Schmidt encourages America to assert economic leadership

In his address to an overflow crowd in Wake Chapel last Friday, former West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt devoted considerable time to an economic theme: the world needs leadership, and the United States should be that leader.

"Schmidt believed that his country's leadership, especially in the area of economic thought, was needed to help guide the world toward a more prosperous future," said a spokesperson for the Department of State.

The financial crisis of the 1970s and 1980s, Schmidt said, had demonstrated the need for strong economic leadership. "It was clear to me that the United States needed to take a more active role in the world economy," he said.

"I believed that the United States had the economic strength and the intellectual capacity to lead the world," Schmidt added.

"In this period of uncertainty and change, leadership is needed more than ever," Schmidt concluded. "I believe that the United States is the country that can provide that leadership."
Business school continues to seek accreditation

by Charles Hefner

The business and accounting program is currently putting forth efforts to gain national accreditation.

"National accreditation is essentially a type of quality assurance program," said.

"The business school received approval from the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business (<AACSB>)."

The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date.

"The business and accounting program has been working hard to attain national accreditation," said.

"The school has received approval from the AACSB, which is the leading accreditation body in the field of business.

"The school is expected to complete the required criteria by the end of the year. The final decision on the school's accreditation status will be made by the AACSB in the coming months."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year. The board will make a final decision on the school's accreditation status at a later date."

"The school has been working hard to fulfill the requirements specified by the accreditation board and is expected to complete them by the end of the year.
In the nation...

President Reagan announced this week that he is committed to keeping U.S. military personnel in Beirut. Even though the death toll approached the milestone of 100, Reagan cited the fact that the deployment cost $1.00 for each U.S. soldier and declared that the troops should be in Beirut. His main concern was the safety of the troops and reductions...

The Senate had the same motion. Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said, "we should not leave at the point of a gun.

In response, Senator John B. Breaux, D-La., and Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., said they were concerned that the American public was being "sold a bill of goods.

In a sending to Congress, Secretary of State George Shultz told Reagan that the United States had determined that we will not withdraw from Lebanon. Reagan was not prepared to leave Beirut.

Congress gave President Reagan the authority to take military action in Lebanon without the consent of the Senate. Reagan's approval rating has fallen.

Soviet leaders have been concerned about the possibility of their being left alone in Lebanon. Reagan's approval rating has fallen.

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger and Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said that Reagan was "being sold a bill of goods."

In a statement, Reagan said that the U.S. should remain in Lebanon because of the safety of the troops...

Soviet leaders have been concerned about the possibility of their being left alone in Lebanon. Reagan's approval rating has fallen.

In a rally...
In the nation

Martin Luther King Day

On Oct. 10, the Senate passed a bill establishing a national holiday in the name of Martin Luther King Jr., the slain civil rights leader who was assassinated in 1968. The House is expected to pass the bill early next week.

This country has beset many a time with problems of a social and moral nature. The great social problems have been the result of forces that are beyond the control of man. The problem of race is one of these.

The question remains only partially answered. This country was founded on the principle of equality and of the belief that all men are created equal. We have seen it in American history that the benefits of democracy have not been extended to all men. The problem remains to be solved.

The center is designed, in the words of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., to transcend a grave period in American history when we speak for minority rights.

Homeland security is also unprecedented. It is a time of great turbulence and change. Changes to end racism and stop printing them.

Transformation of the past three decades is not the true fulfillment of the American dream. But it is a step towards the realization of the ideals associated with American democracy.

This country was founded on the principle of equality and of the belief that all men are created equal. We have seen it in American history that the benefits of democracy have not been extended to all men.

The question remains only partially answered. This country was founded on the principle of equality and of the belief that all men are created equal. We have seen it in American history that the benefits of democracy have not been extended to all men.

The problem remains to be solved.
Grenada and Lebanon
On taking freedom for granted

On Wednesday, Oct. 12, 1983, in the Caribbean, a small island nation was thrown into turmoil. On Thursday, Oct. 13, in Lebanon, the lives of 241 Americans were lost. These events, though separate in time and space, are connected by a common theme: the struggle for freedom.

In Grenada, the Caribbean nation, the people were fighting for their independence from British colonial rule. The British forces had landed in an attempt to prop up a pro-British government. The people of Grenada, under the leadership of Prime Minister Eric Gairy, were determined to assert their sovereignty.

In Lebanon, the American forces were caught in a crossfire between rival factions. The American soldiers were there to support the Lebanese government, but they soon found themselves in the middle of a violent conflict.

The United States government, in response to the Grenadian crisis, dispatched military forces to support the government of Prime Minister Gairy. This action was seen as an attempt to prevent the spread of communism in the region.

