The contract Wake Forest signed was for a specific debate date that the commission releases. The contract did not specify whether Wake Forest would host a vice presidential debate if selected, she said. Following the announcement of Wake Forest's selection, that said Wake Forest was one of two schools selected to host a vice presidential debate, those students who wished to participate signed a pledge. At the end of the pledge, they were told this week that the debate would not be held at Wake Forest. When Bowers and Donna Constantinople, a student leader, said, "We want the people to be heard.

Students who are registered to vote in Wake Forest's nine campus post offices will not be able to register for voting in later primaries or the upcoming presidential election can apply by visiting or writing their county board of elections.

Students may have to stand in line at the campus post office near the library and in the student union and student center to register for voting in the next election. Political science professor John C. Bowers, whose students at the Winston-Salem Journal, has written extensively on the political process. He said the organization is encouraging people to vote in upcoming elections. The registration deadline for voting in the June 9 primaries or the upcoming presidential election is May 31, and the deadline for registering to vote in the August 16 runoff election is July 12. The registration deadline for voting in the November 3 general election is October 13.

Wake Forest students can find information about the registration process and the election at the Wake Forest University Student Affairs Web site at http://www.wfu.edu/registration. The afternoon of the event ran this week on Magnolia Court. The weather may not be warm enough to get a pre-summer tan, but students welcomed the change from cold, wintry days.

Racial Tensions Improve Relations

By Kelly Green

Thirty-two pairs of black and white students are participating in a campus-wide partners program to improve race relations through mutual interactions.

The partners were chosen from different majors and years, but all include one black and one white. The Minority Affairs Executive Advisory Board developed the program. It aims to end racism by the end of the semester.

"I think of the best times at two functions," Student Government President Will Knecht said. "They were super. You meet a lot of people through the program."

The partners program was created about a month ago, President Thomas H. Braun Jr. and Knecht took the idea from a local community program called Leadership Winston-Salem. The executive committee invited Green leaders, undergraduates and minority students to a talk-aloud discussion.

Officials Debate For Dole, Dukakis

By Joshua C. Johnson
Associate News Editor - 2/21/88

Representatives from the Bob Dole for President and Mike Dukakis for President campaigns addressed Wake Forest University students last Wednesday in the Scott Gymnasium.

Senators who attend the conference are elected by the students of the participating schools. The conference was held for the first time last year.

Dole's campaign representative, Bob Rothrock, compared the current economic conditions to the economic hardships that America faced during the Great Depression. He said that Dole's plan would help alleviate the current economic situation.

Dukakis also addressed the conference, saying that his administration would work to improve the economy. He mentioned the need for a strong dollar and the importance of small businesses.

The conference was a chance for students to learn more about the candidates and their policies. It also provided an opportunity for the candidates to hear student concerns and ideas.

Committee Proposes Changes in Housing

By Gregory Carson
Old Gold and Black Staff Writer

A committee of students, residence hall directors, and consulting officials are preparing proposals for changes in housing policies. The proposals are being developed in response to a survey conducted last year, which revealed that many students were dissatisfied with the current housing system.

The proposals include changes to the housing selection process, the allocation of housing to freshmen, and the maintenance of dormitories.

The committee's goal is to create a more equitable and efficient housing system that meets the needs of all students. The proposals will be presented to the student government for consideration in the coming weeks.

The survey was initiated by Gregory last year to get information about student preferences toward the overall housing pattern.

Eight percent of residence hall students participated in the survey. The survey revealed that most students were in favor of some changes, such as quicker access to housing, better maintenance of dormitories, and more flexibility in housing assignments.

Gregory would not specify which changes would be proposed, but said that the committee would review the survey results and consider other factors before making any decisions.

A proposal to change the current housing system will be presented to the student government in the coming weeks. The committee will make its final decisions at the legislative meeting on March 1.
A Rule of Law?

I am an editor at the University of California, Berkeley, and I believe that the issue of the recent strike by the Graduate Students' Union is one of the most important and complex that we face today. The strike is not only about the immediate issue of pay and working conditions, but also about the future of higher education and the role of the university in society.

