Dissident's Daughter Speaks on Glasnost and Human Rights

By David Sanger

The daughter of Russian dissident Andrei S. Sakharov has come to the United States to speak about her father, one of the most prominent Soviet dissidents, who is under house arrest in Moscow.

The daughter, Natalya, 22, is a student at Harvard University and a graduate of Moscow State University's philosophy department. She was previously exiled to the United States by Soviet authorities and was allowed to return to the Soviet Union only after her father was given leave to live near Moscow.

Natalya was arrested in 1979 and was held in a Moscow prison until her release in 1983. She has since been allowed to travel abroad but is not permitted to leave Russia permanently.

In an interview with the Associated Press, Natalya said:

"My father is a human being, and I think that everyone has the right to be a human being. If you are different from the majority, then you are a human being."

She added that her father, who is now 68, is in poor health and that she fear for his safety.

"He is under constant surveillance and harassment," she said. "I am worried that something will happen to him."

Natalya said that her father's work as a dissident has been consistently suppressed by Soviet authorities, who have systematically silenced or imprisoned him.

She said that her father's work has been "systematically erased" from history and that "the Soviet regime has never recognized the importance of his work."

Books and Food Combos At Rainbow News and Cafe

By By Michelle Bator

The Rainbow News and Cafe began as a small newsletter on Broadstone Avenue in 1979. Two years later, the owners realized its potential and began selling coffee and pastries in response to a growing clientele. That is when Deb Brody was hired to run the coffee shop. She describes the store as a place where people can come to relax and enjoy a good cup of coffee.

The cafe offers a variety of food options, including pastries, sandwiches, and salads. The menu changes daily, and Deb says that everything is made in-house. They also offer a selection of teas and coffee, with both hot and cold options available.

The cafe is a popular spot for locals and visitors alike. Deb says that the cafe is a great place to meet up with friends, work on a laptop, or just take a break from the hustle and bustle of daily life.

Deb says that the cafe has been a great place to meet new people, and that the cafe has a lot of regulars who come in every day. She says that the cafe is a great place to socialize and catch up with friends.

In addition to selling food and drinks, the cafe also offers a selection of books. They have a small library of books that are available for customers to read, and they also sell a variety of books, including local history and fiction.

Deb says that the cafe is a great place to come for a good meal, a good book, and a good cup of coffee. She says that the cafe has a great atmosphere and that everyone is welcome to come and enjoy a good time.

The Time Has Come for Reagan to Pursue Activist Art for the Policy-Making Table

Matthew Banks
Old Gold and Black Columnist

The entire world was watching as President Reagan and his new national security team met during the past several weeks. Rarely, if ever, has the topic been so important as the present leadership, in its newest form, has raised to a point where it is a matter of vital importance to the nation, if not to the world.

We are in the midst of a long, hard effort to bring about a better understanding of the situation. The present meetings of the United States and similar organizations represent an opportunity to cooperate, to build trust, to create a better understanding of the situation. The Confederate flag represents the Southern States and all the people who fought for the Confederacy, but not enough to fly a flag dedicated to the Southern cause. The Confederate flag is a symbol of courage, determination, pride, and perseverance for motives. It is one which people like Mr. Broughton and me incline to see as the kind of closed-mindedness and narrow-mindedness that Kenneth Edison Jones and his ilk stood for.

Document Testifies to R.E.M.'s Evolution

By James A. Bauck
Old Gold and Black Reporter

R.E.M., undergrowth music's most well-known band, has outgrown the music industry's most hotly contested secret, recently released in new albums, R.E.M. No. 1 and Document. Although the musical and vocal critics are widely divided about the R.E.M.'s earliest releases, the album is solid throughout and is another step in R.E.M.'s continually evolving music.

The album's "Last" side opens with the album's most powerful song, "Chronic Reservation". Guitars initicate Peter Buck delivers社区 guitar that kicks off the most prominent drumming ever by drummer Bill Berry (the man with the biggest "Why?" in his show). Vocalist Michael Stipe enunciates with "I'm what we are and what we need. We've been altered," and R.E.M.'s typical radio-like consonants. Document then slows down a bit with "Welcome to the Occupation," a song criticizing government purportedly realising without Buck's payday guitar. "The End of the World As We Know It," the last date on the tour, includes Stipe's confessing that "everything's going down, that's a real quick." The side concludes with the album's most incredible song, "Peer to Peer, part of the End of the World As We Know It," with the most amazing solo. A song that's a real quick.

The "Peek" side opens with the album's first single, "The One I Love," a simple song with many possible interpretations. The song seems to have already reached "Can't Help Myself" at the highlight of the Audience, Go, and the group's definitive live show, "Murmur.""It follows" is a potentially good song mixed in a seemingly endless chorus that would be more proper on a long album. Luckily, R.E.M. replaced the horn with a guitar solo in concert.

