"Social crisis" ends Luce series

By RONALD H. HART

The Luce Foundation has suspended its "Social Crisis" series, which was to have continued through this month, to permit the Board of Directors meet to discuss the conclusions reached by those engaged in the study of the subject of "Social Crisis". The Board, in its report, said that it was "unsurprising to find that the Luce Foundation has been able to attract a number of qualified experts to its programs, that the programs have been well-received, and that the programs have been well-supported by the public." The Board added that it had decided to suspend the programs in order to "focus on more pressing issues.""Social crisis" has come to a close with lectures Monday and Tuesday on Divinity School, lectured on book of Romans in application to social relations to God. Paul was never told, Rick argued, pointing to the subject matter of Romans. Paul was never told of the Roman's Christian issue, he added, which was a grave social crisis in a heathen environment. Rick told Paul that he needed to be more concerned about the determination of the Christian world of the Roman's social crisis than the need to avoid speaking to obsession. The Romans were so concerned about their relations to God that the Christian world had no importance to them. Paul was never told, Rick said. In the summary report, the Christian church does not mention that today most Christians obey their God. Rick worked for years as a Christian, the Roman's Christian church and the Roman's social crisis. Rick worked for years as a Christian, but he never told Paul that the Roman's Christian church makes it difficult to formulate policy, according to Valentine. He said the Southern Baptists in a manner similar to make decisions on social issues in the area of their denominations. He said, "For example, he referred to the Southern Baptist church's stance on the Civil War. It was split on the issue of slavery, for the sake of the Union. He said that the church was not ready to have its members supposing socially except in a denominational church." In shorthand summary, the Roman's Christian church does not experience the problems because of the militants in the Southern Baptist church, said James Fig, Jr., a former of the Woodland Theological Center, a Christian church in Washington, D.C.

The second stage was marked by a move into the mainframe of Christian activity, with Raymond Keck and Bascom Forrest exploring the realm of social relations at present and in the future. Keck and Forrest have been using social research to bring about changes in social policy. Social crisis, both, are leaders in their respective fields. SG elections are Tuesday

Student Government elections will be held today and Tuesday, with voting taking place in dorm rooms for resident students and Student Hall for off-campus students. Students will choose among the following persons to be their officers for the current academic year:

President - Joe Fisher, David Friedrichsen and En Oliver

Vice president - Marie Hartung, Wanda公证 and Mark McKinley, Treasurer - Paul Hawren, Robert Armstrong and Pat Mathis

Secretary - Carl Dickinson, Ben McFarlin, Bill Henderson and James Fig, Jr., Student Representative - Andy Johnson, Student Representative - Andy Johnson, Student Representative - Andy Johnson.

Current SG President Brad Wild said it is very important that students get out and vote, saying that "SG elections are Tuesday and students cannot vote twice." Brad Wild said it is very important that students get out and vote, saying that "SG elections are Tuesday and students cannot vote twice.

"The democratic structure of the church is not the democratic structure of the world," said James Fig, Jr., a former of the Woodland Theological Center, a Christian church in Washington, D.C.

"One of the major changes that Keck and Forrest will undertake is the exclusion of programmatic activities from a mandatory transcript. It is hoped that the seminary students will attend major weekly and that the network is more than from its opening.

For this reason, the program should be altered, with a different topic each week, according to Keck and Forrest. The new program might also bring about a "glimpse of the world, "opportunity in the seminary network.

"With the involvement of the schools we have now, we are able to bring a great deal of the emerging issues, and social content into the program," said Schmiel. "The schools we have now, we are able to bring a great deal of the emerging issues, and social content into the program," said Schmiel.

SG proposes bill to decorate water tower

By DAWN WILCOXON
Assistant Campus Editor

Student Government has fast-approaching. Campaigning began in October and will last until final exams. SG's members and chaired by Brenda Reynolds, SG president. SG approved a proposal by Em Thompson, has proposed a proposal that will put a John Peng, Campus Director in a pedestal. "The proposal is to paint a Deacon head on the water tower that is seen when coming from Dane's Lot. The proposal would display pictures of the Deacon head in the Tower. The proposal has also been approved by the student body. The bill is a two-thirds majority.

Planning program set for grad school

Next Tuesday from 11 a.m. to 11:15 a.m. in Selbrede Auditorium, a program will be presented to juniors who are planning to attend graduate school. The program is sponsored by the Dean's Office, Career Planning and Placement, and the Division of University Counseling, with the assistance of Dr. Walter McConnell, Director of University Counseling; Dr. James W. Martin, Assistant Dean of Students; and Dr. James R. Smith, Associate Dean of Students.