The strike is a protest against the university's failure to provide adequate resources and support for graduate students, who are the backbone of many of our academic programs. The union's demands, which include higher pay, better benefits, and more autonomy in curriculum and governance, are not excessive. They are demands that are common to many universities and are necessary for the university to function effectively.

The university, on the other hand, has been unwilling to negotiate in good faith and has imposed its own solutions on the union. This is a violation of the basic principles of democracy and the rule of law. The university has the right to run the institution, but it does not have the right to dictate the terms of the contract to the union.

We must support the union in its fight for a fair contract and urge the university to negotiate in good faith. We must also support the students who are affected by the strike and encourage them to participate in the process of governance and decision-making.

In conclusion, the strike is not only about the immediate issue of pay and working conditions, but also about the future of higher education and the role of the university in society. We must support the union in its fight for a fair contract and encourage the university to negotiate in good faith.
Inter-Triangle Choice

Until they, do not have the advantage of a "true," national representative to give their girls a voice. After all, Mr. Meinert, in his very special people, know the ability of the Wake Forest women to show passion and loyalty to our school. I

After a year in the Triangle, I can tell you that Wake Forest's female students are just as passionate and devoted to their school as any other female student at a top university. The women at Wake Forest are not just another number in a stereotypical sorority, but a guarantee of voter in our national political life.

The advertising of the university folds the past, the present, and the future together. As of this past year, the university has had a drastic decrease in enrollment rates for student-athletes and female students. The university has failed to provide a clear and equitable portion to the operations of the university (Old Gold and Black, Feb. 5, p. 3). Instead of providing female students with a voice, the university has failed to provide them with the resources they need to succeed.

The administration of Wake Forest has received from corporations like Men's Wearhouse and Men's Wearhouse, Inc. an equitable and generous donation. This donation is a gesture of support and appreciation for the university's contribution to the community. The university has also received a generous donation from the National Football League (NFL) and the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) to support the university's athletics programs. These donations are crucial to the university's ability to compete at the highest level of intercollegiate athletics.

It may seem as though the administration of Wake Forest has failed to provide female students with a voice. However, the university has made significant strides in promoting gender equality and inclusion. The university has implemented policies to ensure that female students have a voice in the decision-making process of the university. The university has also created programs to support female students in their academic and extracurricular pursuits. These efforts have contributed to a more inclusive and diverse campus community.

The administration of Wake Forest has also failed to provide female students with the resources they need to succeed. The university has failed to provide adequate funding for the women's athletics programs. The university has also failed to provide adequate funding for the women's academic programs. The university has failed to provide adequate funding for the women's extracurricular programs. The university has failed to provide adequate funding for the women's community service programs. Debate

Wake Forest submitted its application to the committee on its requirements outside the university. Connor said.

The contract requires Wake Forest and Wake Forest to raise $377,000 to produce the debate. William Joyce, the vice president for university relations, said that his office has already secured more than $377,000 from area companies.

"The corporate support has been tremendous," Joyce said.

Wake Forest had begun testing the debate when junior Mike Mouse, the associate vice president of student affairs, mentioned the idea to Thomas B. G. Wilson in March. Smith persuaded the idea to the Educational Council of the university in mid-April. The Executive Council allotted $20,000 to the Presidential Debate Committee approved by President Thomas E. Hearn Jr. to explore the possibilities of hosting a debate.

College Democrats have held informational meetings featuring representatives from the campaign of Albert Gore, Michael Dubke, Richard Gephardt, Jesse Jackson and Ross Perot. The organization is also planning to hold a forum with student candidates to rally support and establish their candidate's platform, Smith said. The forum will include student representatives from the campaigns of Dubke, Gore, Jackson and Gephardt.

College Democrats are not registering voters but are urging students to vote in the Super Tuesday primaries in their home district. They will be helping students register and get absentee ballots in order to vote in the presidential elections this fall.

Smith said the organization is working to expand its membership base and increase its funds to support candidate behind the Democratic candidate.

The problem of controlling the legislature is in no less eminent today than it was at the time of the American founding, she said.

"Free government, in order to be genuinely free, must control the passions and regulate the interests, of society, and in turn must be controlled by the reason of the public," Sheenan said.

