Recent rape provokes fear and caution

Margaret Marin

In the aftermath of the March 20 rape of a businesswoman in 1981, women, men and many women, a crack appeared in the seemingly community of Wake Forest. The rape not only threatened the image of Wake Forest, but it also upset many women.

"We had a fear that we would be out to be seen," said one woman. "We had a fear that we would be out to be seen."

"We had a fear that we would be out to be seen," said another woman. "We had a fear that we would be out to be seen."

Eighty juniors choose minors

Susan Meyer

About 40 juniors have chosen their minors of 11 registered students, including minor in the arts, the sciences, and the humanities.

A typical combination would be chemistry minor and psychology major, while chemistry major may be pursued in an art minor, but a large number of students are majoring in a minor that is related to their major.

Most humanities majors study history, philosophy, and literature, while the sciences study biology, chemistry, and physics.

Passive solar home saves simply

Chad Hines

"The single way is the simple way," and that's just what David E. Evans, owner of an independent contractor, has done with his passive solar energy home.

For the last two years, Evans and his wife, Becky, have worked together in the planning and design of their four-story, eight-room house on Faculty Drive.

The house, set on an east and west line, is designed to capture the sun's heat during the northern winter months, while the southern side is designed to reflect the heat during the northern summer months.

The northern side is almost completely enclosed by an unglazed Mexican tile that covers the floor, the warm air is drawn upward by a veranda fan.

At night, when the tile releases its stored heat, the warm air is drawn downward to the basement and roof and basement areas provide further heating to the house, keeping inhabitants warm in the winter, Evans said.

There are eight tiny windows on the northern side, and 11 on the southern side, and in winter, the tile is heated by sunlight. The sun is reflected through the southern windows, and the heat is distributed to the rooms.

The northern area of the house, consisting of each of the upper rooms, is heated by a large, sloping ceiling.

Skylights located in each of the upper rooms can be opened to provide natural ventilation, and each of the upper windows can be opened to provide a natural cross-ventilation between the rooms.

The tall structure of the house and the small windows are designed to provide a natural insulation.

One of the primary objectives of the passive solar home is to provide a comfortable living environment, while reducing the need for fossil fuels.

The home is designed to be energy-efficient, with a focus on passive solar heating and cooling.

"I think the house makes sense, I think it works well," Evans said. "We are not in a cold wet place, and so far, so good."
Springfesters float on bands, not beer

Boston Privett

Spring officially began March 21, but Wake Forest awoke to celebrate rowdy rites of spring. On Friday afternoon, four music bands and a couple of zany comedy routines gave students reason to raise a glass or two to the Greek Week festivities.

The weekend opened Friday with a flurry of blue, yellow and green balloons which adorned railings, groups, drew a crowd of over 300. The evening meal. The evening concluded with the festivities at Graylyn.

Hallows but all the participants were juggling with Greek Week. The type of activity is ever meaningful to Wake Forest, but the activities can involve some rivalries and arguments. "You just can't have a huge keg party to include everybody like you need at a big school like Carolina," Hancock said. Hancock does not feel that Greek Week alienates these students who are not in a fraternity, "as far as social life goes here. Hancock said, "Intereston are the best way to get away from the stereotyping and the fraternities. It's the independent's decision not to join." Hancock did not feel that Greek Week created the Greek Week competition. He said, "A fraternity and society participation is more successful than it's the independent's decision not to join." Hancock said.

The local shop sells NC gifts for the Brookstowri. The shop specializes in Carolina League of Creative Arts and Crafts. A Ti.Sans. purchased Jan. 15 by Barbara Eure, wife of an associate professor of art, expanded the shop and now only focuses on weaving and macrame. The shop is constructed of natural fibers, and the artists酶 work is on consignment. Warehouse Arts & Entertainment, the nerve center of the arts in Winston-Salem, is the home of the artists who have been using the space. Every object in the shop was created by students in the area. Eure receives the price by one-half, and the artists酶 work is presented at the upcoming Mayfest and Easter Arts Festival. The shop is located off of University Parkway and is open daily from 10:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. The crowd has to be in by midnight. It's a tossup as to whether Missile Command or Firepower is the best game to play when you're lonely because it offers the best rush going in the area. It's the only drawbacks are that you have to pay 25 cents; most games are now.
Three guarded recruiters

Scott Bop

Although three basketball recruiters have recently signed - and three more are reportedly courting - one of the most highly recruited players in the nation may afford himself a moment of reflection. Although he had been almost overtaken by the frenzied nature of the recent recruiting period, he has been able to take a moment to himself. He has been able to reflect on how he has been recruited, and what it means to him.

