Fall Registration

Student Input Can Benefit Process

The registration process for Fall 1992 has been a true testament to the dedication and perseverance of Wake Forest University's administration. Unlike the previous process, which was flawed due to the decision made by the registrar's office to close classes too early, the current system is designed to allow students to register up until the last possible moment.

This new system, known as the "Registration Day," has been praised by students and faculty alike for its efficiency and effectiveness. The intention behind this system is to ensure that all students have the opportunity to register for the courses they desire, regardless of their current schedule or priorities.

The registrar's office has been working tirelessly to ensure that this process runs smoothly, and they have been successful in their efforts. Students are encouraged to use this system to their advantage, and the administration is confident that it will lead to a more satisfying registration experience for everyone.

In conclusion, the fall registration process at Wake Forest University is an example of how a proactive and committed administration can make a positive impact on the lives of its students. It is a testament to the university's commitment to providing a high-quality education and creating a supportive learning environment.

EPA Fails Nation

EPA Orders Companies to Remove Contaminants

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has ordered companies to remove contaminants from their facilities, a move that is expected to have a significant impact on the environmental health of the nation.

The EPA has been working to address the issue of contaminated sites for many years, and this latest order is a testament to their commitment to protecting the environment. The companies involved have been given a timeframe in which to comply with the order, and failure to do so could result in hefty fines.

This move is a positive step in the fight against environmental degradation, and it is hoped that it will inspire other companies to take similar actions. The EPA's success in this regard is a testament to their dedication and hard work.

World Needs a Santa Claus

It's nearing Christmas vacation, and the weather outside is beginning to feel like the true holiday season. Does anyone remember what college is about anymore? Back in the day, college was a place where students went to learn, socialize, and form lasting friendships. Nowadays, it seems like everyone is more focused on their social media feeds and the latest trends than on actually learning something.

I'm not saying that these modern-day college students are not intelligent or capable of learning. Many of them are just so focused on their own little worlds that they forget about the bigger picture and the importance of higher education.

But it's not just the students who have lost sight of the true meaning of college. Many professors have also become so consumed with their own research and publishing that they have forgotten the importance of teaching and mentorship.

That's why we need a Santa Claus to come in and remind everyone of the true meaning of the holiday season. We need a figure who can inspire us to focus on our loved ones, our community, and our shared humanity. We need a reminder that there is more to life than just our own little worlds.

So let's all take a break from our screens and social media feeds and remember the true meaning of Christmas. Let's reach out to those who are less fortunate and remind ourselves of the power of kindness and compassion.

The program for the 1988 Spoleto Festival USA, held annually in Charleston, S.C., was recently an­nounced by Spoleto Festival U.S.A. General Manager Nigel Riddle. Fes­tival in the event, which will run from May 19 to June 12, 1988, will be several premieres and debut performances.

The 1988 festival will be the ninth season for director and founder Gian Carlo Menotti. For the second year in a row, the musical director will be Spi­niel. Prominent will be a new produc­tion of Donizetti’s "Lucia di Lammermoor," which is a new version of the opera directed by Spi­niel. A suite of Christmas music arranged by Robert Shaw and Robert Russell Bennett followed. Shaw's was the beautiful "Break For S. Beethoven, Heavenly Lights," performed flawlessly with unison movement and satisfying climaxes. The orchestral introductions were cleverly arranged and made suitable use of such special features as William van Pelt's harp. Here is where the wisdom of holding the concert in Brendle Recital Hall, despite the lack of adequate seating, became apparent. The sound of the harp and solo flute that added so much to "O Little Town of Bethlehem" would have been swallowed in Way Chapel, but were beautifully distinct in the smaller setting.

A percussion, light-hearted rendition of "I Saw Three Ships" segued directly into "Doxology," which was performed by great joy and energy.

Such a performance could only be followed by the traditional "Hallelujah Chorus," also from Messiah, the closing number which always guarantees the performers a standing ovation. The choice, energetic and without flaw on the part of the choir. Although the orchestra made some slips, its sound added much to the performance.

