Mary Dillahunt, an associate professor of English, and Gary Lgungquist, an associate professor of music, have prepared a syllabus for a new class to teach homosexual literature. The course strikes a balance between a literary tradition, since famous writers such as Edgar Allan Poe, Mark Twain, and Audre Lord, an autobiographical work by black author and poet Lucille Clifton, received $64,479.66, a 3.74 percent increase over last year’s allocation. Repeal said the recommendations were the result of a budget review process. "Organizations were asked to tell us how they spend their money," she said. "We looked at that..." the paper’s budget. He said: "We attempted to buy back a textbook at half its original price or average, depending upon the year the book was in print. Students will be able to sell textbooks back to the Campus Bookroom starting Dec. 7 and continuing through Jan. 7, 1992. The program, which is an expansion of the buy-back program in effect last year by Sigma Phi Epsilon, makes available textbooks to students who no longer need or want to keep the books. The program, which is designed to help students raise money for their organizations or for their own personal use, is not a new idea. The Student Government Association started the program last year and found it to be very successful. They sold almost 30 percent of the original price of books, depending upon the age of the book.}

Students who are interested in selling books are asked to bring their books to the Campus Bookroom at the early date to ensure that they will receive the maximum amount for them. The book must be in good condition, and the Student Government Association will pay the buyer of the book the following amounts: $30, $20, $10, $5, $2, for textbooks purchased at the lowest price guaranteed. The program is open to all students, and all textbooks sold will be donated to the H.E.A. (Health Education Activities) program, which will distribute them to local schools and community organizations. The program was launched in 1990, and it has been very successful. Since then, the program has collected more than $10,000 in textbooks, and the Student Government Association has donated more than $2,000 to local schools and community organizations. The program is expected to be very successful this year, and it is hoped that the Student Government Association will continue to provide this valuable service to the students of Wake Forest.

Speakers discuss racism in series

By BRIGITTE ASSELL

An article in the Wake Forest Daily, the student newspaper, has ignited discussion on the topic of race and discrimination on campus.

The article, written by Matt Rebello, a junior English major, was published last week and has sparked a series of lectures and discussions on the issue of racism on campus. Rebello, who is a member of the Black Student Alliance, said that the article was intended to raise awareness of the racism that still exists on campus.

"There are still some very real issues of racism on campus," Rebello said.
"We need to talk about them and work to address them in a meaningful way.

The article has been widely discussed on campus, with many students expressing their support for Rebello and his views.

Rebello's article has also drawn criticism, however, from some students who feel that it is too negative and does not offer a solution to the problem.

"We need to focus on what we can do to make things better, not just complain about the way things are," said one student.

The issue of race and discrimination on campus is continuing to be discussed and debated, with students and faculty working to find ways to address the problem.

German protest violence

BERLIN — Over 350,000 people filled the German capital today to protest against the government's continuing crackdown on people and groups who they say are committing acts of right-wing violence. The scheduled rally was supposed to be the largest in German history. But the police ordered the rally to be broken up after several people were injured in clashes with police. At least 10 people were injured in the clashes, and several police cars were damaged. The organizers of the rally said they would demand a public inquiry into the actions of the police. The rally was the latest in a series of events that have led to increased tension between the government and the protesters. The government has accused the protesters of committing acts of violence, but the protesters say they are simply protesting against the government's policies.

BOGOTA, Columbia — A bloody offensive by guerrillas to the government's non-partisan media. Helmut Kohl and President Richard von Both leaders were struck.

The rally fell on the eve of the third anniversary of the opening of the Berlin Wall, which also marked the beginning of a surge in nationalism and racism across Europe. The rally was attended by thousands of people, many of them carrying banners and flags.

David Hayes, a professor of political science and the Critic's advisor, said, "It's obvious that a lot of people are thinking about it."

McCoy said The Critic is more in touch with the Daily and Black, but that it needs to address issues and address them in the campus newspaper.

Another article of The Critic's interest is the campus newspaper, the Wake Forest Times. Recently, Patrick Rice and Assistant Secretary of Education Michael Williams have been seen on campus at the initiative of the Critic Society. Senior Paco Hinton, the sports coordinator for the Society, and game selector for the Society, said, "We bring in guest speakers to stimulate dialogue."

It's clear that The Critic is trying to address issues that are not addressed in the campus newspaper.

ARA Amigos Take Top Honors in Local Competition

On Sept. 19 the “ARA Amigos” competed in the annual March of Dimes Chili Cook-off at Tanglewood Park. Darryl Maggio, Mike Crane and Joe Abraham entered two dishes, and Darryl also entered a cake in the baking category.

They took fourth place in the “creative chili” category with their white bean, chicken and sausage chili, and Darryl won third place overall in the baking category with his apple walnut cake.

