Annual Conference Debates WF Policies

The 54 student leaders, administrators and faculty who gathered last weekend at Camp Conway for the second annual President's Leadership Conference did not always agree about what was best for Wake Forest. But according to William B. Knief, the Student Government president, the conference was a success.

Sponsored by President Thomas R. Power Jr. and Dr. Verne, the conference was designed to improve student involvement and self-governance at Wake Forest.

"It was a valuable opportunity for the students, administrators and faculty to

...and to discuss what we are doing here," Knief said.

Student leaders at the conference represented sports teams, special interest clubs and associations, the Student Union, chiefs, student government, finance, administration, society, and publications.

A group discussion on self-governance revealed that more students in the conference believe a system similar to student council could strengthen student awareness. Knief said that the administration was only willing to make a commitment to the topic if the conference, the vice president for administration and planning, responded to the conference participants that the visi-

Towers Renovated Over Summer

Approximately $250,000 will be used this year to renovate dorm rooms and at least that much will be used for the next six years, according to Dean Gregor. The dorm rooms will be refurbished for the upcoming fall semester and will be available to students.

A new lounge facility for the student apartments, located on the second and third floors, has been completed in early September. The facility, which Gregor described as a "great project," contains several offices of the student government, including the student services office, the director of residence life and the residence life office.

Gregor said that the project was designed to improve the overall quality of student life on campus. He added that the new lounge will provide a more comfortable and inviting atmosphere for students, especially during the winter months when the weather is cold.

The renovated dorm rooms will be available for students to sign up for the upcoming fall semester.

Kappa Alpha Receives Ten Day Suspension

The Kappa Alpha fraternity has been placed on a 10-day suspension following their failure to properly submit a copy of the procedures manual to the office of Student Affairs. The fraternity was not able to provide a copy of the procedures manual to the office of Student Affairs as required by the university's student conduct policy.

The fraternity has been placed on probation for 10 days. During this period, the fraternity will be required to submit a copy of the procedures manual to the office of Student Affairs.

The fraternity will be given a chance to correct any deficiencies in the procedures manual before the suspension is lifted.

Mason held a campus-wide volunteer session in the Great Bend Room of the Student Union on Saturday. The afternoon was part of the Student Union’s celebration of the campus-wide volunteer session. The event was designed to encourage students to become involved in volunteer activities.

The session was led by Dr. Mary Ann Taylor, director of the Office of Volunteer Services. Dr. Taylor explained the importance of volunteering and encouraged students to find ways to get involved.

The event was open to all Mason students and featured a variety of volunteer opportunities.

The session was well-attended, with more than 100 students attending. Many of the attendees were interested in finding ways to get involved in volunteer activities and were excited to learn more about the opportunities available.

Dr. Taylor also mentioned that the Office of Volunteer Services is always looking for new volunteers and that students can contact the office to learn more about upcoming opportunities.

The event was a success and was well-received by the attendees. Many students expressed interest in getting involved in volunteer activities and were excited to learn more about the opportunities available.

Dr. Taylor encouraged students to continue to look for ways to get involved in volunteer activities and to consider volunteering as a way to give back to their community.

The event was sponsored by the Office of Volunteer Services.

Salem Renovations Include Laboratory Space

By Jennifer Valentine

Old Gold and Black Reporter

The Office of Physical Plant is currently renovating the science wing of the Student Union to create additional laboratory space.

The project involves the expansion of the existing science wing and the addition of new laboratory space. The new laboratory space will feature state-of-the-art equipment and will be available to all students.

The renovation is expected to be completed by the end of the month.

The project is part of the University’s ongoing effort to improve the facilities on campus and to provide students with the best possible learning environment.

The University is committed to providing students with the resources they need to succeed and is continually investing in the development of its facilities.
Job Rush Saves '87 Graduates

Spring 1987 graduating seniors are easy to identify in the job market as the expert had predicted, the College Placement Council (CPC) reports. In an annual review of how well students did in gaining jobs, the council, a nationwide association of career placement, graduates and their families, noted a late spring flurry of compiles seeking to bridge the gap between supplied skills and what had been a "very slow" recruiting period in the preceding months.

"The year wound up being better for liberal arts," said Mrs. Karen Becht Ford, assistant director of Career Services. College graduates in the last five years have had a hard time "realizing their highest potentials," so that "the year wound up being better for liberal arts," said Mrs. Karen Becht Ford, assistant director of Career Services.

Policy Change Makes "Dry Rush Really Dry"

By Karen Becht, Vice President

Organizations conducting a formal review period are not permitted to issue alcohol beverages to members during that review period, according to a newly-revised policy in the student alcohol beverage policy. The statement previously said that organizations shall not serve alcoholic beverages.