On the other hand, the Lebanese government was forced to plead with the United States to withdraw its forces. The Lebanese people were desperate to avoid another Arab-Israeli war.

The situation in Lebanon was further complicated by the presence of Israeli forces in the country. The Israeli forces were there to support the Lebanese government, but they were also seen as a threat to Palestinian refugee camps in Lebanon.

In the end, the United States forces were withdrawn from Lebanon, and the situation in Grenada was stabilized. The people of both nations had fought for their freedom, and their struggle continues to this day.

The Grenadian and Lebanese cases illustrate the complexities of international relations. On one hand, the United States was seen as a protector of freedom in the region. On the other hand, the presence of foreign forces was seen as a threat to the sovereignty of these nations.

The lesson of these events is clear: the struggle for freedom is a timeless battle. It is fought not only on the battlefields of war, but also in the halls of government and in the hearts of individuals. The fight for freedom is a struggle that we must all be willing to take on, for it is the foundation of all that is good and just in our world.
Black workers confront injustices

by Paul Benson

Glen Lutey, professor of economics at Howard University, said black workers in America are facing economic and social problems. Lutey, who was a panelist at the meeting, said black workers are facing problems that are different from those faced by white workers.

Lutey, who is also a member of the Black Studies Department, said black workers are facing economic problems due to the lack of job opportunities and the high cost of living. He also said black workers are facing social problems due to discrimination and racism.

Lutey said that black workers are facing economic problems because of the lack of job opportunities. He said that black workers are being discriminated against in the job market and that they are not being given the same opportunities as white workers.

Lutey said that black workers are facing social problems due to discrimination and racism. He said that black workers are being discriminated against in schools, in housing, and in the workplace.

Lutey said that black workers are facing economic problems because of the lack of job opportunities. He said that black workers are being discriminated against in the job market and that they are not being given the same opportunities as white workers.

Lutey said that black workers are facing social problems due to discrimination and racism. He said that black workers are being discriminated against in schools, in housing, and in the workplace.

Soprano features new contemporary music

by Debra Serfoll

For those who love contemporary music, a music festival titled "Territorial" at Howard University should be a must-see. The festival will feature a variety of contemporary music, including jazz, classical, and experimental.

"Territorial" is a music festival that celebrates the diversity of contemporary music. The festival will feature performances by a variety of musicians, including composers, performers, and ensembles.

The festival will take place on Friday, June 14, at 7 p.m., in the Howard University Auditorium. The festival is free and open to the public.

The festival will feature a variety of contemporary music, including jazz, classical, and experimental. The festival will feature performances by a variety of musicians, including composers, performers, and ensembles.

The festival will take place on Friday, June 14, at 7 p.m., in the Howard University Auditorium. The festival is free and open to the public.

The festival will feature a variety of contemporary music, including jazz, classical, and experimental. The festival will feature performances by a variety of musicians, including composers, performers, and ensembles.

The festival will take place on Friday, June 14, at 7 p.m., in the Howard University Auditorium. The festival is free and open to the public.
Sean Connery resurfaces as agent 007 (Bond)

by Robert Wells

Fans of all ages expect James Bond—the real James Bond, that is—has returned.

After an absence of more than a decade, Bond Country is back at the forefront of Fleming's inimitable legacy in the new release, "Never Say Never Again." This well-received follow-up film is the third in the franchise, and it is for the character for which audiences have been waiting long over.

"Never Say Never Again," which puts Bond on the trail of a deadly nuclear device, is a live-action sequel to the 1965 Roger Moore film "The Spy Who Loved Me." While the world is still waiting for Bond to make his long-delayed reappearance, and of course, the follow-up to his way to the underwater finale.

The story line is simple: Bond (Sean Connery) is sent to a Swiss village to recover a nuclear device which could be used to destroy the world. Along the way, Bond encounters a variety of obstructions and challenges, but ultimately achieves his goal.

This film, like the others in the Bond series, is a visual spectacle, with stunning sets and special effects. The action sequences are well choreographed and intense, keeping the audience on the edge of their seats.

Overall, "Never Say Never Again" is a satisfying sequel to the original film, and a fitting tribute to the iconic character of James Bond. It is sure to appeal to fans of the franchise and those who appreciate well-crafted action entertainment.

The film is currently available on DVD and Blu-ray, and is a must-watch for anyone who loves the world of espionage and adventure.
Deacs face tough task in Death Valley

by Keith Snyder

Wake Forest will try to end Clemson's 18-game winning streak in the ACC when the Demon Deacons meet the Tigers at Memorial Stadium in Death Valley on Saturday.

The Tigers are currently ranked number one in the nation and are favored to win.

Wake Forest is 12-4 and 5-0 in the ACC, while Clemson is 18-1 and 8-0 in the conference.

