INTERESTING LECTURE SERIES
ANNOUNCED BY COMMITTEE

Original Strollers Quartet Appears On October 7th As First in the Series

What promises to be one of the most entertaining and interesting programs for the lyceum course given yearly for the benefit of the students and community, has been announced by Dr. Culley, chairman of the committee on lectures and entertainments. Among the interesting numbers will be the Original Strollers Quartet, the Morrow Bros. Quartet, Edward Higgins, humorist and lecturer, and Dr. William Lyon Phelps. This list is not complete as Dr. Culley is negotiating with several other prominent men in the hopes of giving to the students this year the very best in educational and entertaining amusements.

The first attraction is the Original Strollers Quartet, which comes Saturday, October 7th, at 8 o'clock.

DEAN GUILLEY HEARD BY THE Y. M. C. A. MONDAY

Speaker Delivers Interesting and Practical Address in his Inimitable Style

Dr. N. Y. Culley delivered an interesting and practical address before the Young Men's Christian Association Monday evening as has been heard by that organization in a long time. The speaker read the account of Solomon's life which he asked for a wise and understanding heart, and bade his remarks upon that choice.

The first thought mentioned by Dr. Culley was that Solomon was gorgious of the fact that God had placed him in the exalted position as king. He said that God does not call all of us to-day to be kings, but He calls us for other purposes. The fact that, no matter what vocation of life we may choose, God has a work for us to do was emphasized by the speaker.

Another thing about Solomon," said the speaker, "was that he realized that he was a little child." Dr. Culley declared that Solomon felt his inability to fill his position and that be needed something he didn't have.

A third thing mentioned by Dr. Culley about Solomon was that he realized the greatness of the task before him.

"In conclusion," Dr. Culley said that Solomon, realizing the three above mentioned facts, chose a wise and understanding heart above all things else. He showed that we were put here with a mental and understanding heart. We have been brought out clearly that we should be fitted for this work; and that we should be fitted both physically and mentally as well as spiritually.

HON. T. W. BICKETT THRILLS CAPACITY AUDIENCE WITH CHARACTERISTIC SPEECH

Democratic Gubernatorial Nominee in Address to the Students of His Alma Mater Champions the Record of the Democratic Party, and Pleads for the Re-election of the President Who Kept Us Out of War

Thursday evening in Wingate Auditorium Hall, for two hours and fifteen minutes a capacity house of enthusiastic Wake Foresters listened to a remarkable address by Thomas Walter Bickett, in one of the most entertaining, versatile, and well-balanced speeches the college community has ever heard. In addition to the logical arrangement and characteristic forcible delivery of the attorney general's speech, it was brim full of native wit, and sparkling throughout with flashes of good humor. Dr. N. Y. Culley, who introduced the distinguished and eminently popular speaker, in his introductory remarks said: "Among all the illustrious sons of the institution, none affords us more pleasure than Mr. Bickett. Gentlemen, I congratulate you upon the opportunity of hearing the next Governor of North Carolina."

Two minutes of Mr. Bickett's speech had scarcely passed before the audience could see him bending his remarks in favor of the President. While paying a glowing tribute to the peace policy of the nation, he said, "The finest eulogy of the democratic record is its disciple, Woodrow Wilson." He widely contrasted the horribleness of conditions among the warring nations, with the healthy condition of affairs in America, "where there is a peace that passeth all understanding." The incoming Governor mentioned a number of influences with which the President has had to contend, stating, that since the outbreak of the war, conspiracies have been organized abroad to throw Wilson's peace policy overboard. Campaigns of misinformation have been conducted by newspapers, having commercial interests at stake, for the purpose of inflaming the public sentiment to the point, where the nation would demand a declaration of war.

He showed the unlikelihood of the President, when subjected to such influences, being taken by the most violent criticisms, in still preserving an everlasting peace. In accounting for the successful main.(Continued on page 7.)

PLANs BEING FORMULATED FOR NEW ATHLETIC FIELD

General Mass Meeting to be Held First of Week by the Athletic Association

Following the purchase of the new athletic field and the speech made by Dr. Herbert A. Boyer, in chapel last week, plans are now being formulated whereby money can be secured to begin work on the field in the near future. A mass meeting of the students has been set for the first of the week, and Mr. Fred S. Hutchins, President of the Athletic Association, is now corresponding with the students and also doing similar work over the state among the alumni from the Allen Club; C. W. Parker, and H. E. Olive; from the Fryar Club, E. C. James and C. F. Herrig; from the Melrose Hotel, J. J. Rose and D. B. Perry; from McKinnon's, S. S. Meek and C. D. Moore; from the Leaster Club, P. S. Daniels and J. M. Hayes; from Mitchell's, W. F. Freeman; from the town hotel, E. Carlyle; from the Hodnett Club, D. C. Hughes and R. S. Britton; from the McElrath Club, J. C. Newton; from Martin's, W. H. Paechal and (Continued on page 6.)