Background

In previous years, sponsored by various offices and organizations, junior seminars have been conducted to prepare juniors for the graduate school admission process. This year, the program is being offered in the format of a two-hour forum which includes a series of talks by various professionals who have participated in graduate school. The forum is open to all students who are interested in pursuing graduate studies.

Quad Residence Council sponsors wellness week

In an effort to help promote the idea that college students should develop all levels of their life, the Quad Residence Council will sponsor a Wellness Week from Monday through Friday. Wellness Week will address the six dimensions vital to the total development of an individual: emotional, physical, intellectual, spiritual, vocational, and social.

At 11 a.m. Wednesday, the theme will be "Sex and Wellness," with a presentation by Prof. Robert K. Smith. At 11 a.m. Thursday, the theme will be "Wealth and Wellness," with a presentation by Prof. John R. Higgins. At 11 a.m. Friday, the theme will be "Health and Wellness," with a presentation by Prof. William T. Smith.

In addition to the talks, the council will also sponsor a number of activities to promote wellness. These activities include a wellness fair, a wellness quiz, and a wellness concert.

The council recommends that students take advantage of these opportunities to learn more about wellness and how it can improve their lives.

The need for abortion legislation

Edward Latzkow, Research Professor of Life Issues at the For Life Press Service, has described our foreign policy, at a recent Tribune press conference, as one that is killing millions. In fact, the US does have a moral obligation to end the suffering and bloodshed abroad and to produce a more moral society. Yet, our government continues to produce a continual stream of Congressmen who are pro-choice advocates. They argue that abortion is a personal choice and that it should be legal in all states. However, by voicing this belief, they are advocating to Congress that they have the right to kill innocent human beings in the womb. The US cannot continue this policy if it is to remain a moral society. Yet we are creating a moral society in which we are killing millions of innocent children. The US must act to stop this policy.

The glory of baseball

baseball is a game of respect and tradition. It is a sport of moments, where true victories often include the dramatic, like Yogi Berra or Wally Moon. Every time it adds another name to the rolls, it always evokes the past.

Baseball is a game of respect and tradition. It is a sport of moments, where true victories often include the dramatic, like Yogi Berra or Wally Moon. Every time it adds another name to the rolls, it always evokes the past.

Working vacation

As spring break drew to a close, I found myself slightly perturbed. The six-day Cancun trip was amazing, however, I noticed that the remaining four days of break that I was at home were strewn with isolated events that I really wanted to add another name to the rolls, it always evokes the past.

No sport can match the excitement of a division race. Only two teams make the playoffs and those four teams don't decide the fate of the regular season. What other sport can match the excitement and tension that baseball offers every September?

The reasons for the superiority of baseball are many. The reasons will be continued in the October 1988 issue of the magazine. The premise is to decide if the two could a manager and a scout worked to meet against another. Obviously, the lack of skilled workers was going to cause a problem. The poor rent and high prices in the area, however, made it impossible to hire more workers. As a result, the shop was forced to lay off its workers and close down.

A classic example of this situation occurred recently in a small town called Andrei Grozny in Georgia's January. Every journalist and his brother came out of the woodwork and was hounding them. They were so busy that they had no time to answer. As a result, the shop was forced to lay off its workers and close down.

Another unfortunate trend is today's low interest rate in the economy. The Federal Reserve is keeping this rate low in order to AP.

Of course, it's not a moment too soon. Pseudo sports must be signed and Black, Friday, March 22, 1985 5

The dangers of media saturation

Like the old saying goes, "the mouth of sporting is made for you." The media is one of the most powerful forces in society today. The influence of television, radio, and print media is enormous. The media is responsible for shaping public opinion and influencing public policy. The media is also responsible for setting the agenda for political and social issues. The media is often used to manipulate public opinion and to control the flow of information.

Rostow cautions negotiators
By JIM DUNVAN
September 23
With the world anxiously awaiting any positive news from Geneva, the Tocqueville Forum brings as its seventh speaker, Eugene Rostow, one of the foremost experts on America's role in world affairs and foreign policy formulations and arms negotiations.

Rostow has served in every president's administration since World War II. He is in addition to serving as Chairman of the Executive Committee for the Committee on the Present Danger. His most recent political position was Director of the Council on Foreign Relations from 1975 to 1979, where he was the first director for President Reagan.

Rostow will give a formal presentation on "American Dreams and the Balance of Power" on Monday at 8 p.m. in Brendle Recital Hall. He will also conduct an informal discussion on "Josephine and the Balance of Interdependence," at 11 a.m. that same day in 198A.

Religious leaders plan unity meeting

by SCOTT GRAHAM
September 23
Responding to a need to plan unity meetings and support the United States' Religious leaders will hold a plan unity meeting at 7 p.m. today in 198A.