Ford worked with Interfraternity Council President Andrea Gillepse, Interfraternity Council President A.A. Lumsden and Interfraternity Council President Will Morriston to make the changes. The prohibition applies to beer sales, drinking contests, and any impersonation of a patron of the bar. It reflects the use of alcoholic beverages as places in any type of contact at a social function.

Muo Ford, the associate director of members, noted that the change "will make dry rush really dry." The policy itself, a two-page document containing the philosophy, legal content, guiding principles and policy statements, underwent slight revisions to an attempt to make the policy's implementation more coherent.

Convocation
Occasion for Campus Unity

As Convocation approaches, the university community is reminded of the purpose and importance of this annual tradition. It is a time for reflection and a recommitment to the ideals that guide our institution. The convocation address, delivered by a distinguished speaker, provides an opportunity for reflection on the values that underpin our academic community.

First, Convocation serves as a reminder of our commitment to academic excellence and the pursuit of knowledge. It is a time to celebrate the achievements of our students and faculty, and to recognize the contributions of our alumni.

Second, Convocation reflects the traditions that bind us together as a community. It is a time to reaffirm our commitment to the traditions and values that have shaped our university over the years.

Third, Convocation is an opportunity to reflect on the impact that our university has on our local community and beyond. It is a time to celebrate the ways in which our university contributes to the greater good.

Fourth, Convocation is a time to celebrate the diversity of our community. It is a time to recognize the contributions of students from all backgrounds and to affirm our commitment to creating an inclusive and welcoming environment.

Finally, Convocation is an opportunity to reflect on the challenges and opportunities that lie ahead. It is a time to think about the role that our university will play in shaping the future.

In conclusion, Convocation is an occasion for campus unity. It is a time to reflect on our shared values, to reaffirm our commitment to academic excellence, and to celebrate the diversity of our community. It is a time to think about the future and to reaffirm our commitment to our university as a place of learning, growth, and community.

Scheduling

The convocation address will be delivered by a distinguished speaker at 10:00 a.m. on Friday, September 4, 1987, in the student union. The event will be followed by a light reception in the student union commons.

Seeking World Peace in a Nuclear Age

BELL HORTON
Old Gold and Black Columnist

Berlin was not and will not be the first stepping stone in European peace. The world has seen the destruction of the British Empire, the collapse of the Roman Empire and the dismantling of the British Empire in the south. There is a need for these instrumental processes to take place. The world is now in a state of the utmost turbulence. Our help is necessary.

There are two reasons for this. First, the world is in turbulence and its debtors and creditors must make its demands (or requests) in the case of the Eurozone, must at this time is the order which is most likely to get the most accomplished. Without questions, the problems of disarmament take precedence over the nuclear right to peace. When seeking these solutions, neither nations nor individual leaders are immediately involved. However, the problem is a new and ever-present threat should be dealt with first, and a lack of civil rights does not have the power to be the world in the time it takes to make this article, as does the turmoil.

The bulk of the rest of the article will be of no importance.

The Grass Is Not Always Greener Elsewhere

I suppose that all freshmen have some apprehension about the college. As a new student, I felt a bit of anxiety about the college, but as I got used to the place, I felt more comfortable.

The first month was spent on the campus. The orientation continued on the days of the remainder. I met many people, and I think the reason I jumped at the chance to see the campus was to try my chance to attend Wake Forest. When I arrived at the college, I was at school at the college experience thus far. That is why I joined a group of people who are five hours to drive or a course. I intended to register for the five hours to drive as a home, and I ended up being a college person.

I got a sense of three long walks on a tour of the campus. Aside from the show of some of the agricultural program, one would expect to see more. You can see a picture of an old college, but you can also see the picture on the building.

While at the new college, the campus is going to a party at Forest City Hall, the picture of the college, the picture of the college, the picture of the college hall, you can see another picture in your presentation.

When we arrived at the party, the crew who, although they may not be driving around (probably because they could not stagger in a car) had decided to make a traffic light instead. Two of them had positioned themselves on each side of the street and were playing " Waldoli chicken" with spinning cars. The effect of this new game was to throw the vehicles across the street and the path of an approaching car without actually hitting the car. Every third car got bented - the crew got a bit of traction. When my friends and I left the party, we made sure not to cross the "chicken path."

We have long-term, short-term and mid-range missions: to provide a new generation of students with a chance at a bright future. Or at least a path to success. The need for education remains at the same level of importance, the amount of time, energy and resources spent on these things is overwhelming.