WAKE FOREST ENROLLMENT IS STEADILY INCREASING

 Dormitories All Filled and Students Seeking Lodging Among Residents of Town

The enrollment of Wake Forest College has been steadily increasing since the opening of the fall session, reaching its greatest number this week. The records of the college show that at present 490 men have matriculated. This fact is particularly interesting since it makes the enrollment of the college to date exceed the enrollment for the same date last year by 25 men. Every indication now points to a student body greatly exceeding 500 men before the end of the year.

The gap, made by last year's senior class, which was the largest in the history of the institution, numbering 102, has been rapidly filled by the arrival of new men on the hill. There are at present 165 first year students in college, making the present freshman class one (Continued on page 7.)
J. Baird Edwards Resumes all Allegiance to John Bynum Rocker and Takes Bold Stand in Self-Defense

I, J. Baird Edwards, being apparently in full possession of all mental faculties, do this day take pen in hand for the purpose of making open renunciation of all allegiances now or hereafter acknowledged to my alleged "kindred spirit", him they call John Bynum Rocker.

The action is taken only after much deliberation and a mature consideration of the damaging effects that such an allegiance would be calculated to have upon my mental, intellectual and more especially my political standing in the community. This effort to release myself of such a horridious character will doubtless suffer much unpopularity, yet the advice of many friends, compounded with the earnest desire of ridding myself of all undesirable associations that have the tendency to compromise the opinion of the public towards me, fully warrants the necessity for such a drastic step.

In taking such a bold step in self-defense, I am exceedingly anxious that the hereafter released kindred spirit may not be left in a state of loneliness. I, therefore, bespeak in fee simple forever, some of the characteristics of my honored Lord Pinkey Prevette who were so generously imposed upon me, namely: dignity, unsober judgment, and the ability to laugh.

It is hoped that the addition of these qualities to the large number of similar ones he now has, will materially add to John Bynum's success, even though it extends to a senator's seat in the legislative chambers of the nation.

Safety First

"He whosteals and stays not, to fight may live to steal some other night!" Sadly altered from the original version, but extremely appropriate to certain students who have a craving for grapes, apples, and pears that grow on the vines and trees of our neighbors around the college. Several young gentlemen showed themselves to be thorough believers in the maxim "Caution is the better part of valor." Resting peacefully in the orchard of one of Wake Forest's legating citizens, feasting on the fruits of the vineyard, four enterprising sophoms were rudely shocked by the firing of a double barreled shot-gun in their immediate vicinity and by the sound of bird shot whistling around their ears. Now these sophomores knew that two (a man and a gun) is company so politely waited and stood not in the order of their going. The editor suggests that in the future these nocturnal prowlers, do not leave laundry bags with their initials on them, lying on the field or it is quite possible they will be summoned before the Honorable J. P. to answer for their wrong doing.

Poe and Tennyson Conspire

According to an answer given to the question, "Tell how Sir Galahad found the Holy Grail", we would be led to believe that Messrs. E. A. Poe and A. L. Tennyson had formed some kind of trust or monopoly to promote the interests of literature. We substantiate this belief by quoting verbatim, the answer given by a student, to the above question. The answer runs as follows:

"By dropping something through the eye of a needle found on the branch of a tree. Measuring a certain distance and in a certain way from where the object fell on the ground. After having measured then to dig at a certain spot and in a certain way or angle. The Holy Grail was the result of this labor. If I remember correctly, they were not allowed to talk during the time they were digging."

Rev. Rufus Ford, B. A., ’76, has resigned the pastorate at Marion, S. C., which he has filled for the past twelve years. He becomes financial agent of Coler College, of Hartsville, S. C. He will continue to reside at Marion.

Dr. E. W. Sibert, B. A., M. A., ’91, is entering upon his new work as President of Coler College with the most favorable prospects. A returning lady visitor reports him fair and jolly and “having the time of his life.” She also says that the work of being president of a woman’s college just suits him.