He has been recruited by several major colleges, including Stanford, Duke, and the University of California. He has been targeted for his skills and potential in both basketball and academics. He has been offered full scholarships and has been considered a top recruit by many experts in the field.

However, he is not without his reservations. He has been approached by recruiters from other schools who have offered him the opportunity to play in a different environment. He has been weighed down by the pressure of making a decision that could affect not only his athletic career, but also his academic future.

He has been encouraged by his parents and his high school coaches to take his time in making a decision. They have reminded him of the importance of choosing a school that will be the best fit for him.

He has been able to take a break from the recruiting madness and has been able to regroup and reflect on his options. He has been able to make a decision that he feels is best for him.

He has been advised to consider all aspects of the school, including the academic programs, the coaching staff, and the campus environment. He has been urged to make a decision that will not only benefit his athletic career, but also his academic and personal well-being.

He has been able to take a moment to himself and has been able to make a decision that he feels is best for him. He has been able to reflect on how he has been recruited and what it means to him. He has been able to take a break from the recruiting madness and has been able to regroup and reflect on his options. He has been able to make a decision that he feels is best for him.

It was not easy to get gold when you are no longer a talented player. The Deacons have been rated as one of the top teams in the nation, and yet they have not been able to win a major tournament. They have been competitive, but they have not been able to rise to the occasion.

However, they have been able to rise to the occasion in the ACC tournament. They have been able to win their opening game against Florida State, and they have been able to advance to the semifinals against North Carolina.

The Deacons have been able to play with a sense of urgency and have been able to make key plays in big moments. They have been able to shut down North Carolina's offense and have been able to make a statement.

Netters confident about tournament

Bill March

The Wake Forest men's tennis team began the ACC Tournament today in Chapel Hill after finishing the regular season with a 19-4 record and a 6-3 mark in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The team's nine-match winning streak at the close of the season has earned the Laguins a very special "Field of Dreams" dedication to Melvin Layton, who was known as a "very special" to win the title.

Mark Dickson who broke Relays with a time of 1:50.6, a school meters.

Again, but considered one of the top vard, Furman and optimistic that we can win close of the season has pleased.

The squad beat team's nine-match.

OG & B Sports

Dave Powers covers Wake Forest's first national 444 Division I II qualifier last week by winning a 6-3 (qualifying) in the five hundred students in the Carolina Relays.

In men's track, David Crowe started three consecutive Saturdays. Rulers with a first of 1:51.6, a school record in the 800 meters.

Crowe's chances of a four minute mile are excellent.

The men's ACC track meet will be at the North Carolina State University's track in Raleigh.

The renovated Wake Forest baseball field will be dedicated in Mayor Leake's 4-30-81 at 4:00 p.m.

JIM BOLL, the pitcher who has led handwaving WFU basketball team, will help build the Wake Forest sports department next fall.

He will be assisted by G. Keith, Terry and Tim Brown, who will not be on the basketball coaching staff.

The rest of the sports staff will consist of: Bob, football, head coach; Jack, men's basketball; and Bill North every year and then, Jim Leventrout if he still does, on Dave Furguson and whoever else likes sports.

Grob stresses toughness

David Go John

Listening to Al Groh talk about dedication needed to win big this spring, you can't but help feeling his troops to give their extra bit of effort that makes winners:

"Close game, a will be the key in the Wake Forest Regional," said Groh.

During the second part of spring practice, the Wake Forest foot- ball team will bring their offensive and defensive strategies to life.

Sports writer Gene Ozyrty will be the master of ceremonies and assistant coach Dick Gonski will be on hand to make a few comments.

Call 330-8700 for reservations.

"C'mon men," the coach says, nothing will hurt them a little.

During spring practice, defensive line coach for the Army, he returned to the University of South Carolina to spend the summer and play for the Gamecocks in the Orange Bowl.

"Nobody should hurt them," he said.

He usually likes his players to take the time to study the game and plan his moves.

The doubles team of Kay Anderle and Annette Eller will be one of the top ten teams in the nation.

"We took the time to study the game and plan our moves," he said.
