not."

"No, of course."

"I think Hopkins will ever be back in the mix."

"No. They don't even need you."

"Peter Wood, you are the best."

"I think Hopkins probably made him an offer he couldn't refuse."

"I suppose, I just hope we don't get caught like that guy at UCLA when they offered Resnick a position or something."

Gonzales to Play in Artists Series

By ED BONILLA

Violinist Robert Gonzales makes the season's last Israeli concert in Wednesday's Artists Series, a program designed to expose students to the works of lesser-known composers. Gonzales will perform several solo and chamber music programs, presenting music of the 19th and 20th centuries. His program will include works by Brahms, Dvorak, and Schoenberg. The concert will begin at 8:30 p.m. in the Fine Arts Auditorium. Admission is free.

New Theme Planned For Literary Society

By JEFFREY P. CHAMBERLAN

For the first time in years, the Literary Society has introduced a creative element to its program. The theme for the new year will be "The Masks of Drama," focusing on the multi-faceted nature of actors and the roles they play. The program will include readings, discussions, and performances, and will be open to all members of the campus community.

Christmas Music Brightens the Pit

By MARIA JENKINS

This week, the pit will be illuminated with the sounds of Christmas music. The Santa Claus Carolers will be on hand to sing holiday favorites, and the Pitrockers will provide a lively musical atmosphere.

Old Gold and Black
Deacons Have Their Day in the Sun

By KEITH W. SYDNEY
Managing Sports Editor

“Deacons,” a term often associated with a certain Italo-American, often evokes “hustle” when it is pronounced by his religious followers. It is an oddity in the world of organized sports. It is a team who have to; have the ability to; have the drive to. They represent the leadership of the Southern Methodist Church. They are the Dallas Cowboys. The Deacons are the Dallas Cowboys..

It was a dark and stormy night in the Metrodome, as the Deacons prepared to take on the powerful Minnesota Vikings. The atmosphere was charged with electricity, as the fans screamed and cheering filled the air. The Deacons’ coach, Coach H. B. Smith, stood at the sidelines, his eyes fixated on the plays unfolding on the field. The crowd was electric, the stakes were high.

The Deacons kicked off the game with a powerful punt, setting a tone for the match. The Vikings, however, were not to be underestimated. They returned the favor with a strong kick, setting the stage for an exciting game.

It was a back-and-forth affair, with both teams displaying excellent defense and skill on offense. The Deacons’ quarterback, Quarterback Q. R. Smith, threw a beautiful pass to Wide Receiver W. F. Johnson, who caught the ball and ran for a touchdown, giving the Deacons a 7-0 lead.

The Vikings fought back, with Running Back R. B. Brown scoring a touchdown of his own. The game tightened, as both teams pressed for an advantage.

But in the end, it was the Deacons who emerged victorious, winning the game 17-14. The crowd roared as the Deacons’ players ran off the field, celebrating their hard-fought victory. The Deacons’ fans were ecstatic, knowing that their team had once again risen to the occasion, and delivered a performance that could be celebrated.

The Deacons’ victory was not just a victory for the team, but for their community, for their faith, and for their perseverance. They had shown once again that with hard work, determination, and a strong community behind them, anything was possible.

As the crowd cleared out of the Metrodome, the Deacons gathered around their coach, sharing a moment of camaraderie. They knew that the road ahead would be challenging, but they were ready. The Deacons are the Dallas Cowboys. They are the Deacons. And they will always be the Deacons.