The concert was enthusiastic and enjoyable. The professionalism of the performers never faltered even when mistakes were made, and all of the groups showed great poise and talent.

Soccer Club Overcomes First Year Money Woes

Soccer, one of the newer sports on campus, is a perennial favorite among all fans.

The Wake Forest soccer team is in the process of achieving official club status, and has struggled to find a first-time sponsor of any kind.

The soccer club encountered several problems as many fledging organizations in their early years. These problems were mainly due to their untried status. Because the team was not officially recognized, financial problems were the most pressing.

Money was collected through fines of $30 per player, and this money was used to pay for uniforms, cover of fields, travel and other necessary items. The club was not able to sponsor a home game due to financial problems, and the team played most of their games at Wake Forest, the university's home field, and were funded from the Student Budget Advisory Council and Student Government.

But things are changing, as the club is entering its second season of existence.

"We're in the process of becoming an official club," Doug Who, the president, said. "We've just added the

Deacons Take Tenth Position In NCAA Meet

By Colleen Kean

Deacons, in the women's cross country program, recorded its most successful season in history with a 3rd place finish in the NCAA Division I cross country championships Nov. 24 at Charlottesville, Va.

Samantha Bell, who ran in the ACC championships with a 3rd place finish in the mile at 11:07.55, was named by the league's coaches as its associate head coach. She is the first woman to receive an NCAA coaches award.

The Deacons were an automatic berth in the meet with their second place finish at the District III meet at Fort Atkinson, Wis. on Oct. 18.

Oregon swept North Carolina State 59 to 8 in the ACC meet and went on to become the national champion with a team time of 1:29.25.

Great Falls was placed third and fourth spots on the Deacon squad.

Riiious, who also had a season-ending ankle injury, was named on the defensive and special teams play. He was still at not 100 percent after a pre-season break.

"He's got a great game," Slaak said. "He is still not physically ready, but he is getting there."

"We feel left, we pull things together," Slaak said. "We will continue to pull things together."

Wake Forest Tops Davidson

By John White and Colleen Kean

Wake Forest used a tenacious second half to shut down Davidson andSEND 1987 to 42-38 in the quarterfinals of the Atlantic Coast Conference last night.

Junior guard, task two of three from the floor to 42-38 in the second half, gave the Deacons a 13-2 lead in the final 8 minutes to cut the Deacons' lead in the final 2 minutes and Florentin held on to a 20-20 game with 20 points.

Robertson, a 6-7 senior, pointed in both the first and second half. His 13 points came in the final 8 minutes to the Deacons' lead in the final 2 minutes and Florentin held on to a 20-20 game with 20 points.

Conference Teams Prepare for Competitive Basketball Season

The Wake Forest basketball season got off to a slow start on Monday night as the Deacons fell to Division II Siena 72-47 at Memorial Coliseum. Despite pregame predictions of an easy game, Head Coach Bob 7-Bush knew that the Indians would be prepared.

"We’re a very good basketball team, we knew that going into the game," Bush said. "I was aware of some of the press people and his [Siena coach’s] pregame comments, but that had absolutely no effect on what type of team Siena is." The Deacons honored Davidson last night at Memorial Coliseum, and take on Furman tomorrow like any information.

The Tech football team closed its season over the Thanksgiving weekend by disposing of the Miami Hurricanes in Atlanta. The Tech has been ranked as one of the best in the conference for the past two seasons, and with the season over, Krekowsky seems to have designed the best ACC system for the talents he has assembled.

Wide receiver Carl Cousin was the only member of the Blue Devils listed among the ACC stars.

George Tech

The Yellow Jackets avoided Jackson State 79-71 Tuesday night to raise their record to 1-0 and enter the opening night of ACC play. Georgia Tech played Saturday night at City Coliseum and has already one point on the ACC schedule.

