The student council, at its first meeting of the new academic year Wednesday night, passed a motion to send a delegation to the North Carolina Conference of the National Council of Women. The delegation will consist of representatives from Wake Forest and will discuss the problems and opportunities facing the college and the nation.

Here's One Answer For Your Loneliness

By Emily Crockett

There are many, many new faces in the student body this year. As they pass by on their way to class or to their jobs, many of them may feel lonely and isolated. But there is no need to feel this way, for there are many organizations and activities on campus that can provide a sense of belonging and purpose.

Group Hears Arguments By Three Faculty Members

The students heard the arguments presented by three faculty members on the topic of the future of the University. The arguments were presented by Dr. Hubert Poteat, Professor of History, Dr. A. T. Moore, Professor of English, and Dr. E. C. Gill, Professor of History. Each of the faculty members presented a compelling case, and the students were left with much to ponder.
Dr. Stanbury Leaves

Dr. Dale T. Stanbury, Dean of the Law School since 1903, left last week to assume his new position as professor of law at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville. He will be succeeded by Prof. Herbert B. Berliner, assistant professor, who will serve as Acting Dean.

On his appointment here is Dean, Dr. Stanbury states: "I have had the experience of a lifetime, to preserve the reputation of Wake Forest College as the best law school in the South. I have spent my legal career here. I have lived here, been born here, have never been more than once away from it, and at that time for a month. But I feel that it is time someone else should have the responsibility of running the school."

During his first year here, the Law School was admitted to membership in the Association of American Law Schools and the Council of the Legal Education of the American Bar Association voted to place the school on its approved list. In his position as Dean, he has been unable to take advantage of the many opportunities for professional contact with and guidance of the individual student. But he feels a personal interest in each of his students, and his success is found in a genuine regard for their well-being and in a sympathetic understanding of their problems.

Each year since its organization in 1894, the Law School has been under the directorship of the late Dr. James T. Stanbury.

From 1906 to 1908, Dr. Stanbury served as member of the American Bar Association and for two years he was a member of the General Assembly of the American Bar Association. During his last year here, the Law School was elected to full membership in the Council of the Legal Education of the American Bar Association and voted to place the school on its approved list.

At the time of his departure, he was greatly regretted by many of the students, but everyone was sorry to see him go. The Law School will be greatly missed by the students, but they wish him well in his new position.

Good-Bye "Hell Week"

Breaking an old tradition and showing the true spirit of Wake Forest in action, a group of students, including the editor, went to visit the "Hell Week" crew, with all its supposed atrocities, and actually enjoyed it. The crew, consisting of about twenty men, was in session Friday morning. They are expected to have one more session before they finish preparing for the next encounter, and then they will be ready for the fall semester.

The new Students

The first approach to Wake Forest and the first few moments you spend there are often remembered for a lifetime. The experiences of the past may be compared to the events of a lifetime, and the impressions of the new students may be valuable in their future careers.

Wake Forest is a school with a long tradition of outstanding students. It has a good reputation and a high standard of living. The students are always willing to work hard, and they are also willing to play hard. They enjoy their stay at the school and make the most of it. The campus is a beautiful place, and the atmosphere is one of excitement and anticipation.

The New Students

The new students have moved into the dormitories and are beginning to settle in. They are eager to get started on their studies and to make the most of their time at the school. They are looking forward to the experiences they will have and the memories they will create.

With The Men In Service

It has long been the policy of National Service to use the boys who serve in the armed forces as the nucleus of an organization in the colleges of the United States. These boys, who make their life in the service, are able to tell the students about their experiences and to give them a firsthand view of the problems of the armed forces.