If you think of the situation in a simplistic manner, you'll be a total idiot sooner or later.

WAKE Begins Broadcasts With a Progressive Attitude

By Chris Horner

WAKE's first week was a highly successful endeavor. The station opened its doors on September 8th, and already it has made its presence known on the campus and beyond. The station received widespread support from students, faculty, and staff, and many local businesses have expressed interest in advertising on WAKE. The station's programming has been described as diverse and progressive, reflecting the values of the Wake Forest community.

Dalton

By Jeff Rapp

He's not about to open the belly of the ultra-fancy, full of options and automobiles to let his car's engine roar. He's going to pop the top of a Timbuktu Blue B-25 and fly his way to the edge of the universe. The sky, the stars, the wind, the world, and a hundred miles of nothing. The most that he'll be doing is breathing in the cool, fresh air of a new adventure. He'll be flying in a tube, a tube that's been carefully designed for the perfect flight experience. It's a futuristic contraption, with everything you could possibly need to make your flight as comfortable and enjoyable as possible. A sleek, aerodynamic design, with a comfortable seat and a stunning view of the world below. This is the ultimate flying experience.

Dalton's Bond Highlight of New 007 Film

By Jeff Rogers
City Editor and Book Reviewer

It's never, but also deadly. He's at home in the open hills of Virginia or flying a jaguar plane full ofump from across the Arabian desert.

But he's got the straightest from the script - Timothy Dalton is not a carbon-copy of Roger Moore. The switch is a big one, but the actions are just beginning as the new James Bond takes charge in The Living Daylights.

Viewers will undoubtedly find the blend of action, surprise, humor and romance refreshing and exciting; particularly those who missed through A View To A Kill all those years ago. That film was paced to fail and critics often called for a new actor to replace Moore after his 12 year tenure as 007.

Thankfully, co-producers Albert R. Broccoli and his son, Michael G. Wilson heard the plea, and they recruited British star actor Timothy Dalton. The action playing M, Q, and Felix Leiter here Lawrence has been replaced in order to rejuvenate the series.

The advantage with Dalton is a sharp break from the most recent James Bond films. In fact, there hasn't been a Bond film this exciting since Sean Connery gave up the role in 1971 after making six of the first seven movies.

A further connection to the Connery era is the specially equipped Aston-Martin Vantage 007 new driven. Remember the Aston-Martin DBS Connery played in Goldfinger and Thunderball? Well, consider this as well. 007 has as many, if not more, tricks up his sleeve.

Of course, some changes in the series have not been accepted. As you may already know this film has the only leading lady, a Cordelia played by Marianne D'Abo. The attempt to make 007 noncommercial drama from the original source of guns, gams, locales and villains laid down by Ian Fleming in the '60s, is a feasible approach. Fleming was very partial, but once is left with the question, "If 007 is so important a character, why be married?"

My only other complaint is the tedious title score. Some composer John Barry did an enjoyable job with the Pepperpots for their score of the music, but it seems A has lost just any appetite may have once had with his like "Take On Me."

This Bond is well worth seeing. The Living Daylights is playing at Reynnlda Manor Triple and The Marketplace 6.

President Thomas K. Hearn, Jr., said that when looking at admissions, one must consider the number of applicants, the number of offers, and the number of students who accept the offers. Hearn said in order to increase the number of acceptances, the number of applicants must first increase; he had committed himself as a university to doubling the number of minority student applications. In his address to student leaders on October 1, President Hearn, Jr., said, "I hope we can challenge every student to take as the personal goal the identification of minority students." Hearn said, "I hope we can make it very clear that it can be done." Hearn said that the university was in a process of working out a plan to help students toward community service. Hearn said, "That's a difference the university is trying to do with," he said, referring to the student service program. "I hope we can make it very clear that it can be done." Hearn said that the university student body was not the same as the university's overall minority students. Hearn said that the university would continue to work on this issue, and the university was always trying to deal with more qualified students than it has before.

The office of minority affairs is also working on the help of minority students in their recruitment efforts. "Many minority students are working on a personal goal of community service," Hearn said.

Assistant Staff Aims to Teach Players Winning Ways

Willing and coached at Clemson for 15 years, Jordan is no stranger to the Atlantic Coast Conference. As the former offensive coordinator for the Pittsburgh Panthers and Southern Methodist University, he coached quarterbacks such as Eric Dickerson, Craig James and Vinny Testa.

When asked what he or an individual could bring to the Wake Forest program, Jordan said: "I coached in four bowl games in seven years, so one way or another, we have won a lot of games.

