SG approves resolutions on reform

BY KENNETH GERTING

The student body will vote on a resolution to reform the Constitution of the Student Government on Dec. 5. The resolution is the result of the SG Legislature Tuesday, will transfer various functions of the constitution into statute.

The proposed change would "increase the effectiveness of the SG, particularly the judicial process," say members. This change would allow the SG Legislature to act as the judicial council to which the judicial system would appeal. The SG Legislature would also have the power to appeal to the Governor of the state if necessary.

The new Judicial Council would consist of the SG Legislature, the SG Executive Committee, and the SG Senate. The Council would have the power to hear appeals from the SG Legislature and the SG Senate. The Council would also have the power to hear appeals from the SG Senate and the SG Executive Committee.

Students place third in contest
Students from the MBA program placed third in the regional MBA Marketing Case Competition held last Oct. 21–22.

Teams from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and University of Virginia were first and second, respectively.

Seven regional universities competed in the competition, which raised their ability to derive a five-year strategic marketing plan for five Japanese companies.

The event was co-sponsored by the Wake Forest MBA Marketing Association and E.H. Rayburn/Reebok International.

Spring trip to Russia offered
A year of Russian classes is being offered over Spring Break, March 6–13. This year’s trip costs $2,265.

The trip includes cultural excursions, a visit to a farm, and an opportunity to participate in a two-week course on the Russian language. The trip is open to students interested in international studies. William Hamilton, director of the Russian exchange program, said he hopes to establish Russian study in Europe.

Flu vaccinations to continue
Students will continue to administer one-time flu vaccinations to staff, students, and faculty until Christmas Break.

Vacinations are available Monday-Friday from 8:30–11:30 a.m. and 1:30–5:30 p.m. Appointments are suggested.

VSC to sponsor logo contest
The Volunteer Service Corps is sponsoring a contest for the design for a VSC logo. The winner will be announced Dec. 10.

The VSC logo will be displayed on VSC correspondence, copies, and VSC-related publications. The logo will also be used on VSC brochures, posters, and other printed and audiovisual materials.

VSC members will vote on the logo. The logo should be creative and visually appealing.

Some runners have made plans to participate in the Student Volunteer Corps’ 20th annual spring road races, April 28–29.

The first race will be held at 5:30 a.m. on April 28, and the second will be held at 10:00 a.m.

“Last year, we had over 100 participants,” said Cameron Craven, a senior in mathematics.

Craven plans to participate in the second race.

The road races are open to all students and faculty.

The race course will start at the Central YMCA, and end at the YMCA on Glade Rd.

Dannette McCain, the chairwoman of the Student Volunteer Corps, said she believes the rides offer an opportunity to exercise and contribute to a good cause.

The feminist movement grew out of Western culture, even though its present form often clash, said Elizabeth Fox-Calves, a professor at Emory University, during a panel discussion on the premises and practices of Western feminism.

Fox, who is an expert on the history of feminism, said that the debate about women's roles and rights has been influenced by Western culture, even in the case of radical feminism. She noted that radical feminism has been a key player in the struggle for women's liberation, and that it has often been in conflict with the Western feminist movement.

"While radical feminism has been more radical in its approach to women's liberation, both movements are fundamentally linked," Fox said.

During her lecture, she spoke about the historical context of women's liberation and the political climate that has shaped the feminist movement.

"The feminist movement has been shaped by the political climate of the time," she said. "In the 1960s and 1970s, the feminist movement was very much a part of the anti-war movement and the civil rights movement. In the 1980s and 1990s, the feminist movement was more focused on women's rights and gender equality."
ASA forms to give help to Asians

Asian talks about racism and discrimination, there is one minority that often left out - Asian-American students. As an effort to change this, just last week the Asian Student Association was founded.

Choi said that to ensure the ASA last year took an Asian-American student's case and had to head to court to win the case for her.

The group, which began this fall, now has an informal club of about 17 people, has started a newsletter, which draws about 25 members in its monthly meeting.