The only Wake Forest man to enter the European War, so far as we know, was Paul Rockwell, ’95. He was wounded two years ago and has not since been in the service, but has been in Paris as newspaper correspondent for certain metropolitan papers. He has a most graphic style and writes most interestingly. Before going to Europe he had been on the staff of an Atlanta paper. He is a brother of Kiffin Yates Rockwell, the diving aviator recently killed on the Somme front.

Dr. G. T. Watkins, Jr., ’13, was a visitor at Wake Forest during the week. After leaving Wake Forest he took his medical degree at Jefferson, and later served as intern in a Philadelphia hospital. He is locating in Durham for the practice of his profession.

Dr. Watson B. Rankin, B. A., has become a national figure in the line of health work. As Secretary of the State Board of Health in North Carolina he has done much to awaken an intelligent and practical interest in sanitation in nearly every county. During the summer he created a sensation at a meeting in Washington of a body of physicians who were discussing infantile paralysis, by telling them that he had not been able to learn anything from their discussion and felt sure they knew nothing about the disease. And Dr. Rankin seems to have been right.

The New Athletic Field

Wake Forest is just now building the new athletic field—the equal of anything in the state. A needful thing at Baptistville doesn’t exist—and we are very glad to see this move and hasten to wish the campaigners the greatest success. The field, if it is realized, will contain a football gridiron, a baseball field and golf links. The ground has been purchased and the first payment made. With such added necessities, Wake Forest should come to the fore in North State Athletics.

The inclusion of a golf links, though, speaks well for the far-sightened of the Wake Forest athletic committees. We firmly believe that the time is rapidly approaching when golf will be included in college athletics. Already in the eastern colleges golf is a cherished form of intercollegiate sport, Harvard having won the championship only last week. Carolina students have access to a fair course, Davidson students have access to a six-hole course, A. & M. students have access to the Raleigh Country Club links, while Trinity may use the Durham links. We trust that at no distant date, golf matches will be played on neutral courses for the college championship of North Carolina. Charlotte News.

Moot Court in Regular Session

That Snipes was not guilty of criminal attack was the verdict rendered by the jury at Moot Court which convened Friday night, Sept. 22.

Both sides of the case, State vs. Snipes, were ably defended; by Taylor, Tarlton, and Blanton for the State, and Pennell and Cole for the defense. Every point was hotly contested, neither side withdrawing an inch from its contentions.

The Court was ably presided over by Justice Aronson, whose fairness and excellent rulings gained for him the approbation of all present.

Friday night, September 22, was set aside by the Philomathian and Eudolian Literary Societies of Wake Forest College, for the purpose of initiating the new men into the society. Sixty new men were initiated into the Philomathian Society and seventy-seven into the Eudolian Society.

There are many other new men yet to join, and it is hoped that they will join one of the societies at once, and get down to business.

Miss Missie Dunn entertained our little girl friends Tuesday afternoon, celebrating her fifth birthday. The guests were invited at four o'clock, at which time Mrs. Dunn accompanied the little folks to the Gem Theater where they enjoyed the moving pictures. After the performance, the hostess served ice cream cones at the Willmopolitan ice cream parlor and the little folks declared they had the very best time they ever had. Those present were Lucy Good Jackson, Nebba Powers, Harriet Bruce and Lizzie Adams Powers, Lulu Belle Highsmith, Dorothy and Lilian Davis and Francis Greason.

Mr. Holliday Injured

The many friends of Mr. J. H. Holliday will regret of the accident which he sustained Thursday morning at his shop, in which he suffered a broken leg just above the ankle, and several minor bruises. He was immediately given attention by Drs. J. B. Powers and G. A. Allen. It seems that Mr. Holliday was coming down the stairway at the rear of his shop when he stumbled and fell to the ground. He is now resting very well at the College Hospital, and it is hoped he will soon recover.

For the first time in the history of Wake Forest College, the announcement of the purchase of a new athletic field has been made. The new field, located east of the gymnasium, and containing ample ground for a football field, will be ready for use in the fall. The field will be purchased from the Ray Club, and the price agreed upon is $10,000. The field will be used for both football and baseball games, and the principal of the school, Dr. Royster, has assured all who are interested in the present athletic field that the new field will be of the highest quality and will be ready for use in the fall.

The present athletic field has long been a thorn in the flesh to the faculty and students of Wake Forest College. The field is small and unsatisfactory, and the weather conditions make it impossible to play on it at certain times of the year. The new field will be a great improvement, and will be a source of pride to the college.

