Chi Psi Fraternity Wants To Move In To Student Townhouses

By John McKelvey and Joe Mathews

The Chi Psi Fraternity will move into student townhouses in 1989 if the administration agrees to the fraternity's request. The administration said it would review Chi Psi's proposal from an ad hoc committee chaired by Mike Ford, the associate dean of students, before the fraternity can have townhouses.

The proposal calls for Chi Psi to take over the three townhouses located next to the Student Union. Chi Psi currently occupies two of the townhouses along with the Gamma chapter, the men's tennis team, and other students.

In addition to the Chi Psi fraternity, a house of the men's tennis team will be moved into the townhouses. The townhouses were never designed to house a team and were never intended to be served as athletic facilities.

The administration must approve any proposal from an ad hoc committee chaired by Mike Ford, the associate dean of students, before the fraternity can have townhouses.

Parking Fines Will Go To SU Budget

By Garland Kimmerle

Parking fines from the 1987-88 year will go directly to the Student Union budget, said they would receive approximately $1,000.

By Dr. Richard Streitmatter

University officials said during the hearing that the parking fines are not earmarked for minority students.

The proposal would shift Public Safety's emphasis on revenue generation from parking fines to a more pro-active role in community service.

Reid Morgan, Wake Forest's public relations officer, said that the best thing for the Wake Forest community was to go on a no-revenue program to help the local community.

Although law enforcement would no longer be the primary objective, Morgan said the public would have the capacity to protect the campus against criminal conduct, but the university would rely primarily on the Winston-Salem police for support in criminal matters.

President Thomas K. Hearn Jr. said the lack of cooperation and contact with the administration is the major reason for the increase in parking tickets.

Student Union's Editor in Chief, Martha Corbett, said that the increase in parking fines was due to the realignment from public safety to the Student Union. She said the Student Union has been used by the administration as a revenue generator.

Committee Discusses Registration Forum

By David Bate
Old Gold and Black Reporter

A computer registration subcom- mittee of the Committee on Academic Affairs met Wednesday to discuss a possible open forum on registration procedures.

The subcommittee decided if it receives enough input on registration con- cerns, it will hold an open forum later this semester.

"Guests were invited to de- mocratize whether all the complaints about registration really have substance or whether there's just something that people like other schools usin- g," said chairman Ellen Hanus, an associate professor of mathematics and computer science.

"We've made every effort to meet the administration's voice con- cerns" said Alvis Kemp, the commit- tee's chairman. "He said there are many students who complain about registration.

"I don't think the subcommittees are looking for an open forum, but it would be nice to hear about the registration problems from other schools.

"If you have a concern about registration, contact any member of the committee, particularly me," he said.

The College Fund consists of several subcommittees that work with the board of alumni. The board of alumni is the group that agrees on a month's worth of subcommittees. The group is one of the few committees that work with the board of alumni that is composed of at least one representative from all classes.

It is expected that during the next few days the board of alumni will set up a new subcommittee that is not composed of students.

Free the Electors

Don Chadham

Therefore, let’s free the Electors. We should not force General Elections on the campus, and we should allow Wake Forest to conduct their own, whenever it deems fit regardless of “the people.”

With the Electors freed, the potential candidates can concentrate on their campaign efforts on campus. They will be able to feature unbridled, and their behavior will be completely free. Jereny Jordan’s statement is the obvious winner. Let’s stop don’t­ caring about the politics and the terms of history. Wake Forest should then be free.

Let’s free the Electors a second time – let us then also be able to read many more reports on Gary Hopper’s running for Governor.

Richard Gephardt’s sudden withdrawal might be a sign of change on how we can be. Let’s free the National Public from the repressive forces of the past. Let’s unleash the people and the potential of the future. Let’s free the “good old days” of the past.

The real point is that Wake Forest is a university within the universities. It is a university within the university. It is a university within the system.

WAKE FOREST UNIVERSITY: VANGUARD OF CULTURAL DEVELOPMENT VERSUS TRADITIONAL EDUCATION

Grad Students as Teachers

During my interviews for intensive summer jobs a few years ago, I discovered that Wake Forest rarely was willing to hire young, unseasoned graduate students. A naive high school senior, I truly believed that upon graduating with my degree I would have earned a doctorate. Upon further investigation, however, I was not surprised to find that merely possessing a doctorate means one is a better instructor. Highly talented graduate students, with just a few more years of experience, can make a noticeable and lasting contribution to the education of any student.

Also, as professors themselves candidly acknowledge, many students would not do well without the presence of an older and wiser individual. I have personally been convinced that merely possessing a doctorate confers a better instructor. Highly talented graduate students, with just a few more years of experience, can make a noticeable and lasting contribution to the education of any student.

The Compartmentalization of Excellence

...Despite the obvious benefits of these changes, it is possible that such an atmosphere of compartmentalization will prove detrimental to the future of our students.