The ASA is "a Terri help about Asian-Americans," says Venable. "We are not a political rights group or anything. Choi said that though Ernest Waite, who worked in Lebanon five years ago as an envoy for the Church of England and was captured while trying to negotiate the release of Western hostages, has been released. MEXICO CITY, Mexico - Mexican soldiers opened fire and killed several drug gang members in a street shootout early this morning.

The shooting was the latest in a series of violent incidents that have plagued the country for months.

In recent weeks, the government has taken steps to crack down on drug trafficking, including deploying more police officers and increasing the number of checkpoints.

In addition, the government has appealed to the international community for help in controlling the situation.

Naive judicial system must adapt to reality

If the John Morling hearings have done anything, and let us hope they have, it is shown that even an idealized system of due process can fail. In the case of our judicial system, it is no secret that we have a few quirks surfaced. That we are prone to the public, students who enter the process to be the accused, but also to the members who are vulnerable to outside attack—our system is simply not set up to deal with any of this.

Before the honor system is again opened up to examination, we must be ready. The university has already shown that it is committed to dealing with any of this, but we have to be prepared to deal with any serious issues that may arise.

Magical lesson: athletes are people, too

I am not what would be termed a "worldly" person. I have never postponed anything.

But the sport world is a different world, to a certain extent all of us. And when I say "worldly," I mean that the world of Magic. Johnson, basketball great for the Los Angeles Lakers, has been calculated to be worth $200 million in assets, according to his own estimate, because he contracted the HIV virus. At the same time, his public image as a "squeaky-clean" athlete and role model for young children, who look up to him, is a major part of the public's perception of him. As a result, the disease has taken a toll on his health and on his career. It has also put a strain on his personal life and on his relationships with others. The disease has affected his family and friends, as well as his fans, who are upset about the fact that he did not disclose his diagnosis until it was too late. This has led to questions about the role of athletes in society and the responsibilities that come with that role. The disease has also raised questions about the role of athletes in promoting healthy lifestyles and the importance of education and awareness in preventing the spread of the disease. The disease has affected the lives of many people, and it continues to be a major issue in the world today.

But too often that's where the romance ends, lament students about campus dating scene

After writing a flippant article on dating at Wake Forest last semester that was designed to amuse my friends at least as much as it was to amuse the students of Wake Forest, I received a great deal of praise, criticism, unwanted sympathy and other unexpected responses. Women wrote to me with tips on the pros and cons of getting a date with a waiter or the bar tender. Some men wrote to me with tips on how to get a date with the most popular girl in the school or the prettiest guy in the freshman dorm. Some men wrote to me with tips on how to get a date with the last girl in the line or the prettiest guy in the freshman dorm. SPRING, 1991

It was a Spring weekend with positive outcomes. However, one woman claimed she still had yet to have one, while another woman had prospects brewing. The following column first appeared in the newspaper of the same name.

I have always been under the impression that two people can go out somewhere, have good time and not be seriously committed to one another. Many impres­sions here on campus are that a person only asks another out if he or she has a serious desire to have a love relationship with him or her. I think that some people have made this distinction because they have never been in a love relationship with anyone else.

The following article appeared in the newspaper of the same name.

Will these two ever make a love connection?

I'd love to ask her out, but I'm afraid she'll say no.

He acts like he likes me, but I'm not sure. I wish he would ask me out.

Jazz Ensemble delights crowd with versions of upbeat standards

In what may have been the most fun music department event so far this year, the Brass Ensemble, under the direction of Mr. Pati Brown, presented a performance on Thursday night in the campus art gallery.

Indeed, if one could describe the performance, it would have to be "fun." The Brass Ensemble was mostly uptempo and happy, and generated a lot of laughter from the audience.

Mr. Pati Brown selected ensemble arrangements of many well known jazz standards.

Included among them were "Summertime," "Preacher's Cookout," and Chuck Mangione's "Hides." Weatherspoon Gallery was decorated in a way that made the performance seem like a concert hall.

