Pat Schroeder Speaks on the Presidency and Governmental Waste and Deceit

By Michael McKinlay
The Daily Oklahoman

For more than a year, Congresswoman Pat Schroeder of Colorado has beenripe for a campaign run in her Congressional District. The Colorado Congresswoman, who is at the close of her second term, spoke at this week's weekly student meeting. The Colorado Congressman was the first speaker of the Spring quarter, which is the close of the school year. Congresswoman Schroeder's speech lasted about 20 minutes long and was well received by the audience.

Schroeder began her speech by reflecting on her campaign in the previous election year. She explained that the campaign had been tough and that she had learned a lot from the experience. She went on to say that she had gained a better understanding of the issues and the concerns of the voters in her district.

She then turned her attention to the issues facing Congress and the country. She discussed the need for a new approach to the budget process and the need for a more proactive role for Congress in foreign policy.

Schroeder also touched on her role as a member of the Appropriations Committee. She explained that she had been involved in the process of determining how much money should be spent on various programs and how that money should be allocated.

In conclusion, Schroeder emphasized the importance of listening to the voters and working hard to represent their interests. She ended her speech by thanking the students for their support and encouragement.

SG Candidates Denied Place In Elections

By Justin Kullow
The Daily Oklahoman

The Student Government Elections Committee has denied two potential candidates for the office of SG vice president the official recognition they would need to be placed on an election ballot.

Both Daniel Davis and Todd Carson had submitted their applications to the Student Government Elections Committee. The committee denied their applications for various reasons, but the most common reason was due to the fact that they were not currently in attendance at the University of Colorado.

Davis and Carson had both submitted their applications within the required time frame, but the committee noted that they were not able to verify their enrollment status.

The committee has the authority to deny candidates who are not currently enrolled at the University of Colorado. The committee also has the authority to deny candidates who have been found to be in violation of the Student Code of Conduct.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes Founder Speaks on Responsibility to Poor

By H. Franklin Perrott III

Fielding H. McCracken, a professor in the department of philosophy and the director of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) at Wake Forest University, spoke on the topic of responsibility to the poor.

McCracken said the purpose of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) is to help the poor as part of the ministry of Jesus Christ through a program called "Helping Hands." This program is designed to help students fit into their culture, so they'll see that they are very different from the materialistic society and isolation we have today.

The fellowship began in 1968 as the National Association of Christian Athletes (NACA), and the program has since grown to over 200 chapters across the country.

The program's mission is to "help the poor as part of the ministry of Jesus Christ through helping hands," and its goals are to provide opportunities for athletic excellence in scholarship, to provide an environment of faith and spiritual growth, and to encourage students to make a positive impact on their communities.

"We need to reach the heart of the young person and the church community to make a difference," McCracken said. "By providing opportunities for athletic excellence in scholarship and spiritual growth, we can help students make a positive impact on their communities and become the leaders of tomorrow."

Hunger Cleanup

I just picked up an issue of Time magazine. We'll be showing it soon. The December 19, 1991 issue.

He probably has such a great job on the computer. I'm just glad he's not a real computer. I'm glad the issue is 1991. I hope he's not a real computer. I'm glad the issue is 1991.

Last semester's 24-hour visitation for the same reason the Old students at Wake Forest were not being responsible in their personal environment in which academics, equal opportunity and individual responsibility can presently be achieved. Last semester's sanctions. Faculty members believe that its goal is to help foster the times, they are a-changin'.

Now, this relationship could change for the better. The support of peers adopted this policy out of personal responsibility. But before you can talk about responsibility, you must understand what your responsibilities are. It's not just the student body and why not. Last semester's life committee sanctions on fraternities. Back then, the faculty for removal of visitation hours and a discriminatory ad

Jesus Judges Sin in New Testament

I would like to respond to a letter that appeared in the March 23 issue of the Wake Forest Oracle. The letter was written by Mr. Gregory E. Bruce, in which he expressed his views on the New Testament and its teachings on morality.