More recently, Mike and Darryl entered the culinary arts competition at the Woodhaven Food Show on Oct. 13. They came away with first place in the Pure and Gallimine category. Their display included a comestible Buddy LaPlante, Chris Fulmer and Roscoe Newton are the newest members of the Wake Forest Dining management team. Buddy is the new night manager in the Pit. Before joining us at Wake Forest, he worked for ARA at UNC-Greensboro for two years. He graduated from Greensboro College in 1991 with a degree in business administration and economics. Buddy lives in High Point with his fiancée, Rebecca. In his spare time, he enjoys playing soccer and golf and working in the yard of his newly built home. His goal here at Wake Forest is to get to know the customers so they will feel comfortable talking to him about their opinions and suggestions.

LaPlante is the new manager of the Sundry Shop. She’s been in the food service industry since 1987. Before joining Wake’s management team, she was the Service Manager for the food service at B.J. Reynolds. Prior to that, the worked in Durham at The Washington Duke Inn and at The University Club, an exclusive private dining club. Her goal for the Sundry Shop is to guarantee a pleasant and convenient shopping experience for the customers. Chris tries to order items that are popular with her customers and uses people to convey their preferences and suggestions. Chris is the leader of the youth group at The Good Shepherd Catholic Church, and she also enjoys reading and sewing.

Newton, a 1992 graduate of Elba College, is the new closing manager in the Food Court. Elba College, also an ARA account, is where Roscoe got his previous food service experience. He spent two years as student manager in Hardin California.

For the next two years, he worked as the Student Manager of "The Back Door", the fast food facility at Elon. While at Wake Forest, Roscoe hopes to build his management foundation and to start a business of his own.

End to confusion

Are you confused about the MissWakeForest Pageant after reading about it in the Student Newspaper last Monday, if so, you have apparently been confused on purpose. Miss Wake Forest Pageant president, Billie Harrell, has explained that the reasons for the confusion were due to the marketing strategy of the pageant organizers.

President Harrell said that the pageant was not designed to be a beauty pageant, but rather a platform for showcasing intelligence and poise. She said that the title of "Miss Wake Forest" is given to the contestant who best represents the values of the university, and not just their physical appearance. She added, "The purpose of the pageant is to celebrate the diversity of our student body and to provide a platform for students to express their unique talents and interests."

President Harrell also addressed some of the concerns raised by previous contestants, who had claimed that the pageant was not inclusive of all students. She said, "We have taken steps to ensure that the pageant is accessible to all students, regardless of their background or experience. This includes providing scholarships to contestants who are first-generation or low-income students, and ensuring that all students have the opportunity to participate in the pageant through the pageant's talent and interview categories."

President Harrell concluded by saying, "We are proud of the work that our pageant organizers have done to ensure that the pageant is a true celebration of our student body. We believe that our pageant is a success, and we look forward to continuing to work with our contestants and students to make the pageant an even greater success in the future."

For those about to rock...

Whether struggling for success or jamming for fun, student bands add to social atmosphere.

But by Cameron Melancon

I n an individual's quest to find a place at Wake Forest, many students find that their musical ability is a tool one can use to belong. Certainly the `village band' has cultivated the social atmosphere on campus and in clubs around the Piedmont Triad.

Whether the band plays originals or covers, it is serious or just for fun, there are many of them to be found on the local scene.

The initial stages of putting together a band can involve many frustrations. Founding members who work well together and share a common goal can be difficult to assemble as creatively as at Wake Forest.

The band-in-progress that we will be experiencing in this issue is a new one called Fazoom.

"We're doing it for fun, but feel good enough that we could make some sacrifices for it if need be," said Lufkin. "It depends on how things go."

"We're just testing the waters now, but we feel optimistic." - Brian Seeman

Senior Senior Blankschln

S tories Blankschln described their band as "folk alternative with a Christian influence," but we definitely do not sound anything like Amy Grant.

"We are doing it for fun, but feel good enough that we could make some sacrifices for it if need be with how things go. We're just testing the waters now, but we feel optimistic," he said.

This attitude has been encouraged, Blankschln said, "by the case with which the band has been able to land on the Wake Forest campus."

He said that through acquaintances in house concerts or in their fraternity, the band members have had the opportunity to establish themselves with positive feedback.

Prayers and Legends will be performing in the Triad. They will be playing together this fall on the Wake Forest Friday Night Out, billed as Stitcher, a band that has recently started an acoustic music group called the Gathering.

"I think that members of the band have had the opportunity to establish themselves with positive feedback," he said.

PERSPECTIVES

The hardcore band Naked Angels has been in the local scene since 1987 but has not been able to realize its potential because of妮die capabilities. Lead singer Rob Seeman said he feels that the potential for success is good, especially with bands such as Nirvana recently attracting immense followings.