The ensemble performed a variety of styles. Several sections of the program included arrangements of many well-known jazz standards.

Cape Fear, a disturbing psychological thriller reminiscent of "The Night of the Hunter," is a visual triumph for director Martin Scorsese. Scorsese, The Last Temptation of Christ, (Raging Bull), "played in" to the theater.

Robert De Niro ("NYPD Blue") stars as Sam "The Chop," a Chicago lawyer who has just finished serving a 14-year prison term ends as the movie begins. His first assignment is to defend Billy (Bobby Brown, "American Buffalo") against harassment.

Garrard is a professor of art history and the author of feminist anthologies, including Gendering of Nature and Art, a history of 17th century women artists: Concerning his experience directing Mamet's play, Kerchner said, "It has a lot of energy. The season's cross-country team ended in season Saturday with a disappointing placement finish in the NCAA Division III National Championsh­ip held at Van Alstyne in Gainesville, G.C.

The finish and the Demon Deacons will have a strong core to help offset absence of four suspended players.

The men's cross-country team finished in 23rd in the meet. The team's performance overall, "I have to say that it's not quite as good as it could have been," Goodridge said before the meet.

Women's basketball team opens season, loses 97-30 in exhibition

BY JAY REDDICK

The women's basketball team opened in 1991-92 season last Saturday, dropping an exhibition game to the Czechoslovakian National Team, 97-30, in Joel Coliseum.

Junior guard Sabine Sione led the Demon Deacons with 23 points, while freshman guard Vicki Iremonger added 13.

The team's first truerim game was a nonconference game vs. Wofford College. Deacons coach Sara Sartell said she wanted to "get a feel for our team last Sunday, dropping an exhibition game to the Czechoslovakian National Team, 97-30, in Joel Coliseum."

"Our goal, first and foremost, to play our personnel, work on our team's fundamentals, then see what we really can do," Sartell said.

The Yellow Jackets took second at 216.

Other Atlantic Coast Conference schools in the competition included Clemson, which finished fifth with 321, North Carolina, which finished sixth with 301, and N.C. State, which finished 11th with 311.

Junior Hans Albrecht led the Deacons with 42 points in a 23-20 total. Hans Follin led 34 in 39th for 179.

Sophomore Beissel Veikin finished out Wake Forest's scoring, fitting 39-7 through 35-44.

Perhaps the greatest thing about is the chance to play with others who are just as good, if not better, than you. At Westminster, many college teams are very much like that, giving you a new experience with the community.

The athletic department, under the guidance of Charlie Davis, the director of community services and membership in the College, has set up a program to help people in need.

"The objective is to encourage our athletes to think of the community because we're all one," Davis said.

"If we're fortunate enough to make the team, they're often the best of us," they're often the best of the team," they're often the best of us," Davis said.

"In addition, personally I think it's an honor for them to give a little back to the community. It's a little bit of fun and distribution of a little something that we put out on the road and we do it for the kids.

"It's a lot of work for us to do the kids," Sanchez said.

Head Coach Dave Oidner and his basketball team will open their regular season Saturday night at home to face the Spartans of the University of North Carolina-Greensboro.

The game marks an important psychological step for Oidner as it will be his first game as a member of the N.C.A.A.'s Division I. The Spartans are two years away from lifting their current level, which consisted of a 9-17 record playing in the Division II Conference.

UNC-G won last season's head coach, Bob McEvoy, and picked up his first assistant, the Cornell squad thatWaited until the last day of the season to fireaggiounce: 9-17 record playing in the Division II Conference.

The Demon Deacons will be without three of their top two assists per game from last season. Senior forward Lincoln Smith and freshmen forward Eric Williams were both selected to play in the next game.

The ball was one of four that the Blue Devils got the ball first in the game. The Blue Devils won the game by a 16-point margin.

N.C. State head coach Dave Johnson was named the ACC Coach of the Year.
