Private Universities Face Increasing Financial Dilemma

By Linds Carter
MANAGING EDITOR

Family and community sources are increasing, but the improvements must be made where they will be most effective.

The_DHRCM_301323_320929_Heal_14

Private colleges and universities have several reasons for concern. The financial situation in higher education is growing worse, and the financial condition of higher education is the most critical of the current major educational problems.

The financial condition of higher education is the most critical of the current major educational problems.

The problem of private higher education is a moral, political and education problem.

You can’t be a liberal, you can’t support the cause, you can’t act on it. You can’t give funds to help the black people. You can’t go halfway and stop when your materials are just the same, but that’s not enough. You can’t just say you’re going to give just your own way of spending, you’re not the same.

NEW DRESSING RULE Draws Groans And Sighs From Males

By CHRISTINE MONTGOMERY

Leaves campus and enters the 1968-69 academic year, male students are finding that the new dress regulations are a source of much confusion.

New rules require that male students must wear either tropical shorts or long pants and no open shirt. At first glance, the new rules seem to be a minor change, but students are opposed to the new requirements.

The new rules have been in effect since the beginning of the semester and have caused a great deal of discussion on campus.

Dr. H. W. Tucker, director of admissions, said that the rules were implemented to "stop the frock and drag." Tucker said that the new rules will be enforced by the University's Latin American studies department.

Mr. A. K. Smith, a student in the department of philosophy, said that the new rules are unfair and that they should be changed.

Dr. J. W. Wilson, dean of the school of law, said that the new rules are necessary to maintain the University's academic standards.

Several faculty members have expressed their concern about the new rules.

Dr. J. H. Smith, a professor of history, said that the new rules are a violation of the students' rights.

Dr. J. W. Wilson, dean of the school of law, said that the new rules are necessary to maintain the University's academic standards.

Students In 6-Year Law Plan To Get Deferrals

By BARRY ROBINSON

A student who is enrolled in a combined law and arts degree in a six-year program should continue to receive a student loan deferment, the University said in a recent statement.

The regulations do not provide for deferments for law students who have received an enlarged number of 15 credits during the fall semester of the second year.

Students who complete three years of undergraduate study and do not receive an enlarged number of 15 credits during the second year, do not receive a deferment, according to the regulations.

The regulations provide that students in a second year of undergraduate study and law school, completing the basic courses for a degree, are eligible for deferments.

The regulations also provide that students who have completed 15 credits of undergraduate study and law school, completing the basic courses for a degree, are eligible for deferments.

The regulations thus provide for deferments for 15 credits of undergraduate study and law school, completing the basic courses for a degree.

The regulations do not provide for deferments for law students who have completed 15 credits of undergraduate study and law school, completing the basic courses for a degree.

The New Maturity

Cursing The Darkness

BY HENRY E. BOSTIC, JR.

One hot summer day in New York City, reading Russell Brumbaugh's controversial novel, "Cursing the Darkness," the editor of Mediterranean Judaism called to say, "How's that novel?" The one thing which interested me about the book was the number of changes which had been made in it. I was more interested in what the novel was about than in what the changes were about. Last week, when I was reading the book, it was published. I was pleased because I thought the changes were in the right direction.

But more than this, I think it is the first novel in which a young man is portrayed as being a mature person. The characters in the novel are all very realistic, and the young man who is portrayed is a mature person. He is not just a young man with a mature mind, but a person who has matured emotionally and spiritually.

He has been through a lot of experiences, and he has learned a lot. He has had a lot of ups and downs, and he has been able to overcome them. He has been able to see the world in a new way, and he has been able to change his mind about a lot of things.

In conclusion, I think "Cursing the Darkness" is a very good novel. It is a novel that can be read by young people, as well as by older people. It is a novel that can be enjoyed by people of all ages. I think it is a novel that should be read by everyone.

Dr. Scales Is Inaugurated President; Humphrey Presents Keynote Address

April 15—More than 3,300 students, faculty, alumni, and distinguished visitors witnessed the formal installation Thursday of Dr. J. L. Scales as the eleventh President of Wake Forest University. Dr. Scales succeeds the Rev. W. E. Smith, who has served as President of the University since 1945.

A senior administrator in the university for 18 years, Dr. Scales was installed in the Alfred Harper Chapel, his inaugural address. Scales pledged that Wake Forest will be seeking with a different Colbert, but the substance of her message is unchanged.

The Rev. Dr. Smith, illogically believed to be "old fashioned and antiquated." After Hammrey's address, the Wake Forest narrator, sitting at his desk, said that... (source: edition 3.2)

During the installation, President Scales added to the existing list of distinguished names of the University's Hall of Honor. He is a member of the Zeta Beta Chi fraternity and the National Honor Society.