Duke

Coach Mike Krzyzewski’s Blue Devils kicked off their season last Saturday by truncating Appalachian State 109-74 and then shut down East Carolina Monday night 84-45. The basketball team is ranked as one of the best in the conference, and with the season over, Krekowsky seems to have designed the best ACC system for the talents he has assembled.

Wake Forest

The Wake Forest Raiders are classified as one of the ACC powers and will take on Furman at Elder Hall tonight. The Raiders lost to St. Louis Monday night 74-45 and are 0-2 on the season.

Clemson

The Tigers kicked off their season by disposing of some sloppy-shots early-season losses, including Oregon State, Syracuse and Seton Hall during their first two ACC games.

The Wake Forest women’s basketball team will host the first Deacon Invitational Tournament this weekend, but two-day passes are being offered for the weekend in Reynolds Gymnasium, with proceeds going to raise their record to 1-0.

The Wolfpack is on a roll again, but two victories in the ACC tourney are too much to ask for.

Maryland

The Terps are off to a 2-0 start and their second season under Coach Dan Davis, displaying a long-slighted tradition of Maryland basketball.

Virginia

Virginia began its season with a 19-point victory in the Invitational Classic Tournament, held at University Hall last night with the Cavaliers leading 97-39.

Siena

Deacon Defense Shifts Down Ramblin' Wreck in Season Finale

By John White

ATLANTA, Ga. — The Wake Forest defense produced a performance for the ages last weekend at Georgia Tech. The Deacons held the Yellow Jackets to 33 points, 16 points fewer than they scored in Tech's 49-17 win over Wake Forest in 1980. Such an outcome came on a 15-yard pass from Todd Hanner to Steve Davis with 1:10 left in the game, but the ball had already been fumbled. The Yellow Jackets crossed midfield for the first time.

When it comes to recycling, not all soft drink cans are created equal. While your local Coca-Cola bottler goes to the extra expense of using 100% aluminum cans in producing Coca-Cola products, the Pepsi bottler in the Triad area uses cans that are mostly steel which is not as easily recycled as aluminum and is approximately one-tenth as valuable to the recyclers. The result—an awful lot of their cans never get recycled and are left to pile up in landfills and elsewhere in the environment.

Help keep the Triad clean and beautiful, buy Coca-Cola products in 100% Recyclable Aluminum Cans...and recycle them, please.
Staak Faces Hard Schedule With Young Squad

The Wake Forest men's basketball team enters the '87-'88 season as one of the youngest teams in the nation. Losing three seniors from a team that finished 14-15 last season, the Deacons are facing this year's schedule with unprecedented youth and inexperience.

"This is definitely one of the youngest teams in any conference across the nation this year," Head Coach Bob Staak said Monday. "It's quite possible we have the youngest squad in the nation. There are many questions that are still unanswered about this team."

Of the 14 players on the Deacon roster, 11 are sophomores or juniors. The Deacons of a year ago finished seventh in the Atlantic Coast Conference, finishing ahead of Bob Wade's first Maryland team. Wake Forest's only two regular season conference victories came over the Terrapins.

Staak realizes that his young team may experience some hard times in the talent-staek over the Terrapins. finishing ahead of Bob Wade's first laden ACC this season.

Siler has been hampered with a recently injured ankle, but will still see playing time before the start of the spring semester.

Carlyle, who played for Old Dominion of the Sun Belt Conference last season, is ineligible due to his transfer status until the start of the spring semester in January. Both Keys and Sanders impressed Staak in the early season practices, and Keys turned in a fine 14 point, nine rebound performance in the opening game against Siena.

"They have both improved significantly - they're going to be good players for us this year.

In discussing a strong Deacon schedule, which includes non-conference opponents Purdue, Marquette and possibly Villanova (in the Josten Classic), Staak was nevertheless focused on the first four Deacon matchups.

"The first few games of the season, especially with a young team, are always the most difficult because we really don't know how the team will perform in game situations," Staak said. "Also, the games immediately before and after finals are always difficult, regardless of the competition. This is surely the toughest set of opening games we've played in my three years as head coach."

