the university is being faced to the financial situation of this student aid. The 1995-96 budget predicts a 6.23 percent increase in undergraduate financial aid.
A third reason for increasing ta-cents, by other, and others, is the university’s desire to increase faculty salaries to the top quintile of faculty in the Association of American Universities. Although faculty salaries will be increased only 6.23 percent for 1993-94, that increase must be considered in the context of operating costs for the college.

Secondly, due to a significant lag in outside financial sources will begin to reduce the impact of the $1,000 increase in the current year. The effect of the Heritage and Premium

Security investigation leads to pursuit, arrest of suspected thief

University Security officers and students named Tuesday afternoon to take into cus- tody a suspect charged in Sunday night’s Aras Center theft.

Twenty-year-old Malcolm Wayne Gause, a student at the university, was arrested following a chase that ended at the loading dock of the campus maintenance building.

Gause is charged with felony possession of a stolen telephone.

On Sunday night, Hill appeared in court with his attorney, Stephen Gause, a senior patrol officer.

“I think this is the first theft incident in the area in which we have actually recovered the stolen item,” said Huddleston.

The telephone was one of five in the nation in which it was stolen by a student.

Huddleston, who continues to work for the university, said Gause was charged in connection with the theft.

The second arrest was made Monday.

"Jive," Patterson said; "A number of faculty have wanted to do it for a long time; we just haven't been doing it."

Patterson added: "It's a question of fairness, and I think it's a matter of academic honesty. We should be doing it for all faculty, not just for the gay rights issue."

Patterson said that the resolution was proposed by the Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Issues Awareness Group, but he had not been involved in the drafting of the resolution. He added that he had been a member of the group for many years, and that he was pleased with the support that it had received from other faculty members.

Patterson noted that the resolution was "not perfect," but that it was "a good start." He said that he hoped that it would be "a step forward in the right direction."

The Press has published French poetry and a book of photographs as well as books of Irish poetry.

"We began with Richard Mansfield's selection of the Rare Books collection's design and some help by Bill Moos (a professor of English)," he said. "We wanted to get in an article that we already have in the library as well as the major language that makes nearly all Irish poetry, as well as well-known English authors."

"The book we're working on is called 'Crier's Songs from the Mea coupon' which was translated by Liam Doran," he added. "It's a collection of poems that includes music and the Pagan, and film, Neil Slater's 'The Crying Songs,'" playwright Brian Flaherty, and "it's a Professor of English, The Irish Scene, John Johnston wrote in an article that we've already done in that the Irish poetry which is very closely related to all the others."

"It's a pleasure to publish that kind of poetry, so we hope to keep it going," he said. "We're in a subservient state. We're not a large university's production is expanded to the press can be found in the rare and general collections. They can be purchased in the campus bookstore, as Rainbow News and Books and at specialty bookstores. Women may also be ordered directly from the press.

"We're pretty much as a press and pretty standard as an active poetry press."

"The press's past staff included manuscript curator Ciaran Dwyer, a wonderful translation of a poem."

"The book we're working on is a selection of the poems. This includes volumes of poetry selected by Pierre Riviere, Jacques Depuyss and Philippe Jacobson. The (French series was started) in part because we're interested in the book's potential. We think that it's a cultural phenomenon."

we are in America. By the turn of the century the non-white population will be the majority. At every major university in the United States the campus population of ethnic groups is growing. Take for example the city of Los Angeles. It is estimated Los Angeles and the surrounding area has 8 million people. Of these, 4 million are Hispanic, 3 million are black, and 1 million are white.

No longer does the European American view an Asian American or an African American as different. Today, the only two groups that are still considered different are the Asian American and the African American.

Happiness is more important than political correctness. The only question is, does this happiness benefit everyone?

Shameful Sacrifice

After making the April 8 edition of the Old Gold and Black. I have come to a realization.

The plan has been laid out before us. It has been well thought out and executed. The Old Gold and Black is not a political tool. The Old Gold and Black is a tool for the university to advertise themselves.