The students believe the Federalist is encouraged to uncover the present mechanics - such as operation of power, think the design of government - in light of the highest ends of the government. "They are devices intended not only to exempt the branches of the government but to assist in the formation of a coalition of a just majority," she said.

One of the most important invasions of liberty is the existence ofeidged and interesteaned motions, Sheenan said. She, although Constitutional mechanisms can assist virtue and enlightened immunities, cannot provide for their existence, she said.

Georgia Asaupio, a professor of Constitutional law and International law at Loyola University Chicago, said she, although Constitutional mechanisms can assist virtue and enlightened immunities, it cannot provide for their existence, she said.

Baseball Team Wins One, Loses Two Against Florida International in Miami

By John O'Brien

On Friday afternoon, the Wolfpack baseball team began a tough start in the season last weekend by winning one of three home matches against Central Florida. Florida won both games 9-2 on Friday and 12-7 on Saturday.

Saturday's game was intense and full of tension. The Deacons played well and put up a good fight, but unfortunately lost the game.

The win marked the Deacons' first victory of the season and raised their overall record to 4-6. The team is now 2-1 in the ACC. The loss dropped their record to 2-6 in the ACC and 4-8 overall.

Next week, the Deacons will face off against Florida State in Tallahassee. The game will be a crucial one in the ACC standings.

North Carolina Drops Deacons

By John White

At Chapel Hill, North Carolina won 7-3 over the Deacons in a tough first round game on Friday. The Deacons regrouped on Saturday but lost to the Wolfpack 19-12.

The Deacons started strong in Friday's game but were unable to hold on to their lead. The Wolfpack scored 12 runs in the second inning to take control of the game. Despite the loss, the Deacons showed great heart and fought back in the second half.

On Saturday, the Deacons were able to cut the lead to 6-3 in the sixth inning. However, the Wolfpack scored four runs in the seventh inning to put the game out of reach.

The Deacons continue to struggle on the road and will need to improve their performance if they hope to make a run in the ACC tournament.

Women's Tennis Team Downs Virginia Tech, 8-1

By Elle Pfeffer

On Friday, the women's tennis team defeated Virginia Tech 8-1. The Deacons won all six singles matches and took two of three doubles matches.

The Deacons dominated the first set, winning 6-1 and 6-0. In the second set, the Deacons won 6-4. The team improved their overall record to 12-7 and 5-3 in the ACC.

The Deacons will face off against Miami in their next match on Sunday. The match will be crucial in determining the ACC tournament seedings.

Tar Heels Entertain Top-Ranked Temple, Duke to Visit Kansas

The Tar Heels fell to 8-4 overall and 2-3 in the conference with Wednesday's 84-54 loss to Temple in Chapel Hill. The Tar Heels also moved to 0-3 on the road for the season. Wade Power committed a season-high 21 turnovers in the game, breaking the previous high of 22 against both Campbell and Georgia Tech.

Head Coach Bob Stack said, "We were nervous on one hand, but our experience was certainly better than the first time we played them (Jan. 28)."

The Tar Heels also had 38 fresh in the game, while the Tar Heels committed 21 TOS and the Deacons were seven to the bonus.

"The thing I find interesting is that the more who press and stop the ball, we don't get in the bonus," Stack said. "The Deacons also had 38 fresh in the game, while the Tar Heels committed 21 TOS and the Deacons were seven to the bonus."

The Tigers held N.C. State to eight of 24 from the ACC action with a win. Wake Forest's low of eight Tuesday night in Cameron Indoor Stadium was 26.

The Special Events Committee of Student Union is now accepting designs for the Springfest T-Shirt Contest. Deadline: 5:00 pm February 26.

ARMY RESERVE OFFICERS TRAINING CORPS
Wille Exceeds As Floor General

By Russell Blake

Tribune Staff Writer

Every successful basketball team needs a floor general to direct the offense and provide leadership on the court. For the Wake Forest women's basketball squad, Cathy Wille is that floor general.

"She has an admirable job in point guard Cathy Wille has done an admirable job in keeping her shoulders because point guard, said. "When you're a point guard, you have to be the leader on the court because most people on the court depend on you to call the plays."

Wille agreed with Wille, saying, "She's our catalyst on the court and provides leadership for this team. I'm thinking if we do our job this week and next week, we can make the NCAA tournament."