The Deacons' next matchup will be tomorrow against Furman in the Memorial Coliseum at 7:30 p.m.

"This is definitely the youngest team I have worked with in my coaching career, and the fans should be patient with the players and allow them to develop as the season progresses. The team has come along much more quickly than I thought they would at this point in the season, but we definitely aren't where we need to be if we want to be truly competitive this season. This is a young team, and with our potential and our talent it should be an exciting year."

Leadership on the young squad will be provided by the team's two seniors, 6-0 forward Amy Carter and 5-9 guard Denise Stensaa. Although Stensaa did not play in the holiday tournament due to a broken thumb, her presence in the lineup is the near future will add needed experience.

Junior Alice Neal, a 5-6 guard, and 5-10 junior forward Phyllis Edwards, with two years of college experience behind them, are also starters. Both averaged in double figures last season (Edwards at UNC-Wilmington) and are expected to provide a lot of offense this season. Sophomores Lisa Carter, a 6-1 guard/forward, and 5-6 guard Cathy Willie rounded out the starting lineup for the Thanksgiving tournament.

"Our lineup will fluctuate depending upon our opponent," Sanchez said. "I feel I can put any five of my girls on the floor with the same continuity and flow of play. Unfortunately, our veterans have been plagued with injuries, but this has allowed us to indoctrinate the freshmen into our system."

The addition of size and depth to the Wake Forest team also provides them with several different styles of play.

"Because we were so small in previous years we had to run with our opponents," Sanchez said. "Our size this year will allow us to control the tempo and play a half-court offense. Our goal is to create a balance of inside and outside scoring threats."

This weekend Wake Forest will host the Deacon Invitational Tournament in Reynolds Gymnasium. The Deacons will host Akron, Chicago State and William & Mary in the tournament, which is co-sponsored by the United Way.

Akron and William & Mary will tip-off at 6 p.m., and Chicago State will take on the Deacons at 8 p.m. tonight. All three visiting schools boast strong clubs, and the tournament should be very competitive.

"I really can't look past the next game with this young squad," Sanchez said. "All I can ask for is that the players give 100 percent and are ready and capable of executing well against every opponent. It's like the old cliché, 'the best is yet to come' for Wake Forest women's basketball—we are young and learning every day."

Guard Denise Stensaa, one of the only two seniors, will be counted on to provide leadership on the women's basketball team.
Cavs Expected to Hold Off Duke, Tech for Title

The Atlantic Coast Conference women's basketball race should be a close affair this season, with Duke and Georgia Tech chasing Virginia for the conference crown.

Clemson

The Tigers, under first-year Head Coach Jim Davis, will be looking to climb out of the ACC cellar. Last year, Clemson compiled a conference record of 3-11 and an overall record of 7-21.

Davis believes that the performances of his top returnees, Louise Greenwood and Karen Ann Jenkins, will be important factors this season.

Jenkins, a 6-0 forward, averaged 180 points per game last year and Greenwood, a 6-3 center, contributed 120 points per game. The Tigers will have the additional help of first-year players Rose Ballard, a 5-10 junior college, and Lisa Brown, a 5-11 forward who was academically ineligible last season.

Duke

With the return of ACC Player-of-the-Year Chris Moreland, the Blue Devils should be one of the top teams in the conference and the nation.

Last year marked Duke's first appearance in the NCAA tournament, where it fell to Rutgers in the second round with a 78-64 score. The Blue Devils recorded a 77 record in the ACC and 19-10 overall.

Moreland, a 6-1 senior forward, and Katie Meier, a 6-0 guard/forward, will provide leadership and experience for the Blue Devils. Last season, Moreland was the ACC's leading scorer with an average of 20.9 ppg. Meier averaged 16.9 ppg and was the only player to start every game for Duke.

Duke will return to the ACC the following season, and it is expected to be a good one for the Blue Devils.