The faculty at our university is divided into numerous committees, each with its own agenda and goals. These committees focus on specific areas of expertise and research, often isolating them from the overall academic environment. As a result, the faculty members may not share the same vision or goals, leading to a fragmented approach to education.

While this compartmentalization can be beneficial in promoting specialization and expertise, it may also hinder the flow of ideas and the development of a cohesive educational experience. Students may find it challenging to see the interconnectedness of different disciplines and the broader implications of their studies.

Furthermore, the compartmentalization can create a sense of separation between faculty and students. Since faculty members are often deeply involved in research and their respective fields, they may not have the same level of engagement and accessibility that a more integrated academic environment would provide.

In conclusion, the compartmentalization of excellence at our university has both positive and negative aspects. While it promotes specialization and expertise, it may also hinder the flow of ideas and the development of a cohesive educational experience. Balancing these aspects will be crucial in ensuring a successful educational experience for our students.

Determine Your Tuition Increase

Will tuition increase again during this academic year? The answer is yes. However, we can still continue to hope that the tuition increase will be less than that of last year. Many student organizations are working hard to limit the tuition increase to a reasonable amount.

Rules to Live By and Other Stuff

New Year's resolutions are borne-housed in the past. There are only a few of them worth keeping, and they have a short, sad, and lonely life. What is the point of a New Year's resolution? It is only one more thing that I loathe about Christianity, but being in the minority of this inoffensive march like the rest of God's creatures, what can I do? Self-improvement and self-discovery do not exist, I am told. Are we not just animals, like the rest of the species? The New Year is a time to review the year and the promises made during the year. Whether you choose to keep or break your resolutions, it is important to reflect on your progress and make plans for the upcoming year.

Two Lab Plays Are Entertaining and Professional

By Terry Shopping

In the unfinished quilt in the living room, a tapestry is being woven by two women, their hands working in unison, their stitches delicate and precise. The quilt is a labor of love, a testament to their love of each other and their shared passion for art. The women work together, their thoughts in sync, their movements fluid and graceful. They have been working on this quilt for months, each day adding a new row, a new layer of meaning to the fabric of their lives.

The tapestry represents the women's deep connection, a bond that is unbreakable. They have been through so much together, and yet they have always managed to find a way to come together, to share their joy and their pain. The quilt is a symbol of their strength, a reminder that even in the darkest of times, there is always hope.

The women work tirelessly, their hands moving in perfect harmony. They are creating something beautiful, something that will last. The quilt is not just a piece of art, but a piece of their history, a piece of their love.

As they work, they think of all the people they have known, all the places they have been. They think of the good times and the bad, and yet they remain unshaken, their spirits unbroken. For they know that no matter what may happen, they will always have each other, and the quilt will always be there, a symbol of their love and their resilience.

The quilt is not just a piece of art, but a piece of their souls. It is a piece of their story, a piece of their journey. And as they work, they know that they are creating something that will be passed down to future generations, something that will live on long after they are gone. The quilt is a legacy, a testament to their love, and their bravery.

Hollywood Shuffle Explores Blacks in Film

By Donna Rowan

This week, you need at least $15 million to make a feature film. If you want something a little smaller, you need $30 million. But if you're interested in making a film about Hollywood, as seen through a character's eyes, you might want to try the $6 million for 12 new credits.

The movie, directed by John Sayle, is a satire of the film industry, and it's a part of the "Blaxploitation" genre. The movie is set in Hollywood, where everyone is talking about the death of black movie star John Sayle, who was found dead in his home. The movie follows the adventures of several characters, including a TV producer, a movie star, and a news reporter, as they investigate the death and try to understand the film industry.

The movie is notable for its use of African American actors and its portrayal of the film industry. It's also notable for its use of humorous and satirical elements, as it parodies the film industry's stereotypes and conventions.

The movie was released in 1985, and it was nominated for an Academy Award for Best Original Screenplay. It's a notable film in the history of African American cinema, and it remains a popular choice for film lovers and scholars.

Kitley's Determination Makes Up For Lack of Natural Ability

By Russell Blake
Old Gold and Black Reporter

Ralph Kitley doesn't have as much talent as some of the other players on the team, but he holds us up with his work ethic and hustle. When I go out on the court, I know I can rely on him to do his job to the best of his ability.

Kitley is a very versatile player, able to play multiple positions, which allows the coach to use him in different situations. He's a good defender and has a good sense of the game.

Kitley is also a good shooter, able to make shots from the outside. He's not a big scorer, but he can provide a spark off the bench.

I believe that Kitley's determination and work ethic make up for his lack of natural ability. He's a good team player and always looking to make plays for his teammates.

I'm looking forward to seeing what Kitley can do this season and I'm sure he'll continue to improve his game.