Dr. Smith, who assumed the responsibilities of President at the age of 42, and the new administration is committed to the "quiet, unsung"" nature that characterized his predecessor. The new President has had the opportunity of working closely with the student body, he said, and he believes that the students will... (source: edition 3.2)

The installation ceremony was marked by the dedication of the new $150,000 Student Center, the first major building project completed under the direction of the new President.

Dr. Wilson Is Selected As Provost

Oct. 4—Dr. Edward C. Wilson, on English scholar and dean of the Biblical Arts College of the University, has been appointed provost of the University.

The selection was announced by the Board of Trustees at its meeting Friday.

Dr. Wilson has been a member of the University faculty since 1947, serving as professor of English and dean of the Biblical Arts College of the University since 1962. He is also the chairman of the American Council on Education's Commission on Higher Education.

The appointment of Dr. Wilson as provost is considered to be a major step in the University's future. He has a long and distinguished career in higher education, having served as dean of several leading colleges and universities, including the University of California, Berkeley, and the University of Chicago.

In accepting the appointment, Dr. Wilson said: "I am deeply honored to be chosen for this position. I believe that the University is in need of strong leadership, and I am confident that I can provide it.

The University has a bright future, and I am confident that we can make it even brighter."
Potel House Takes 'Best House' Trophy

The Men's Residence Council held its annual awards banquet Wednesday night in the Magnolia Room. Speakers for the occasion included Dr. James Ralph Simmons, president of the University, and Professors Stueck, de Magalhaes, and Doug Turton. President Simmons gave the most Improved House award to his residence hall, the very first time a house has ever received this honor. Turton also was awarded the most Improved House award for his residence hall.

McDowell, Cheerleaders Are Selected

Faculty members and the Boyds Boone for the 1968-69 academic year were chosen by the student body in Chapel Thursday. Harold McDowell, president of the residence hall, and the present Residence Hall Council were chosen by the student body to serve in that post another year.

Dr. Sullivan Calls Unrest Inevitable

By DIANN JONES

A prominent Religion professor and minister and leader for many years, was interviewed by the Wachovia Building in November of 1967, he said. "Rifts and differences among the Negro community in Philadelphia, "he said.

"We have no plans to leave the city, but if the situation continues to deteriorate, we may have to consider leaving," he added. "We are trying to work through the church and to establish a supportive network that will aid the community in dealing with the social problems that we face."
Music Department Plans Program Of Opera Selections

The University's music department is proceeding with plans for a fall season that will include presentations of three operas. The programs will be presented in the Student Union auditorium, with the exception of "The Telephone," which will be performed in the lower auditorium of Williams Hall.

The program will feature three works by Charles Gounod, including "Faust," "Romeo et Juliet," and "La Damnation de Faust."

The programs will include:

- "The Telephone," an opera ballet by Massenet, with music by Puccini and libretto by Adolphe Guiraud and Paul-Jean Toulet. The opera will be performed by the University's Opera Ensemble, under the direction of Dr. Richard L. Lock, professor of music.

Deacon Tennis Teams Finish Good Year

By DOUG BUCKLEY

After compiling a 22-2 record, Wake Forest won the first ACC regular season title in school history and has the nation's third-best conference mark.

The Deacons finished the campaign with a 17-6 regular season record and a 6-2 ACC mark, the best in the program's history. The team won its 12th straight ACC title and the school's 14th ACC championship.
Weak-Hitting Deacs Drop Four of Five

Linden, N. J., has been signed as the top magnesium frame. Lightweight magnesium frame opens in the first year, but his second year, any such treatment. Lightweight magnesium frame.

Deacon teams cannot compete successfully year after year and the programs are in the hands of the athletes. The best cure for such a complex is winning, but Wake Forest cannot be considered a first-class team. And because of intense recruiting competition in North Carolina, the Deacons will need to be better than expected to excel. Realizing this is the sole cure for the Deacons.

Frat B League, the Aces played Saturday afternoon, to the delight of many fans. The Aces defeated the Deacons 6-2, but I am very pleased with the Deacons.

A large number of athletic scholarships are awarded each year to freshmen. Chancellor Edgerman and Defenders are looking ahead to a strong team in 1962. The third coming has been made.

The Deacons' "hurdler" for the second team Group Four track meet. He was coached by a Negro athlete and the only Negro athlete.

Gymnastics Club Is Planning Big Year

By DOUG BUCKLEY

The Wake Forest Gymnastics Club, which once was the pride of Wake's ten victories, is back with a new team and a new coach.

Coach Dan Goode said that another team with Caronolina is definitely on the way to becoming a power in the field of gymnastics.

Goode is a former member of the Wake Forest gymnastics team.

He is planning to organize a meet with the Hollins team.

The meet is scheduled for Saturday, January 25, at Hollins.

In addition, the club, which is under the direction of the Physical Education department of Wake Forest, will be holding a gymnastics meet on Saturday, January 25, at Hollins.
