THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES
SALUTE: BURL RAINWATER

When Burl Rainwater (R.A., 1950) reported to Southern Bell in 1961, he coordinated the Bell System Census Project in Tennessee. Working out his new techniques with huge amounts of listing data, Burl analyzed his results to forecast household growth during the '60's for each telephone exchange in Tennessee.

Success on this assignment earned him a new one where he also had to please. When told to study the possible application of teaching machines to telephone training, he and another employee programmed an entire basic electricity course to show what the new devices could do. The textbook the two men developed for the machine was later copyrighted and published.

With such achievements behind him, Burl is now carrying his sales training assignments in the Knoxville Commercial Office.

Burl Rainwater, like many young men, is important to make things happen for his company and himself. There are few places where such restless people are more welcomed than in the fast-growing telephone business.
Wheeler Dealers Has Square Wheels

By JIM HERBERT

Associated Press

In the TV show "Wheeler Dealers," two British experts, Mike Brewer and Ollie Fox, help customers find the perfect car for their needs. In this episode, they take a look at a series of American cars from the 1950s and 1960s.

Mike Brewer says, "I think the American cars have a real charm to them. They're not as refined as the British cars, but they have a real character."

Ollie Fox adds, "And they're not as expensive. You can find a real gem for a fraction of what you'd pay for a British car."

Mike Brewer also talks about the "Grump" that Ollie Fox has for the American cars. "I think he's a bit too harsh. They're not as reliable as the British cars, but they're not as bad as he makes them out to be."

Ollie Fox responds, "I've always been a bit of a car snob. I prefer the British cars. But I have to admit, sometimes the American cars are a bit too much for me."

In the end, Mike Brewer and Ollie Fox decide to take a look at a 1957 Chevrolet Bel Air. "It's a classic," says Mike Brewer. "And it's not too expensive."

Ollie Fox is less impressed. "It's a bit too large for me. And the gas mileage is terrible."

Mike Brewer laughs. "You're a bit too picky, Ollie. It's a classic car. You have to appreciate it for what it is."

Ollie Fox grins. "I suppose you're right. I just have a bit of a soft spot for the classics."

Mike Brewer and Ollie Fox drive the Chevrolet Bel Air around town, and Ollie Fox is impressed. "It's not as bad as I thought," he says. "And it's a lot more fun to drive."

Mike Brewer nods. "And it's a lot more affordable."

The episode ends with Mike Brewer and Ollie Fox discussing the merits of the Chevrolet Bel Air. "It's not perfect," says Mike Brewer. "But it's a classic that anyone can appreciate."

Ollie Fox agrees. "I suppose you're right. It's not perfect, but it's a classic."

Chaplain Stresses Humanity

By LUCY KENNY

Associated Press

Dr. L. R. Hollington, chaplain at the University of California,Los Angeles, discussed the position of the chaplain in the modern Christian higher education system. "At a time when it would seem impossible to reconcile the sometimes opposing ideals of personal faith and humanism, the role of the chaplain is fundamental," he said.

Dr. Hollington emphasized the importance of the chaplain's role in providing a spiritual framework for students and faculty, especially in the face of growing secularism on many campuses.

"In a world that often seems to be losing its moral compass, the chaplain can provide a beacon of light," said Dr. Hollington. "We must strive to ensure that the chaplain's role is not only maintained, but expanded, in our modern educational institutions.""

Effect Of A Winner

Tidbits concerning the Wake Forest football merry-go-round have been printed in newspapers in such profusion across the country, it seems, as was written about the loco-mondo Christine Keeler parties.

Hal Brown, Sports Editor of The Lincolns (N.C.) Star, even had a few words to say about football at Davidson College. Brown rained on Paul Allen, a 1963 graduate of the University of Nebraska and late Wake Forest Head Coach, by saying that school spirit associated with the collegiate sport.

Allen had this to say about his years on campus at Wake Forest, when they had a winning football team that was, it made all the difference in the world. The students walked around campus with their chins off their chests.

"Now that Wake Forest is losing again, you notice the lackadaisical attitude on the campus. I cannot emphasize enough the effect a winning football team has on students and their attitudes."

 Didn't Throw In The Towel

The Wake Forest football team this season has again been a disappointment. About the only noteworthy thing accomplished by the Deacons in 1963 was the stringing of the nation's longest losing streak of 18 games.

Eighteen games. The 20-19 victory over South Carolina, as thrilling as it was, was the first football win witnessed by this year's freshman and sophomore classes.

But did the student body completely give up on the team? Did the students turn their heads on the ploy Deacon players and say, "The bell with it all?" No, they didn't.

After eighty straight losses and six straight straight losses this autumn the students rose behind their team, and not against it. This was the case last year when students marched to Coach Bill Hildebrand's home and gave him a vote of confidence. Nobody was staggered in efforts as Student. Illustrated some remarked should have been done.

Who Will Ever Forget?

Who will ever forget the student spirit shown during Homecoming? Despite eighteen straight straight losses the students rallied. Approximately 1,900 students gave the Deacs what they thought they were due this afternoon for the excitement with the game. The Deacons came close to giving the students what they wanted.

The Deacs showed their immediate appreciation with a brilliant come-from-behind, three-touchdown game. The team later showed its gratitude when they gave the game's best player the student body in camp.

It was a wonderful weekend. Let us not allow the balloon to fall. The students were later showed its gratitude when they gave the team a brilliant come-from-behind victory.

Frost Could Be Good

By KEITH HUTCHINSON

"We can be a real good ball team," said Coach Andy Mardouch.
"But it depends on how much work we are willing to do. After all, there's only so much you can get out of the game."

This sentiment is echoed by the upcoming season's schedule, as Mardouch and the rest of the team prepare for a season filled with challenges.

"We want to show the fans that we are a strong team," said Mardouch.

New Sport

Last Tuesday, a new sport was born, at least in the sense that a new team sport was born. The game was invented by a group of students at the University of California, Berkeley.

The game was called "New Sport," and it is played with a small ball, similar to a football, and a net, similar to a soccer goal. The objective of the game is to score goals by throwing the ball into the net.

John F. Kennedy is a sports enthusiast, and he has shown this interest throughout his life. In fact, he has even been known to show up to his son's football games.

On Friday, the White House announced that President Kennedy would be attending his son's football game.

"The President is very much looking forward to this event," said a White House spokesperson.

The President will be accompanied by his family, including his son, who is a football player for a local high school.

The game will be held at 3 p.m. at the school's football stadium.