HON. T. W. BICKETT THRILLS CAPACITY AUDIENCE

(Continued from page 1) tenance of peace Mr. Bickett said, "It is because a divine sense of justice rules in Washington; because the people in an hour of distress have to the president a man who believes that the commencement, "Thou shalt not kill," is just as binding on nations as individuals." While airing the folly of Mr. Hughes' criticism of the President's Mexican policy, and showing his inability to find a flaw in the entire three years of democratic administration, the speaker suggested the devastated conditions in Mexico, discussing the various steps taken by the President, and endorsing his position in the non-recognition of a government of treachery and assassination. In an effort, which proved very successful, to justify the changesheenship of the President's Mexican policy, and mention- ing the various situations confronting the President, the speaker said, "When a man finds himself surrounded on the east by rattlesnakes, on the west by yellow jackets, on the north by man-eating sharks and on the south by hell-fire and damnation, he is bound to change his mind or soon be he will have no chance to change it."

Passing from the discussion of Mexican situation, Mr. Bickett next spoke of the universal prosperity of the country. "We are today enjoy ing the greatest period of prosperity of any nation at any time. Woodrow Wilson and the democratic party have brought to the country an epidemic of prosperity. Cotton is roosting in the tree-tops; to-bacco is climbing the mountain peaks; pearling calves are pawing at the man in the moon; and wheat is tangling with the stars."

The speaker then stated that the financial standing of the United States was better than that of any nation on the globe, assigning the wisdom of the democratic party and efficiency of democratic officials as reasons for such improved financial conditions. The speaker pointed out the serious condition of affairs at the outbreak of the war, relating the details of a threatened money panic slated by Wall Street bankers that was averted by the wisdom of Secretary McAdoo in carrying out democratic law. Mr. Bickett said that had it not been for the new currency under democratic administration, that "instead of riding the tide of prosperity, today we would have been wallowing in the mire of bankruptcy."

Doubtless the strongest part of the next governor's speech appeared in a discussion of the inherent deficiencies of the old money system under Republican rule, and the comparison of that system with the new one of today. He talked at length on panics, and in an exceedingly clever way illustrated how Republican spellbinders in the old days attributed everything unpleasant that happened to a Cleveland panic. Batiste on td show that neither Mr. Cleveland nor Mr. Roosevelt were to blame for panics, saying that panics were due to the rigidity of the old money system. He said the liberal commercial system has brought in the present Republican party for saddling upon the people an old, worn-out, thread­bare money system, and keeping it there for over a half-century. Besides the rigidity of the old system, he said that it was void of elasticity. "Instead of a policy of mutual helplessness we had a policy of cow ardice." The defects of the old system were classified as follows: (1) Rigid, (2) No provision for use of money in treasuary, (3) Under control of a few, (4) No provision for farmers.

Mr. Bickett next mentioned the remedial effects of the Federal Reserve Act; explaining how it was adjustable to any situation, how it forever eliminated the possibility of another money panic, elasticity, he said, being the birth-mark of the new law. He showed that the new law not only removed the rigidity but that so characterized the old system, but it also made provision for the farmer's interests and removed the capital of the United States from Wall Street back to Washing to. The speaker made a passing reference to the Rural Credit Law, and its benefits to farmers. He also stated that enormous expendi tures were being made by the government in the building of good roads, all for the direct benefit of the farmers. "Then it matters not what may have been his party affiliation, he owes it to his wife and children to come out this year and stand by the man who has stood by him."

Mr. Bickett then stated that the record of the democratic party in the State stands for itself, and in refusing to discuss the State record of the republican party, he said, "My mother taught me when only a lad, never to say an unkind thing about the dead."

In his closing remarks the speaker said that in the face of democratic victories and the unparalleled record of Woodrow Wilson, the approaching election will put the judgement of the people to a supreme test. After again complimenting Mr. Wilson and expressing his confidence in a democratic victory in November, North Carolina's next governor released the rapt attention of an audience, composed mainly of college students, whose pride in Thomas Walter Bickett is unrivaled anywhere in the State.

The Wake Forest College, provided for by the college dormitories were taken before the opening of the session, the new arrivals have painted the college. Student is now allowed to take over 18 hours of college work without specific permission from the faculty. The prescribed courses in the curriculum of the college have been distributed among the several classes. Each student is now required to take certain prescribed work each year he is in college.

The following regulation has also been passed by the faculty and is in force during the present session: "Resolved that no substitution of entrance work in English 1, English 2, History 1, French 1, German 1, and Mathematics 1 be allowed but that the amount of college credit claimed by any applicant for a degree be referred to the professor concerned."
