Secret Service

Following in a President's footsteps

The last time a Student Budget Council member was a candidate for the presidency was 1974. Former President Gerald R. Ford. That year, Ford's campaign was conducted through the Secret Service. The secret service was given the job to protect him, but they also got him ready to speak in public, said a prominent Winston-Salem lawyer and WF alumnus.

The academy replied. "As a professor at all. At the back of the audience in the student union, spoke that same voice that used to come through the dorm intercoms, some students still remember the message. "I know what I'm doing here. So how come you still think I'm a student security?"

From then on they ignored me, said WF police and security with a bit of a laugh. "But before that, we followed former President Ford around. We stopped me before the door that was before the door that led him to the president's office."

They stopped me before I could go into the president's office, said John Bell, WF chief of police. "We had to go out in the course room and oversee the conversation between the president and the agents."

They were with him when the agents came to the president to say that the car was ready to go. They were with him when the agents came to the president to say that the car was ready to go. They were with me when they went to the president's office to say that the car was ready to go.

"We is the only reason I'm here."

The third proposal scheduled for the fall of 1978 was the "Minor Degree and the Elimination of Controversies." The proposal was the result of a study conducted by the Academic Planning Committee. The committee recommended that the university pursue a minor degree and the elimination of controversies. The proposal was passed by a vote of 73 percent in favor of the proposal.

Analysis of open curriculum

Committee reviews options

The Student Council's Committee on the Open Curriculum will meet this Friday to consider a proposal that seeks to expand the range of course offerings available to students. The committee is considering a proposal that would allow students to select courses from a wider variety of subjects, including those that are not currently offered at the university.

The proposal is not expected to be controversial, as it is widely supported by students and faculty. The committee is expected to vote on the proposal next week.

Security clears lots for Ford

Steintrager said at the graduating students' meeting that the university will set the tone of the paper, and that the students will be involved in the decision-making process.

Pub Row names editors

The lyrics went something like this:

Nearly every time I hear it played, I remember the thrill of being an apathetic student.

The Old Gold and Black is now accepting applications for positions as news, feature, or sports writers, columnists, copy editors, photographers and graphic artists. Interested students are encouraged to join the staff for the coming year by calling the Newsroom, 208 Reynolds, on any Tuesday or Wednesday at 7 p.m. or by calling 761-5260.

Meanwhile, some members of the local Sisters of Charity turned their stereo to the window and serenaded the block with "The Old Gold and Black." The lyrics went something like this:

"Turned their stereo/Serendipitously/"The Old Gold and Black"/At a local bar/On the four-year-olds/"The Old Gold and Black.""

Springfest V provides last fling before exams

Karen B. Senior

Springfest V brought student bands, roller skating, hot air balloon, refreshments, and additional dancing to the quad and Magnolia Court on Friday, March 25. Some students even had the chance to meet "towering" President Ford, who spoke for the students and answered questions.

The lyrics went something like this:

"Springfest V brought student bands/Roller skating/Hot air balloon/Refreshments and additional dancing/To the quad and Magnolia Court/On Friday, March 25."
Eulogy

Winter term, the famous and now infamous innovation, is caught in a vocational crisis. A majority of WFU students favor the winter term, at least on paper. Yet during registration, they are registering to take classes in a winter term.

The mandatory 4-day weekend school was abolished by only a few voices among professors as more obtrusive.

The dearth of 11-week courses makes conducting a crusade against the week and 11-week courses. There is room for a difference of opinion. It seems doomed to fade away.

It's sad to watch a unique educational institution, Old Gold and Black, seem to lose its originality and personality. The university's policies, the master plan for the Village, the Baptist funds and the rejection of the master's degree, and the decline of enrollment in 4-week courses all indicate that something is wrong. The master's degree is being compromised by students and professors. But the program might be as bad as the master's degree is being compromised by students and professors. But the program might be losing its originality and personality.

For an institution, like a person, the most important of the year is not the end of the year but the beginning of the year. If you're not sure, just ask Professor Old Gold and Black if you're not sure, just ask Professor Reynolds.

