Parents' Weekend Starts Tonight With Dinner
By NANCY ATKINSON
Old Gold and Black Reporter

Nearly 600 families will "Discover the Demon" as they take part in Parent's Weekend tonight.

Brenda Crawford, co-chairwoman for the event, said, "The Student Government selected this year's theme, "Passing the Torch," to symbolize the passing of the torch from older members of the Wake Forest staff to new ones.

The weekend will officially get under way with a welcome reception tonight in the Reynolda Room of the Reynolda House. This reception is open to the public and will begin at 8 p.m. Parents arriving earlier in the day are invited to tour the campus and attend the Sunday morning worship service which will be held in the Wake Forest Chapel.

Crawford and the other members of the planning committee, Jann Campbell and Jan Corpening, are excited about the Student Council's choice of the theme. "The theme is fitting since we have so many older retirees who are still active in the voluntary work of the school," Crawford said. "Crawford said that there has been great response to the change in the theme and the elegance of use the school." The additional feature to the theme for the Student Senate sponsor the Parents' Weekend. In the past there has been no con-response. Crawford said that there has been great response to this change and the elegance of use on the program.

An additional feature to the theme is that the Student Senate will sponsor the Parents' Weekend. In the past there has been no con-response. Crawford said that there has been great response to this change and the elegance of use on the program.

The Student Senate has various events planned with the various aspects of life at Wake Forest. There will be panel discussions at 9:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the Student Fine Arts Center. The discussion will be in three separate rooms, which will be announced during the services in Brownlee.

The panel on "Student Learning and Activities" will have a faculty member and a student member.

The second panel, "Student Affairs and Counseling," will be led by a faculty member and a student member. There will be a discussion on how to handle a counseling session and a career counselor. The third panel will include a student and a faculty member who will explain how a degree from Wake Forest will give them the best preparation for their careers.

Before the football game against Creighton at 1 p.m., there will be a pep rally on the field. The event is sponsored by the Student Affairs, Student Affairs, and Student Affairs. There will be a variety of games challenging the Quad following the pep rally.

That evening, the Parents' Weekend will be sponsored by the Student Senate, in Brownlee Recital Hall. There is no admission charge.

Hearns Supports Bond Revenues
By HARRETT CHAPMAN

Saying that the passage of the amendment would amount to an increase in government spending throughout the state, President Frank T. Ford claimed that the amendment to the state constitution contained "nothing new." If passed, the amendment will allow the state to borrow money to pay for renovations at lower interest rates, according to the governor who was not in attendance.

The amendment to the state constitution will become a bond revenue amendment after being approved by voters on Nov. 4. If passed in 1986, the amendment would permit the state to raise $2,500 million through bond revenues to build facilities at the state's three universities. The amendment would also permit the state to sell $50 million in bonds at a lower interest rate.

Ford said he was "skeptical" about the measure, but that he would "consider" it if it were put before the voters.

Outing Club Offers Hiking, Canoeing and Rafting

Last week two students discovered a group of supplies from the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, and found them to be valuable for their own use. The group of supplies includes a tent, a sleeping bag, a stove, and a map of the surrounding area.

The group of supplies was discovered during a hike in the surrounding area. The students were able to use the supplies to further their own exploration and to share with others who may be interested in similar activities.

The group of supplies is available for use by any student who wishes to explore the surrounding area. The supplies are located in the Student Union and are available for use on a first-come, first-served basis.

An inscription on the supplies reads, "To all who wish to explore the surrounding area, we offer this group of supplies to help you on your journey."

Please feel free to use the supplies, and please leave them in good condition for others to use as well.

Student Gallery Disconnected

"My stuff's pretty good. How could they not want to see it? I could put some of my work in the student art gallery and everybody would see it..."

"But, indeed! I just wanted to ask about having a show of my stuff in the student art gallery. The student gallery no longer exists because they put in the new student union building. I mean, I think they like Big Corporation, right? Take whatever best out of you, make some holy trash out of it... So, what are students supposed to do when they want a place to which to show their stuff?"

"Where? You're going to be held in! No one would want to have my show or paintings or whatever in the Mag... You should think of the gallery, or something else, to have on a privileged existence."

EASTER MINDAY Will Be "87-88 Holiday"

By SCOTT PRESTORUS

The Easter Monday proposal must be approved by the university's committee on academic affairs. The Easter Monday proposal means the end of the Monday holiday, said Thomas Maloney, dean of the college, at last Thursday's meeting.

The holiday has been approved by the IGOR committee. The holiday will ensure that Monday classes are taught. "The IGOR committee has long been a North Carolina state policy," he said. "To keep the school open on a day with a Monday holiday, there is not a good use of time." Maloney also praised the proposal against a weekday change. Classes, especially laboratory sections, for which materials need to be prepared, "are not a feasible option," he said.

Maloney said that the Skills students are having a great time, "It's all being taught as a holiday," he said.

The setting was unique for the performance, because the stage was surrounded by an audience. The same descending scales were evident throughout the entire film. The music displayed an air of mystery and intrigue, reflecting the tensions and conflicts of the story. The final effect of the piece was that the audience could only find comfort in the peaceful, soulful music almost expresses the agony of life. It had been given much coverage in the news media as well as on television and radio. The student Union's tenured music professor (Clayton) said, "The film is the essence of Agnew's values and his commitment to the country."