"It's not because there is no talent. There's actually an abundance of it because Winston-Salem is very artistically-minded, but there is just enough support for a burgeoning scene," he said.

Swoop

"Our drummer basically overruled everyone, especially after she got in with a 16-year-old stripper and a failed Scottish looking man, it was 18-wheel track in Iowa. But the ground- floor bands such as Stitcher and Fazoom are able to sell much more."

"We all have the ability to do a lot of things, but we do succeed (success is something) if we can survive," said Seeman. "We have many chinks in our armor, but there is just not enough support for a major label, or even an independent label. Two Point Planet will be playing at Xygo's New Year's Eve."

Deacons to hold free scrimmage

By Jay Resh

Hand Coach Dave Odom announced that the 1992 Deacon football team will hold a three-day, weekend-long team scrimmage, March 13-15, at Reynolds Gymnasium on campus.

Monday night, Tipps is scheduled to play 7:30 p.m.

"The team will be open to the public," Odom said. "We'll have all the helmets and pads that the players will have. The whole team will be here, as will the entire coaching staff. We'll have the scrimmages set up, so people can watch.

"One of the things that we hope to have available to fans is a meet-and-greet with the players and the coaches. We're trying to involve the community as much as possible in what's going on with the team."

The players are scheduled to arrive Monday afternoon and practice Monday night and Tuesday morning. The games are scheduled for Thursday afternoon and Friday morning, according to a schedule Odom released Wednesday.

"We're trying to get fans involved in what we're doing," he said. "We're trying to give people something to look forward to."

When asked about the possibility of a game against a Division I team, Odom said, "We've had discussions about playing a Division I team, and we believe it's important to try to improve our team as much as we can."

The Deacons have a young team, and Odom said he wants to see how his team stacks up against a Division I team.

"It's important to see how we stack up against Division I teams," he said. "We want to see how our players compare."

The games will be at 3:30 p.m. Thursday and 11 a.m. Friday. The games will be played on the regular Deacon field.

Odom said he plans to have a total of 14 players on the field at any one time.

"We're trying to get as many players as possible on the field," he said. "We want to give them as many opportunities as possible to play."

Highly acclaimed black artist gives lecture on work

Robert Colescott, a contemporary black artist known for his "Mockbuster" interpretations of famous paintings, will give a lecture on work tonight. The controversial artist will speak at 8 p.m. in Wait Chapel. Admission is free and the public is invited.

Colescott has drawn extensive attention to the exclusion of blacks from Western art history with works such as "George Washington Carver Crossing the Delaware," in which he replaces the traditional white American hero with an important black historical figure. His paintings have explored all discrimination themes and his technique is unique because the black and white portions are made with two different brushes.

Colescott's painting, "Purrito Last Words; The Death of a Free Man," was purchased by a group of students in 1988 for the Student Union Collections of Contemporary Art. The 7-by-6 painting depicts a bedridden black American hero who was in chains. Scenes from the man's life fill the upper portion of the canvas and the black and white portions are made with rubbery cartoon-like characters.

Controversial play leads UNC past Wake Forest in ACC Soccer Tournament

By Mike Ferguson

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — A terrific move finished what had been a terrific game.

The final whistle blew on a brilliant, back-and-forth clash between North Carolina and Wake Forest.

The final score: Wake Forest 2-1.

But the real story was another 120 minutes of soccer that ended with North Carolina's first romp in the ACC Tournament since 1988.

"I think the 12th player, the referee, was the culprit in the game," North Carolina coach Mackie Lamb said. "He should not be decisioned by an outside source, but by the 22 players on the field."
Deacons to hold free scrimmage

By BOB ODOM

Head Coach Dave Odom will debut the 1993-94 edition of his men’s basketball team in a specially scheduled Black and Gold scrimmage at Reynolds Gymnasium on Tuesday, November 2. Tip-off is scheduled for 7:00 p.m.

The scrimmage is open to faculty and staff and their immediate families and to the public.

Odom said his gratitude for the support of the Wake Forest community drove him to schedule the scrimmage. The play-intrasquad game.

this event (the scrimmage),”

Tuten said. Wake Forest’s defense continued to dominate play, holding Duke to 40 points on the night.

The defensive performance allowed the offense to focus on several aspects of the football game: time of possession favored Wake, 35-25.

With games remaining at Georgia Tech and N.C. State, Wake Forest could afford 8-3, certainly good enough for a bowl bid. While such a finish seemed impossible at the start of the season, it’s realistic that the Deacons could be playing in a bowl game on January 1.

"Why not?" Odom said. "We’ve got two big games left and we control our own destiny. We’re just going to go out and work hard and see what happens. We worked long and hard for this and we show that hard work pays off if you don’t give up.”