The 1946 contract provided for the majors to participate in the continuous offering of the 11-week plan. This is a major change in the traditional curriculum without compromising it. For the sake of the students and professors, fewer 4-week courses will be offered intensive experimentation within a four-week framework without compromising it. For the sake of the students and professors, fewer 4-week courses will be offered intensive experimentation within a four-week framework. The above advice, therefore, is not the solution. Within a few years, the master's degree will be realized.
Ronstadt wastes talent on album, 'Mad Love'

With her album "Mad Love," Linda Ronstadt has given us a collection of 11 songs that fails to live up to the expectations generated by its title. It is a disappointment to those of us who have been enthusiastic about Ronstadt's recent work.

Ronstadt should have known better than to select songs that have been done so many times before. The result is a collection of songs that are dull and lifeless. The album is a waste of time and money.

The songs on this album are not well chosen. The majority are not original and the arrangements are unimaginative. The music is bland and uninteresting. There is no excitement to be found on this album.

One would think that Ronstadt would not have done a more thorough job of selecting songs for her album. The title song is a cover of a song by Elvis Presley, but Ronstadt does not make it her own. The rest of the songs on the album are not much better.

In conclusion, I would not recommend this album to anyone. It is a disappointment and a waste of time. For those who enjoy Ronstadt's previous work, this album is a letdown. I hope that she will do better in the future.
Clemson favored in tourney

Defending national champs, Clemson's Georgia Tech squad will compete in the three ACC contests this weekend. All seven conference teams (the number of ACC teams will increase to eight next year) will participate in the three team tournaments along with the Wake Forest. Clemson, currently ranked second in the nation, will be aiming for a third straight ACC championship.

The only Clemson player to have the ACC in its number is Mike Mitchell. Mitchell, who was named ACC all-star once, came to Clemson with an ACC championship.

Ballard remembers an unassisted ACC switch with victories against Duke and Virginia and a 9-4 loss to Maryland.

North Carolina State will count on three players to raise the ACC. Andy Andrews, last year's champion, is back again with two new players for him.

The Deacons now have the ACC on one-handed at the state. A 9-4 loss to Wake Forest in a tournament, Rice and Mexico in the ACC. Rice and Mexico were together again.

Deacs hope for upset

The Wake Forest women's tennis team is ranked No. 50 in the nation and about to face a No. 7 team when it visits Memphis-Chattanooga. The match scheduled for 11 a.m. today begins a two-match road trip for the Deacon women's tennis team.

A glimpse of a golden moment

The 1976-77 Wake Forest basketball team is still something of a mystery. It was a team that few people expected to win the ACC regular season title and was the basketball team of the year in the nation.

The team had a record of 23-5 and was ranked No. 6 in the final Associated Press poll. The Wake Forest team finished third in the ACC tournament and was invited to the NCAA tournament for the first time.

Despite playing a mediocre season, Wake Forest basketball was a team to watch. The team had a lot of talent, and the players were able to gel and play well together.

The team consisted of Mark Zahn, Jerry Sloan, and Johnny Rogers. The team was coached by Joe Sloan.

Students kill time and money
Victor Hastings

The gameroom, now students, undergraduates and business students equally kill a spare hour or so. Lunch hour and dinner hour seem to be the busiest times, although the room is seldom empty.

The gameroom has it all: pinball machines, tables, table tennis tops, pool tables, and a video game, Breakout.

The lounge was staffed by Tim Reese, director of the gameroom. The lounge featured bar stools, a big-screen television, and a variety of games. Students, undergrads, and faculty members could enjoy a drink or a dessert. For one heart, he don't despair. There's consolation. It's still going on, but it's not always popular.

The gameroom is simply a promotional source of extra dollars in the college. The room is used to add a little variety to pit dining, and the games are a way to attract students. Upon effacing the stuff with one's magic rub-off stuff on the card, one gets his money's worth. As with three hearts on his card, one gets a free drink or a dessert. For one heart, he don't despair. There's consolation. It's still going on, but it's not always popular.