Wake Forest finishes second

by Ted Dobie

Led by junior David Crooke and sophomore Bindley, the Wake Forest men's cross-country team finished second in the UNC-Chapel Hill Invitational last Saturday.

Crooke, in his second race of the season, finished fourth with a time of 21:29.0. Wake Forest finished 21st with a team score of 55.

The team's second-best finish was from junior Mark Brown, who finished in 15th place with a time of 21:35.9.

Three freshmen closed out the scoring. Robbie Skilling was 11th overall with a 22:47.2 clocking, while Jordan Valentine was 13th overall with a time of 22:27.1.

Clemson won the race with a team score of 24.

Women runners take third

by Mary Morris

Wake Forest finished in third place at the North Carolina State women's cross-country championships on Oct. 16 in Raleigh.

NC State, led by top national runner Betty Spillings, dominated the meet as expected. North Carolina took second.

The race started with the women's race and continued with the men's race and ended with the team's performance.

Wake Forest had a team score of 69, while North Carolina had a score of 33.

In the maraton, Wake Forest had a team score of 72, while North Carolina had a score of 41.

Wake Forest's top three runners were: Emily Roper, second with a time of 20:42; Candie Goodhart, third with a time of 22:04; and Martha Motto, fourth with a time of 22:07.

Harriers finish second

by by Stephanie Topf

The Demon Deacons were defeated by the ACC champion UNC-G during the ACC championships on Oct. 16 in Asheville.

UNC-G, led by top national runner Betty Spillings, dominated the meet as expected.

The race started with the women's race and continued with the men's race.

Wake Forest had a team score of 69, while UNC-G had a score of 33.

In the maraton, Wake Forest had a team score of 72, while UNC-G had a score of 41.

Wake Forest's top three runners were: Emily Roper, second with a time of 20:42; Candie Goodhart, third with a time of 22:04; and Martha Motto, fourth with a time of 22:07.

In the men's race, UNC-G finished first with a score of 18.

Women runners take third

by Mary Morris

Wake Forest finished in third place at the North Carolina State women's cross-country championships on Oct. 16 in Raleigh.

NC State, led by top national runner Betty Spillings, dominated the meet as expected. North Carolina took second.

The race started with the women's race and continued with the men's race.

Wake Forest had a team score of 69, while North Carolina had a score of 33.

In the maraton, Wake Forest had a team score of 72, while North Carolina had a score of 41.

Wake Forest's top three runners were: Emily Roper, second with a time of 20:42; Candie Goodhart, third with a time of 22:04; and Martha Motto, fourth with a time of 22:07.

In the men's race, UNC-G finished first with a score of 18.
Heels battle Terpers for top

The Tar Heels have a chance to solidify their position at the top of the ACC this Saturday against the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets. "This has been the season of our dreams," coach Larry Fedora said. "We have the opportunity to really cement our status as one of the top teams in the country." The game is set for a noon kickoff at Memorial Stadium, and fans are expected to fill the stands to witness the duel.

ACC Roundup

RALEIGH, N.C. - The ACC Alliance (6-6) is in search of aak a break from conference action as they travel to South Carolina on Saturday. The Terps have a slim chance of making the ACC championship game, but a victory over the Gamecocks could boost their chances. "It's a big game for us," said Maryland quarterback Buck Allen. "We need to win this one to keep our hopes alive." The Terps are coming off a loss to Virginia, while the Gamecocks have won three of their last four.

Duke hosts Tech

The Blue Devils are looking to solidify their hold on the ACC Coastal Division as they host the Yellow Jackets. "We need to win this game to keep our division title hopes alive," said Duke coach David Cutcliffe. "We have a lot of history against Tech, and we're ready to make some more." The Blue Devils are coming off a win over Virginia Tech, while the Yellow Jackets lost to Virginia.

Danish runner excels for Wake Forest cross-country

The Wake Forest cross-country team has been performing well this season, with junior Thomas Fritts leading the way. Fritts has been consistently placing in the top 10 at ACC meets and has a chance to make the NCAA championships.

Lady Deacs prepare for Deep South tourney

The Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets have been a tough team to tutor this season, but coach Tara Vanzant is confident her team can make a deep run in the ACC Tournament. "We have the talent and the experience," Vanzant said. "We just need to stay focused and play our best game." The Deacs will take on the #15 Tar Heels in the quarterfinals.

Lady golfers finish 9th

The University of Georgia Women's Golf Team finished 9th at the NCAA Regionals. "We had some ups and downs this season," coach Lisa Brown said. "But we never gave up and kept fighting. We have a great group of players and I'm proud of them." The team will look to improve next year with a new roster.