Shameful sacrifice

Letters to the Editor

The Old Gold and Black is a tool for the university to advertise themselves. They are trying to sell Wake Forest as a place where the education is important. However, the university is not making a profit on this.

I would like to ask the readers of the Old Gold and Black, what is the purpose of this newspaper? Is it to provide entertainment? Is it to provide information? Or is it to provide an outlet for the students to express their opinions?

I believe that the Old Gold and Black is not fulfilling its purpose. The university is spending money on advertising, but not on providing the students with a platform to express their opinions.

I urge the university to reconsider the way it spends its money. The Old Gold and Black should be a tool for the students to express their opinions, not a tool for the university to advertise itself.

February 14-15 marks the 20th anniversary of the bloodiest massacre in America's history. More than 150,000 students were killed in a single day on high schools campuses. The anniversary of this day will be observed across the country with a variety of events.

In its 1929 report, the Commission on the Rights of Women, the American Council on Education, and the American Association of University Women, an investigation of the conditions of women in colleges and universities, concluded that women were being denied the same educational opportunities as men. The report also recommended that women be allowed to take the same courses as men, and be granted the same status in the academic community.

This year, the anniversary of this day will be observed with a variety of events, including lectures, workshops, and screenings of films and documentaries. The events will be held on campuses across the country, and will be open to the public.

The anniversary of this day is a time to remember the women who were denied the same educational opportunities as men, and to celebrate the progress that has been made since then. The events will also be a time to reflect on the issues that still need to be addressed, and to consider how we can continue to work towards a more equitable and just educational system.

Seminar addresses past Shakespearean theatre

By Bob Carreras

Shakespearean emusations of all kinds, including actors, teachers and directors from the university, were featured in the 13th Annual Shakespeare Seminar. The seminar was held April 6-9.

The workshop was conducted by the theater's Shakespearean, Christian Miller, who demonstrated various techniques and scenes from early productions of Shakespeare.

George Miller said that the seminar provided an opportunity for actors to study the work of Shakespeare in a relaxed social atmosphere.

The seminar also included discussions among professors and teachers of literary arts, the show presents the trials and tribulations of a high school student, Tony (senior Michael Strick), as he navigates the challenges of high school life, all the while trying to balance family and personal relationships.

The main plot, however, is a predictable May I suggest that you purchase your tickets online, as tickets are often sold out in advance.

The theater offers a variety of services and facilities, such as accessible seating, which is important for all patrons. The theater is equipped with wheelchair accessible seating, and there is a designated area for those with hearing impairments.

The theater also offers a wide range of performances, including musicals, plays, and other events, which makes it a popular destination for both locals and tourists.

The theater's commitment to accessibility and inclusivity is evident in its programming, which includes a diverse range of productions that cater to a wide range of audiences.

Men's golf team takes eighth at Ping tournament in warm-up for ACC Tournament

By Benjamin Kleinman

The Deacons fielded a team to play in the ninth annual ACC Championship at the Proposal Golf Course in Greensboro, N.C., and finished in eighth place.

Benjamin Kleinman (Benjamin Kleinman) / Special to The Deacons

The team's performance was attributed to the warm-up activities they conducted prior to the tournament, which helped them prepare for the ACC Championship. The Deacons were able to improve their position in the final round, finishing with a score of 860 compared to the 888 they recorded in the first round.

Georgia Tech led the conference participants with a score of 790. Other ACC teams that performed well include Virginia Tech in second place with a score of 831, followed by Duke in third place with a score of 837. Wake Forest finished in fourth place with a score of 842.”

Football springs into action as Caldwell leads new regime

By Steve Williams

There are some expectations and some hope for the Demon Deacons under new head coach Bill Caldwell.

"The team will have a new look under new Head Coach Bill Caldwell."

Caldwell, a 1977 graduate of the University of Iowa, brings with him some impressive connections and expects to see a lot of talent with programs that have a tradition of winning football.

"We are looking forward to playing at Homecoming and each game," Caldwell said. "We think we can see that in every day that we play."
