The adoption of a good neighbor policy toward Latin-American countries is one of the most important steps which the United States can take, President Juan Carlos of Mexico, a member of the Wake Forest Student Political Union and other students attending the meeting, said.

"We must take our eyes northward to the problems of Latin America," he said.

Ambassador Daniels, who is now in Washington, representing the government of the Dominican Republic, spoke of the progress that has been made toward the establishment of a good neighbor policy with Latin-American countries. He said that the support of the United States is essential to the success of the good neighbor policy, and that the United States has a duty to help Latin-American countries.

Time Marches On...

Some new issues of The March, published by editors of Life and Time, bring with them the news that there is something even less interesting than national politics—national school politics. The latest issue of 'The March' contains a feature article on the State of Arkansas, as well as a review of the state's educational system. The article comments on the poor quality of education in Arkansas, with a particular focus on the University of Arkansas. The article notes that the university is struggling with funding issues, and that the state legislature has not provided adequate support for education in the state.

The Dance

The Dance is a popular annual event at the university, featuring student performances, music, and dancing. This year, the Dance was held in the campus gymnasium, with a capacity of over 3,000 people. The event included a variety of performances, such as dancing, singing, and musical acts. The atmosphere was lively and festive, with students enjoying the music and dancing throughout the night.

The Dance has been a tradition at the university for many years, and is highly anticipated by students. It is a great opportunity for students to come together and enjoy a night of fun and celebration.

Fruit Basket Game Ends; Gautieau, BVD Exchange

By Nerdik Williamson

From open stigma to open band leader is a natural move, but that is what Wake Forest’s Frank Gautieau has done since only last summer. From dance band conductor to vocalist is another step, but that is what Wake Forest’s Bill Vanders have decided to do.

This fruit-basket-toss-over-all setup to this Frank Gautieau is now leader of the orchestra which Vanders Dean conducted last year and Vanders himself had turned into singing star for the boys to buy in town.

To Forest Band

Gautieau, who plans having his orchestra with trumpet solos for the first time ever this Friday night, has the Gammas Eta Gamma National Convention dance in the Hotel Beamer, sung one of the leading roles in the “Senior” theater, staged in New York this summer under the direction of Stanis Marins, director of the Metropolitan Opera Company. While in New York, the band leader studied trumpet under Ernest Williams, who is known as the “trumpet artist.” He played in the symphony band organized by Williams and later was tenor in the band head quartered out of this same district.

“Speckled” as he is called by his Lambeth Cal Alpha fraternity brethren, Gautieau is in his last year at Wake, and his ambition is to graduate in 1930. At first bassador Theater in Raleigh. What students think of "big-time set-up."

Deacons vs. Wolfpack

Tonight’s game is the thirty-second in a long series which began in 1914 and with the exception of two years has been contested every year up to the present day. In this series from the beginning to the end, Wake Forest has been a vast majority of the time, winning 20 games, losing 17, and tying 6. However, in the last eight contests, Wake Forest has only won three, losing four, and tying one. The Demon Deacons have improved tremendously over the past ten years, and in recent seasons, the Wake Forest line has become one of the strongest in the country. The Wolfpack, on the other hand, have struggled in recent years, and their defense has been particularly薄弱.

The contest promises to be a hard-fought battle, with both teams hoping to come out on top. Wake Forest enters the game with a record of 6-4, having lost their last game to Duke. The Demon Deacons, on the other hand, are 6-6, having won their last two games against Duke and Pitt. Both teams are expected to put up a good fight, and the game should be a close one.

Overall, the game promises to be an exciting one, with both teams bringing their A-game. The Wolfpack will be looking to improve on their recent performances, while Wake Forest will be looking to continue their winning streak. It should definitely be a game worth watching.