John S. Hyatt

Editor to the Editor

1 - 26-27 to 28

The New Testament accounts of Jesus’ life, though they do not contain explicit instruction about the morality of religious practice, the New Testament does make numerous statements about what constitutes acceptable behavior. For example, in the book of Matthew, Jesus states, “Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, ‘Thou shalt not commit adultery.’ But I say unto you, That whosoever looketh on a woman to desire her has committed adultery with her already in his heart” (Matt. 5:28). This quote is one of many examples where Jesus judges the hearts of people and condemns them for actions they have not yet committed.

In the context of Mr. Bruce’s letter, it is important to note that Jesus’ teachings are not intended to be a basis for legal or punitive action. Instead, they serve as a guide for living a moral and ethical life. As such, it is up to each individual to interpret Jesus’ teachings in a way that is meaningful to them and to act accordingly.

Dollars and Sense

For me, one of the key points Mr. Bruce missed is that Jesus was a moral and ethical teacher, not a legalistic one. He did not judge people based on whether or not they followed a set of rules, but rather on whether or not they lived in accordance with the principles of love, mercy, and compassion.

In his argument, Mr. Bruce quotes the oft-used phrase “judge not lest ye be judged” (Matthew 7:1). However, this phrase is taken out of context and is often misused. In reality, the phrase is a call to be humble and to recognize that we are all fallible and subject to judgment. It does not mean that we should avoid making judgments, but rather that we should do so with compassion and empathy.

In conclusion, I would urge Mr. Bruce to consider the broader context of Jesus’ teachings and to approach them with an open mind and a spirit of love and understanding.

Fight Paternalism in Government

A few weeks ago the Women’s Issues Discussion Group held a meeting to discuss the question of the desirability and appropriateness of government paternalism. This group is a coalition of women, including Mr. Bruce, who have made a firm commitment to the idea of government paternalism.

However, many people object to the very existence of government paternalism. The Women’s Issues Discussion Group wants to explore whether government paternalism is necessary or desirable.

In his letter, Mr. Bruce states that government paternalism is necessary because of the nature of morals. This is a viewpoint that I believe needs to be seriously considered.

We must turn to the Gospels, and especially the accounts of His life, to understand what Jesus Christ taught about government.

Jesus said, “Judge not that ye be not judged” (Matthew 7:1). He did not ask people to make moral decisions based on the opinions of others, but rather to make decisions based on their own convictions.

Therefore, since the Women’s Issues Discussion Group wants to support the views of Mr. Bruce, it is important to consider the principles that Jesus taught about government.

In conclusion, I would urge Mr. Bruce to consider the principles that Jesus taught about government and to approach the issue of government paternalism with an open mind.

Dollars and Sense

Mr. Bruce’s letter also brings up the issue of government paternalism, which is a topic that I believe needs to be seriously considered.

In his letter, Mr. Bruce states that government paternalism is necessary because of the nature of morals. He believes that government paternalism is necessary to protect society from the harms of immoral behavior.

In conclusion, I would urge Mr. Bruce to consider the principles that Jesus taught about government and to approach the issue of government paternalism with an open mind.

Chris Harvey

If, by some freak chance, you missed last week's brilliant column, then I'll update you on what's going on in our music scene and shine a light on the music of a famous silent film director. Planes, trains, and automobiles, that's what we'll be looking at in this column. A new trio with an impressive name is set to take the stage at a local venue this weekend. Can you guess what it is? Hint: It's not a music group, but rather a film director's masterpiece. The film is "Pirates," and the director is none other than Orson Welles. This film, released in 1948, was one of Welles' early forays into directing and is considered a classic of the genre. It tells the story of a group of pirates who set sail in search of treasure and adventure. The film is known for its innovative use of flashbacks and its unique narrative style. If you're a fan of classic cinema, this is a must-see film. So, tune in for our update on the music scene and get ready to be transported to the adventures of "Pirates."

Women’s Team Trounces Cavaliers 7-2

By Clay Payne
Old Dominion Observer

The Wake Forest women’s team defeated Virginia Tech 7-2 to win the first of a three-game set in Blacksburg.

“Everything went our way today,” said coach Donald C. Johnson. “We really dominated the game from the beginning.”

The Deacons emerged from the match with 13 singles wins and two doubles losses.

“Tennis is a sport that relies heavily on the team’s ability to work together,” Johnson said. “We did that today.”

The Deacons will play their next match on Sunday against Georgia Tech.
