Dr. Shields Joins WF In Physics

By BAY ROLLINS

"The American University of St. Thomas" in New York City makes "Western Union" in the physics department of the University of St. Thomas, with the appointment of Dr. William H. Shields, a native of St. Thomas, a small town near where Dr. Shields comes from, to the University of St. Thomas. The vital issue is the role played by Dr. Shields in his first year of teaching.

Dr. Shields attended the University of St. Thomas, schools of Mercy and Moral Mill College.

Dr. William H. Shields is a graduate of the University of St. Thomas, where he received the B.S. degree. At Pennsylvania State University he received the M.S. degree in physics, and his doctorate in the field of physics. Before beginning his Western Union, he served as a professor of physics at Pennsylvania State University.

During the next year it has been associated with Prof. Walter H. Burleson, where he has been working on a research project involving the development of a new type of electron microscope for high-speed photography.

The project was the result of a series of articles published in the physics literature, and the interest of the research is in the field of physics and the nature of the physical universe.

Scholarship List Given By Bursar

One of the first things to do when researching for scholarships is to look for those that are specifically for your major or field of study. For example, if you are interested in computer science, you should look for scholarships that are specifically for computer science students. This can help you narrow down your search and increase your chances of finding a scholarship that is a good fit for you.

POISON IVY

One of the most common skin irritants, poison ivy, can cause a variety of symptoms, including rashes, itching, and swelling. The symptoms can be mild or severe, and they can last for several days to several weeks. In some cases, the symptoms can become more severe and require medical attention. It is important to take steps to prevent and treat poison ivy to avoid complications.

What's with the Committee of 177

Born three months ago in the midst of a campaign to halt the partition of South Africa, the Committee of 177 has been publishing reports and petitions, with the aim of combating the prejudice and instability of the situation.

The committee has been actively working towards the goal of bringing about meaningful change and promoting understanding among people of different cultures and backgrounds.

But the committee's efforts have been met with resistance and challenges, as they seek to address the root causes of prejudice and inequality.

The next meeting of the committee is scheduled for next week, and they hope to make significant progress in their efforts towards a more just and equitable society.

A Brief for Stephen

Little more than a year ago, Stephen Nettles found a new home. Behind the bloom of flowers was an old, rambling mansion on a thinly-planted college campus.

The young man had been a crucible in the crucible of change, a symbol of the new American spirit. But the mansion was more than just a house; it was a place of refuge and inspiration for the young man.

The mansion was the birthplace of a new American youth, a place where the young man could find solace and strength.

But the mansion was also a place of conflict, a place where the young man had to confront his own fears and limitations.

The mansion was the source of hope and inspiration, a place where the young man could find the courage to face the challenges of life.

The mansion was a testament to the power of love and faith, a place where the young man could find the strength to overcome the obstacles of prejudice.

The mansion was the symbol of a new American spirit, a place where the young man could find the inspiration to create a better world.

But the mansion was also a place of pain and struggle, a place where the young man had to confront his own limitations and weaknesses.

The mansion was a place of transformation, a place where the young man could find the strength to rise above the obstacles of prejudice.

Students Like Records Best
When the student democracy polls "turn it over," they are more likely to lean your reliability on the radio, according to a recent national poll of student preferences.

An over-whelming majority of college men and women surveyed by the Associated College Press expressed preference for radio over recent players.

Such a preference is more widespread among women, of course, than by men, a large percentage of whom said "no idea," the poll showed.

The question posed by the ACP was, "Do you listen to the radio?" Replies were taken in seven states.

ACP indicates that a recording of over 9 per cent of music in the record-player's radio in contests. Most of the music was played by radio, with over 20 per cent of the first and second time music being played by radio.

Only two per cent of the music was tape, or a recording from a radio station.

The data will be tabulated for "Tuned Entertainment" in the current test, "The history of the radio," to be taken in the fall term.

Deacon Dope

Wake Forest's winter sports schedule will hit its peak this week with six Deacons' teams either working out or holding contests here. In addition to the normal winter workouts for the basketballers, rollers, swimmers, and track men, Coach Paul Amos's football squad will begin its practice Thursday afternoon for the upcoming season. The men will leave Reynolds Gymnasium for outside drills, the first such practice against the football diorama. Wednesday night Temple's Owls will bring a tough squad to Memorial Stadium to face Wake's engines. It will mark the fifth consecutive game in which the Owls have faced a team ranked among the nation's top five,aukee.

The Owls, ranked by All-American candidate Gay Rodgers, were favored to win the home game, but by a score of 16 to 14, the Owls were dropped to fourth place in the polls. This is the fifth consecutive game in which Wake Forest has faced a team ranked among the nation's top five,

ACC Tops . . . Swim Meet

This season should show that the ACC is one of the top leagues in the country. So far, it is proving that the ACC is in a league of its own.

Thursday afternoon in the Hanes Field House, coach Cannon's swimming team will take the campus for an emotion-charged against Coach Cannon's Swimming team. Both squads are noted equally in style and own victory streak. Cannon says the rivalry is both instantaneous and the wins came at North Carolina and here.

Coach Cannon isn't ready to say that his ownself will outplay the Tarheels, but a battle in the eye will last week and that's what he is thinking. "It'll be the closest-routed meet of the year," he said, "and it ought to be worth watching for students." With canoe made tremendous strides in swimming this year, having over this fall with only three seniors, Cannon has been able to develop several swimmers and recycle some athletes and transfer students into working out until the Deacons can swim out, meet with a respectable mark.

Johnsons . . . Vancouver

George Johnson, brother of Wake's football team last fall, has resigned his post at the University of Vancouver, Canada. He will return to the University of North Carolina this week. His resignation was announced by President Johnson on Tuesday by the University of North Carolina.

"The looking forward to it," Johnson said. "I'm returning to Vancouver, but I think I'm really going to enjoy it." He added that he had played at Montclair State, N.J., and that he will return to the Linz and to begin working on Coach Cannon's squad.

Only one ACC player on the squad in Vancouver is Ed Yaroslav at Marysville Yaroslav, who transferred from Canadian last fall. Vancouver, a town of about 150,000 on Canada's west coast, the Canadian hockey reception in Vancouver.

The three other squad members to play track. During his three seasons at Wake Forest, the Johnsons were the only two senior athletes in both track and tennis.

Deacons Go Up . . . Carolina next on the long end of the scores in Friday night's game, 42-21, but Wake Forest's win for the game was more than one. On the left photograph Andy Bussman watches Olga Broadway in the air to shoot at UNC's Lee Shaffer (12) and Harvey Taylor (13) attempts to block him. In the center picture Dave Woodruff was fouled for two points while on the right photograph Hardie Batcuh Wendel (15) to attempt to block a block shot.