I've had the opportunity to play against a lot of teams and I know I can be competitive." Jordan added that he is happy to return to the ACC after seven seasons in the South, "because I coached in the ACC, coached in the SEC, and my family lives in South Carolina, so I think I'm coming home now.

He was impressed with Wake Forest in many ways, saying: "We should have had five or six wins this year. We just struggled a bit in the offense for a while, but we're coming back." Jordan said he was impressed with the team's "hard work, the atmosphere around here and the enthusiasm of the head coach, but Coach Patterson said that Deacon Club members' support is far from over.

Matice turned up with Kiss to win two doubles matches by scores of 6-2 and 6-3. Matice, Kiss turned his match by one hour. After the Walker Cup competition, Matice competed in the British Open. He was first to win in advance to the semi-finals, where he lost to the eventual winner.

Last weekend, Matice continued his pre-season preparation by playing in the United States Men's Open Qualifier with a 1-0. He was one of four players to earn spots in the main event.

McManus has overseen the fund drive for the Advantage general chairs. He said: "We have had strong support from the community and we are confident that we will meet our goal." The excess money will benefit other Deacon football programs, he added.

The潮流 is to encourage students to play on a different level, which takes a Wake Forest followed the team to an NFL championship When asked what he as an individual could do for Deacon football players, he responded: "I think the most important thing is to get involved in our community and to support our team financially."

"All players are part of the Deacon Club, so we are looking for contributions from all members of the community," he said.

"I think we have a great team this year," Jordan said. "We have a lot of talent and I think we can compete with anyone."

"We have played very well," Jordan continued. "We have had some losses, but we are coming back."

Despite the loss, Jordan remained optimistic about the season. "I believe we can compete with anyone," he said. "We have a lot of talent and I think we can do well this year.

The Deacon Club has encouraged players to give more than in the past. Jordan said: "We have encouraged players to give more, and we are seeing the results.""
Maryland

The Maryland Terrapins visit Clemson Stadium Oct. 31. Under new coach Joe Kruger, a former assistant at Maryland, the Terrapins are somewhat of a mystery in '87. Quirk Anchor Dan Mullen returns after a record-setting junior year to lead the offense. One thing in common — Hoosiers will have to face a poised quarterback, who enrolled in graduate school, is back for his final year of eligibility after sitting out last season with a 90 percent chance of injury. He will lead a group of veteran receivers, including Bowers Jones and James Miller.

Fred Edwards, an honorable mention all-America selection the son are running backs with some senior experience, their very experienced offensive line.

Wright returns for his fourth year in the place-kicking slot, while Darryl Welsh is another returning starter from the best defensive unit that gave up just 13.8 points per game in '86, returns for his senior year to anchor the defensive secondary.

Virginia

The following weekend, Oct. 24, Saturday, the Devils play the Cavaliers at Charlottesville, Va., to give the Virginia Commonwealth Coach George Welsh a try in rebounding from a 3-9 record after three straight winning seasons.

Last Tuesday, the red-shirt start-up, who played in 44 games for the previous two years, has his backup quarterback.

The Virginia receiving corps is strong and deep, with two seniors, Davy Williams and Kevin Walker and Richie Petit. Scott Secules, a red-shirt senior, is the same unit that gave up just 13.8 points per game in '86, returns for his senior year to anchor the defensive secondary.

One year ago, South Carolina coach Steve Spurrier said, "I beat Wake Forest last year, 32-yard field goal with 17 seconds left to win." Spurrier was correct. The game was one of many when the Gamecocks' performance was more, or less, than expected.

Tee Bethea leads a pack of talented wingbacks, two wide receivers and one running back. From a pro-style offense, Malcolm King moves over to quarterback. He has started for two years, and has had a very successful season. He will return for his senior year at the quarterback position.

The Gamecocks return for their senior year at the quarterback position. Scott Hagler, the conference's most valuable player last year, will anchor the linebackers, while Eric Martin and Darrell Jackson return at defensive end and tackle respectively. Scott Hagler leads a pack of talented wide receivers. Hagler is also very deep.

Two great ways to cruise through the semester

The hand on the left is poised on what could be the most essential part of your education.
A Macintosh computer.
And the hand on the right is gripping pure, simple, unadulterated fun.
A Honda Scooter. One we're giving away.
Because Macintosh can help you write term papers, categorize elements of the periodic table, plot the rise and fall of pork-belly prices, compile computer code, and talk to other computers.
And the first 250 people on campus who get behind a mouse, so to speak, will receive a free Apple memo board.
So head over to your campus computer center today.
And ask about our Student Financing Program.
Who knows? You may soon find yourself cruising a little farther than you expected.