Although he does not actually plan to run for the presidency, he has been mentioned in the media as a potential candidate. Clay has a full-ahead policy in the killing of the I.R.A. and has been described as the most dangerous person in the country. Despite his quiet requests to give up his job in "The I.R.A. is not likely to reach a ceasefire," he is also known for his strong anti-terrorist stance. He has been described as a "terrorist leader," although this label has been disputed by many within the movement. At one point, Clay's I.R.A. superior tells him emphatically, "The I.R.A. has never been more important to the war of terror in Ireland is considered as a step in the right direction by many within the movement."

"The most memorable part of the film is that it never relies on moralizing speeches or heavy-handed symbolism. Much of the film's tension comes from the simple truth that the men in the film know too much to be relieved."

One of the most memorable parts of the film is that it never relies on moralizing speeches or heavy-handed symbolism. Much of the film's tension comes from the simple truth that the men in the film know too much to be relieved. In the end, the film is a powerful statement about the realities of war and the human cost of conflict.

"The next two scenes are not as big as the preceding ones. "Christ Lay in the Bonds of Death" was the most popular one."

The setting was unique for the performance, because the stage was surrounded by an audience. The same descending scales were evident throughout the entire film. The music displayed an air of mystery and intrigue, reflecting the tensions and conflicts of the story. The final effect of the piece was that the audience could only find comfort in the peaceful, soulful music almost expresses the agony of life. It had been given much coverage in the news media as well as on television and radio. The student Union's tenured music professor (Clayton) said, "The film is the essence of Agnew's values and his commitment to the country."

Although he does not actually plan to run for the presidency, he has been mentioned in the media as a potential candidate. Clay has a full-ahead policy in the killing of the I.R.A. and has been described as the most dangerous person in the country. Despite his quiet requests to give up his job in "The I.R.A. is not likely to reach a ceasefire," he is also known for his strong anti-terrorist stance. He has been described as a "terrorist leader," although this label has been disputed by many within the movement. At one point, Clay's I.R.A. superior tells him emphatically, "The I.R.A. has never been more important to the war of terror in Ireland is considered as a step in the right direction by many within the movement."

Bradley's Deacons End Regular Season With 40- Win

Pressbox

By CRAIG MARTIN
Old Gold and Black Reporter

The Wake Forest field hockey team defeated the University of North Carolina, 4-0, on Tuesday to end its regular season.

The victory was the 15th of the season for the Deacons, whose defensive play has been a major highlight of the season. The team has only allowed one goal in regulation play this season.

Senior captain Michele Bernard was named the game's MVP and goalkeeper Michelle Rochat was named the game's Defensive Player of the Game.

Bernard scored the winning goal in the 67th minute of the game and Rochat made a critical save in the 73rd minute to preserve the shutout.

The Deacons are now 15-1-0 on the season and will be looking to secure a spot in the NCAA Tournament next weekend.

Bernard said, "I'm really happy with how the team played tonight. We were able to control the game and create a lot of scoring opportunities." Rochat added, "I'm just happy to be a part of this team. We work so well together and it shows on the field."
Mr. Consistency

Moore Provides Leadership on Soccer Squad

By TIM GERRER
Old Gold and Black Reporter

Of all the records in sport, perhaps the greatest one to surpass is Mr. Consistency. Joe Moore, a sophomore on the Demon soccer team, is such a credit to the squad.

Although many of the team's key players have missed games this season through injuries, Moore has yet to miss a game and has played a key role in the rising fortunes of the Demon soccer team, anchoring the Demon's midfield line.

Moore can recall only one game that he missed because of an injury in his four years in soccer, which was during his freshman year.

Moore came to Wake Forest from Hendersonville High School in Tennessee, where he was a three-time all-state player. In his senior year of high school Moore led the state in scoring and was named a prep All-American, the highest honor for a high school soccer player.

Before moving to Tennessee, Moore grew up in England, where he learned how to play the game.

Coming out of high school, Moore was courted by many schools, but he chose to join the Demon because of its national academic and athletic reputation. Moore's first season finished in a losing effort.

Moore said that the skill that he had to improve when he first arrived was his defense. In his first year he was playing against ACC stars who had played high school.

"It was a little intimidating playing against the great teams like Clemson and Duke the first year," Moore said.

Under Coach George Speron, Moore was a starting player for the Demon. In his sophomore year and began to play a key role in the Demon offense. He realized that he did not have to score the majority of the goals as he had done on his high school team but to instead could help complement the offense.

The Demon soccer team scored their third point in a row to go out against the Blue Devils on Ellis Field. Nine points on the board to put the score at 3-0. The Demon would go on to win the game 6-2, as the Demon placed three in a row to go out against the Blue Devils.

"Every time I come back in a few years, I hope we are up at the top of the ACC and I can see we are part of the development of Demon soccer," Moore said.

Moore's role in the Demon's success has been key.

Kowalske and Jackson also played in the last match and lost 4-6, 6-1, 6-3. They also did not lose a match in their doubles. By winning the first and losing the third, they were able to get one point for Wake Forest.

Another plot for the Deacons in the second day was that their number seven player, Huse, was elected as a scholastic team member. He said he finished the team as third on the Demon's list. Moore added that the team will be the best of the Demon's team.

"I hope we will be well-represented at the event," Moore added.
