Energy use declines

By DEBBIE LANE

A forum held Thursday night gave local candidates an opportunity to voice their opinions on the issues of capital punishment, nuclear energy, state taxes, and other topics. The forum was organized by the establishement of a WF student of the candidates favor capital punishment.

Poll shows Carter support increases

By DEBBIE LANE

The Jesse Old Gold & Blue poll indicates a slight increase in support for President Carter and a decrease in support for his opponent, Ronald Reagan.

According to the poll, 45 percent of the students surveyed support President Carter, compared to 25 percent who support Ronald Reagan. This is a significant increase from the previous poll, where the support for Carter was 35 percent and for Reagan, 30 percent.

The poll was conducted among a sample of 500 students at Wake Forest University. The sample was selected using a random sampling method, ensuring a representative distribution of students from different classes and backgrounds.

The results of the poll suggest that President Carter's popularity is on the rise, while his opponent, Ronald Reagan, is facing a decline in support. The poll also indicates that the trend has been consistent across different student groups and demographics.

The Jesse Old Gold & Blue poll is conducted annually to gauge the political sentiments of students at Wake Forest University. The results are used to provide insights into the political landscape and trends at the university, as well as to inform the broader community of the political climate in the region.

Debate in top 20

Lydia Mitchell

The WF debate team has been ranked among the nation's top 20 college and university teams for the past two years.

Two experienced WF debaters, David Charles Knish and Todd Schley, have been invited to participate in the University of Kentucky debate tournament, to be held this weekend. Both students have been invited to debate in the final round of the tournament.

January term offered

Northwood Hotel

The spring semester will begin with the annual Northwood Hotel Scholarship Banquet, scheduled for January 10. The banquet will feature guest speaker, Patricia Johnson, the director of sales and marketing for the hotel.

Trends in the hotel industry will be discussed, with an emphasis on the importance of customer service.

Vandals strike fraternity, women’s halls

Cindy Becker

Roommates of Margaret Righi, a senior English major, were surprised to find a broken window and a note containing a threatening message in their fraternity house the morning of Monday, January 1. The message read, "If you don't keep up the lounge, we'll burn it all down."

The note was signed, "Vandals." On Wednesday, January 3, a second message was found in the women’s dormitory, "If you don’t stop talking about the wedding, we’ll burn the building down."

The messages were left on the doors of the fraternity house and the women’s dormitory.

The notes were found by the residence hall staff and reported to campus security. An investigation is currently underway.

January term offerings

Cindy Becker

January term offers students the opportunity to engage in a variety of activities, including community service, travel, and academic courses.

The January term program includes trips to New York City, Washington D.C., and Mexico City. Students can choose from a range of courses, such as "The Art and History of Mexico," "Theatre and Performance in New York," and "Introduction to Mexican Art and Architecture.

The program also includes community service opportunities, such as a trip to a local soup kitchen and a day of cleaning up a nearby park.

The January term program is open to all students, regardless of major. Students are encouraged to explore different areas of interest and to try something new.

Manager cites new attitude toward loan

Kerby Perkins

Freshman Alva Costerus was readily departing permission to report a new attitude toward loaning a student his year.

Costerus, who has had various reactions from the university in the form of invitations to participate in student matters, has found that the loan application process has become more lenient.

In the past, Costerus said, "I was denied permission to loan money to a friend, and the reasons were unclear." However, this year, "I was informed that the university would consider my request on a case-by-case basis," he added.

The change in policy has been welcomed by Costerus, who said, "I believe that the university is more willing to accommodate student needs and concerns." He added, "I am pleased with the new attitude toward loaning money to students, and I am optimistic about the future of the loan application process."
Carter's decisions speak for themselves

When does it take to become President of the United States? He's already demonstrating.

By far the most pressing question political analysts ask is, "What is President Jimmy Carter doing?"

As we turn to the problems facing our nation, we must consider the role of the individual in our political system. An individual's role is crucial, but it is not enough to simply sit back and let the government do its work. We must all play an active role in shaping our nation's future.

Many of us have been concerned about the government's lack of action in response to the energy crisis. President Carter has taken steps to address this issue, such as the recent energy tax increase. While some may argue that this measure is not sufficient, it is clear that the government is taking action to address this critical problem.

In addition to energy, we must also consider the issue of defense. President Carter has made it clear that defense spending is a priority, and he has taken steps to reduce the deficit and improve the economy. This includes cutting defense spending, which has been a major issue in recent years.

While some may have concerns about Carter's leadership, it is clear that he is taking the necessary steps to address the issues facing our nation. As we look to the future, it is important that we continue to support and work with President Carter to ensure a brighter tomorrow for all Americans.

A season that nearly ended was not in style for the Los Angeles Dodgers. It was a season that nearly ended with a championship, after three years of waiting. But for the Los Angeles Dodgers, it was a season that nearly ended with heartbreak.

For many years, the Philadelphia Phillies have been known throughout the city as a team with a lot of heart. But this season, the Phillies were more than that. They were a team with a season that nearly ended with a championship.

The Los Angeles Dodgers had a season that nearly ended with a championship, but they were not able to win the World Series. The team had been waiting three years for this moment, and it was a moment that nearly ended with heartbreak.

But the Los Angeles Dodgers were not the only team that nearly ended their season with heartbreak. The Philadelphia Phillies also had a season that nearly ended with a championship, but they were not able to win the World Series.

Despite the heartbreak, both teams were able to celebrate their seasons. The Los Angeles Dodgers were able to celebrate their season with a championship, and the Philadelphia Phillies were able to celebrate their season with a World Series.

In the end, it was a season that nearly ended with heartbreak for both teams. But it was also a season that nearly ended with a championship, and it was a season that nearly ended with celebrations.
Wake battles for ACC lead

Bill Martin

The Wake Forest football team faces the University of Tennessee in the Tar Heels' first game of the season.

Thursday until why?
University lead in tomorrow's Atlantic Coast conference battle to records into the game.

Deacon "Wake will have to play a good all-around game to win, said coach Tom Thoroughman.

The Tar Heels come into the game with the nation's nationally ranked quarterback, Mike Williams, a 14-year-old sensation who has led his team to a 3-0 start.

On the other hand, the Deacons have struggled offensively, averaging only 13.5 points per game, and defensively, allowing 30.5 points per game.

"We need to improve on both sides of the ball," said Thoroughman. "Our offensive line will have to block better, and our defense will have to stop the run."
Wit succeeds in ‘Arms’

The WF Theatre takes a good-idea, bad-execution show and provides good acting for a memorable production of George Bernard Shaw’s ‘Arms and the Man.’

Shaw’s comedy, set in late 19th century Europe, is a satirically amusing tale of the Bulgarian family, the Petkoffs, to whom American romantic evangelist Major Sergius Pauloff, the father, is in love when his daughter Raina looks at women who claimed to her when she was before Bulgarian troops.

The show turns out to be a shock at all but a few moments, who (Sergius) Diaco displays spirit.