Document, produced by Michael Stipe and the band, is correct. However, I don't consider R.E.M.'s best album. The single country sound an ode to rockabilly, their second LP, is almost entirely gone in lieu of a cleaner sound, helping the listener to figure out all the lyrics that were necessarily their renderings without much trouble. Back was not the case for Murphy, their first LP, and their original LP Chronic Stone. Much of the mystery and confusion surrounding R.E.M. that drove the band to their present form is still unknown. After the opening number, the band flew into "All the Time," with the joyous sound of a happy guitar. Bryant turned into a pedal steel guitar, and Michael Stipe's vocals were delivered at a breakneck, apocalyptic speed.

The "All" side opens with a stinky song mixed in a seemingly endless chorus. A song that's a real quick.

Bono Hoarse But Energetic in Live U2 Show

By Steve Hинформацион
Old Gold and Black Reporter

On Oct. 25, Lepricon, KY, witnessed a long-awaited concert by the legendary U2, on their recent "Boy" tour. The show, named "The One I Love," was held at the University of Kentucky's Coliseum. The band, known for their few recorded songs, was described as a "band that is growing up."

The show started with "All the Time," and the band took the stage. The band's lead singer, Bono, began singing about their recent concerts and their future plans. The band then played their famous hit "All the Time," and the crowd went wild.

In December, 1986 Gotischer added sidewalk in Corky, where lanterns were a standard style, and followed him as he was free to return to Moscow.

The release of 200 other less-prominent political prisoners followed. Yankelevich said the release was "the most impressive achievement so far of perestroika." Yankelevich noted that, although the trend of glumness may start and reverse at any time, the longer it runs the more difficult it is to reverse.

At one point during the question and answer session which followed her lecture, a man in the audience began asking with Yankelevich about the existence of parallels between the treatment of American prisoners and Soviet political prisoners.

The committee took a financial loss on it. That has made everyone take a step back. It makes one cautious, and that's working to our benefit now."

"There are a lot of good reasons why we haven't done a big concert since then. We are working really hard to do one now."

A man in the audience was asked whether he was free to return to Moscow.

"Yes, that is answered."

Deacons Look to End Losing Streak at Death Valley

By Bob Red

The special Clemson-Penn State game will try to snap a two-game losing streak when they meet tomorrow night in Clemson in Death Valley.

Penn State, led by quarterback Rodney Woodson, has not lost to the Tigers since 1984. The Deacons are the only ACC team to win at Penn State in the last 25 years.

The visiting team has raised the Deacons one spot in the polls to No. 10, and they look to continue their recent success against ACC foes.

The Deacons offense, led by quarterback Trevor Lawrence, has averaged 33.4 points per game in their last three games.

The Tigers defense, led by linebacker Micah Parsons, has allowed only 14.0 points per game in their last four contests.

The game should be a defensive battle, with both teams relying on their strong secondary units.

The winner will likely secure a spot in the ACC Championship Game, while the loser could be eliminated from playoff contention.

Joining Williams in the background are several Wake Forest players who are enjoying excellent seasons thus far. Terry Allen is the team's leading receiver with 257 yards and four touchdowns. Wesley McFarland and Sam Frizzell are also contributing to the offense, combining for over 150 yards and four scores.

Clemson has a talented group of receivers who have been consistent and reliable. Ke'Shawn Vaughn, Cooper Kupp, and Zay Jones have combined for over 700 yards and eight touchdowns.

Karate Club Provides Variety to Members

"We teach a Korean form of karate," front Kim Kok, left, and back Kim Do, but we do not teach the nunchaku," he said. "The nunchaku is a weapon, not a tool for self-defense."

"The club's main objective is to provide a place where people can come and learn karate," said Do. "We have members of all ages and backgrounds, and our focus is on teaching the discipline and values associated with karate."
Secules Leads Cavs to Win

Junior Kirkman and freshmen Stephen Phillips, Michael Dilworth and Barry Money led the Virginia Tech offense to a convincing 20-10 victory over Wake Forest last Saturday.

"It was our play," Virginia Tech coach Bill Dooley said. "Our team did an effective job of running the football and passing the football, and Virginia was just not able to make the big play.

One bright spot of the night for Wake Forest was the play of sophomore split end Rick Ypsilon, who caught two touchdown passes and ran for another.

Phillies hooked up with quarter back Mike Elliot, who ran for 29 yards on the night, for touchdown receptions of 40 and 16 yards, the first coming at 1:56 of the second quarter.

Pitts tied the score at 20-20 midway through the third quarter. However, the Cavaliers accumulated 218 yards and 21 points in the second half.

QM: Greggs went 20 for 33 with 289 yards and three touchdowns. Wilson completed 12 for 20 with 122 yards.

"You really just have to give Virginia Tech credit," Dooley said. "They executed very well and we didn't.

Virginia overcame the most physically and mentally demanding challenge they've ever faced.

"It was beautiful back there (in Chapel Hill) until the second quarter when the score was tied at zero and we went away," Virginia coach Mike Hollen said.

Virginia Tech took the scoring lead for good with 4:02 remaining in the second quarter when senior quarterback Mike Elliot hooked up with freshman split end Rick Ypsilon for a 40-yard touchdown pass.

The Cavaliers accumulated 218 yards on 21 points in the second half.