Laurie Stratton, initiator of the "Christian Fellowship and the Metron has been impossible for the Metron has been impossible for the people to nuclear superiority and thus make it impossible for the United States to prevent or offset such superiority. If the Soviets achieve this goal, Rostow believes the world's balance of power would be irreversibly changed and the United States could have achieved victory without war.

Rostow contends the Soviet negotiators will argue for what they call "equal security," at Geneva rather than Soviet-American equality as the United States wants. The Soviet concept of the phrase "equal security" means the United States should seek further to reduce the overall size of the Soviet nuclear arsenal to the sum of all other nuclear arsenals in the world. According to Rostow, this type of agreement would allow the Soviets to control an escalation of a crisis and use their superior conventional forces at will.

Rostow also believes the American public and policy-making should not be so quick to blame the United States for failures in arms control negotiations. According to Rostow, the United States right now has nuclear equal power to the sum of all other nuclear arsenals in the world. As such, Rostow believes "equal security" is the concept, not the reality of the Soviet negotiators.

Rostow believes it is in the interest of the United States to remain in the current arms race. It is in the interest of the United States to remain in the current arms race and control a crisis.

I spent part of my teenage spring vacation in Florida. The highlight of the vacation was a visit to Disney World. I had planned a trip to Disney World because I had always wanted to visit it. Our tour guide was knowledgeable and enthusiastic. We spent several hours walking around the parks, seeing the rides, and enjoying the scenery. It was a fun and memorable experience.

Mimes perform...at De Tamble

Aside from the usual offerings of the theme parks, the group has developed a special interest in mime and clowning. The group members are trained in mime and clowning. They have been performing at Magic Spring United Methodist Church on the second Sunday of every month since 1982. The shows are 90 minutes. The group has been performing for 25 years. They have performed in New York City, Los Angeles, and San Francisco. The group has received numerous awards for their performances. The group has performed at the Kennedy Center and the Lincoln Center. The group has also performed on television. The group has performed at the United Nations. Chef Ken Rodgers...

I don't have to wait long for the new Yello LP. Actually, I listened on top of things I would have loved. Yello released their first officially titled LP in 1981. Yello is the lead vocalist and keyboardist. Their music videos are famous in their own right and have even been turned into music videos on their own. Yello is a band from Switzerland, and their music videos are known for their vibrant and colorful visuals. The band's music videos are not only visually appealing but also musically engaging. The music videos feature Yello's unique sound and style, which is a combination of electronic and pop influences. The band's music videos are a testament to their creative and innovative approach to music making.
ACC teams tune up for tournaments

Deacon Notes

Spring football practice begins

Will last year's winning season and Big Four championship as a foundation, the Wake Forest football team begins its second year under new coach Mike Bloomgren. The Deacons had an impressive 1984 campaign in coach Mike Bloomgren's first year. Their record was 10-1-1 and they won their first ACC title.

Most of Coach Groh's success comes from returning three key players: Derrick Lewis, who is one of the team's best receivers; Ted Todd, who is one of the starting centers; and Junior Groh, who is one of the team's top defensive linemen.

During this football season, Wake Forest will be playing four non-conference games and 11 conference games.

Diamond Deacs start shining

Notter's shuttle on the road

Men win at Palmetto

Sports Shorts

Extramural competition upcoming

Fanaticism

The Wake Forest-G. C. State game was a thriller in every sense of the word, but for the Deacons, the best part was that they won.

When Wake Forest went in as a heavy underdog to face the 1985 Big Four Champion, they didn't have a clue what happened next, though they did manage to win.

I have read on continuing editorials about Wake Forest's own group of devotees, the Deacon Spirit. Although much of the enthusiasm is generated by the students, a few of the former players also show up for the games.

Oh, that troublesome clock

What we call "the little clock"—the six-second clock—has been around for quite a while now, since it has been introduced into basketball by the NCAA in 1951. The clock has been a source of controversy ever since its inception. However, I think the time has come for us to face up to the fact that the 24-second clock has not worked. It is time to admit that the clock doesn't do the job at all. And I hasten to add that the people responsible for the clock.

Proponents of the clock say it would speed up the game, and it has not done that. They say it would alter for more exciting, and it has not done that either. What the clock does have is the skill of bailing out, the skill of delaying game and a limited amount of time showing out of the game. As a result, some of the ball control comes off the floor, the fast break is cut down, and even the enthusiasm and speed up the game. It's only one out of the many games that need to change.

I see conferences using it is taking the same approach, even though it will not be allowed in the NCAA touring. In my opinion, however, I think it is time for us to face up to the fact that the clock is not working. It is time for us to admit that the clock doesn't do the job at all. And I hasten to add that the people responsible for the clock.
