Quail Elm Trees to Be Cut Down Thanksgiving

BY HARLEY CHAPMAN
The remaining elm trees on the Quad will be cut down this afternoon, making room for a new dormitory. President Charles A. Hearn, in an address delivered to the Capital Planning Committee of the Board of Trustees, announced that the elm trees are no longer a viable part of the Quad's landscape.

President Hearn said the elm trees are expected to continue dying at a rapid rate, and if they were not cut down, "the chance that they would survive the winter season was remote."

The elm trees were planted in 1952 and currently serve as a landmark for several buildings on campus. They have been an integral part of the Quad's historic landscape.

President Hearn said that the decision to cut down the elm trees is the result of a comprehensive review of the current and future landscape of the Quad. "We have determined that the elm trees are no longer an asset to the Quad," he said. "It is time to make way for a new dormitory that will enhance the Quad's overall beauty."

The new dormitory will be built on the site of the elm trees and will provide additional housing for students. The dormitory will be designed to complement the existing architecture of the Quad and will feature the same materials and colors as the surrounding buildings.

President Hearn stressed that the decision to cut down the elm trees was not an easy one. "We have weighed the pros and cons of keeping the elm trees, and we have determined that it is in the best interest of the Quad to cut them down," he said. "We are confident that the new dormitory will provide a lasting legacy for future generations."
Author Claims Music Closes Students’ Minds

By John Segerman

College News Staff

Music is an important part of our society, and it has the power to close our minds. In his book "Theodor Seuss Geisel: A Biography," author David H. Courtman argues that music should be taught in schools to help students develop their minds and improve their academic performance.

"Music is a powerful tool that can impact the way we think," Courtman said. "It can help students to focus, to learn, and to retain information."

Courtman cites studies that have shown a correlation between music education and improved academic outcomes. He also notes that music has the ability to influence our emotions and behavior.

However, despite the benefits of music education, many schools have reduced the number of music classes offered. Courtman argues that this is a mistake.

"The lack of music education in our schools is a serious problem," he said. "It is time that we recognize the value of music and invest in music education for our children."
Women's Issues Group
Gains Strength at WFU

Although the Women's Issues Discussion Group, which was organized on campus two years ago, already had reached its five-year mark, it continues to grow. President Mary DeBaker, the coordinator of the Wake Forest Women's Studies Program, said that approximations of 50 people attended the second meeting of the group this year. The meeting focused on different perspectives people can have on feminism.

Students from the Women's Issues Group plan to meet twice a month. The next meeting is set for Oct. 3 at 7 p.m., in the CPC.

DeBaker said the students had requested a group where they could meet regularly and rub elbows more fully on issues that come up in women's studies classes in the future.

The group continues to meet as a way for women to talk with others about their lives and experiences.

DeBaker said members have already discussed a range of topics between interested men and female members at one of the meetings.

Defense Institute Founder to Speak
The speaker for the lecture will be "Eugene" Red McDougal, founder and president of the American Institute for Defense, who will speak at the Wake Forest College student union on Thursday, Sept. 23.

McDougal was the founder of ADF and ADF, not-for-profit organizations headquartered in Washington, D.C., that promote public awareness of the need for nuclear weapons and the civil defense.

He was shot down in May 1967 while on his third tour of Vietnam. He was listed as missing for six years; however, the family was informed of his death in 1973. He was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal and 100 medals.

Self-Governance

Common Goal More Elusive Than Ever

S tudents of Wake Forest will not be surprised to hear that the Student Life Committee has been the subject of controversy in recent weeks. The committee's latest decision has drawn criticism from students and administrators alike. In this article, we will examine the reasons behind the controversy and discuss the impact of this decision on the university community.

First, one of the major problems that students have been facing is the lack of transparency in the Student Life Committee's decision-making process. A senior member of the committee, for example, would be expected to have a vested interest in a particular issue and be more likely to vote in favor of their position. This creates a conflict of interest that must be addressed to ensure the integrity of the committee.

But with the recent decision, the committee's decision has been made without any input from students. This lack of transparency raises concerns about the committee's decision-making process and its impact on the student body.

Second, the controversial atmosphere of Christmas break has been a concern for some members of the Wake Forest community. In recent years, a number of controversies have arisen regarding the university's policies and practices. Some students have expressed frustration with the university's decision to extend breaks, while others have praised the decision for its flexibility. The committee's decision has drawn criticism from both sides, with some students feeling that the decision was rushed and others feeling that it was well-considered.

Finally, whenever a change occurs, it is important to carefully examine the reasons behind the decision and its impact on the student body. In this case, the committee's decision has raised concerns about the university's commitment to providing a safe and inclusive environment for all students. While the committee's decision may have been well-intentioned, it is important to ensure that the needs of all students are met.

In conclusion, the Student Life Committee's decision has raised concerns about the university's commitment to transparency and fairness. It is important for the committee to consider the impact of its decisions on the student body and to ensure that the needs of all students are met. Only then can we truly say that our community is moving towards a more inclusive and equitable environment.

Letters Policy

The Old Gold and Black encourages the submission of letters to the editor on a wide variety of topics. We reserve the right to edit letters for clarity and space. Letters should be no longer than 200 words. There is a limit of one letter per student per semester.

Letters should include the author's name and phone number, although neither are mandatory. All letters must be typed and signed. Writers are encouraged to submit letters digitally. We reserve the right to run any letter, including those not signed.

The Old Gold and Black reserves the right to run Letters to the Editor on any day of the week, on any topic, and in any order. Letters are not guaranteed to be published on a specific day or to be published in the order they are received.

Letters should be submitted via email to letters@wfu.edu. Letters must be submitted by 5 p.m. on the Friday before publication.
Classes Should Get First Appropriation

How much are a high school's services worth? $33.55, $35.50, $80.00? If so, Wake Forest University is the right place for you. After all, this is the average price a student pays for a year of high school. If you feel that a student takes four classes a semester for a total of eight classes a year, then it's obvious that you are not getting the value you paid for. Further- more, students are continually told that the possiblity of not getting the classes they want is real. Not every student is entitled to, or even granted, their first choices. To make matters worse, Wake Forest students who register late are usually denied classes that they didn't get. In the last minute rush, Wake Forest students who are on waitlist are being overlooked, as the same money could easily pay for the entire arts season necessary to satisfy the demands of registration. A new driving range does not ensure an equal competition between individuals under the standards of the entire student body. This unfair mentality would not see grades, as students would fail to invest in the future in order to avoid potential income. But to undermine competition, one must engage in some kind of skewed system. Therefore, registration must offer the students the classes they need to know is what color curb on their next parking ticket is. It's only binding contracts that is more impossible to understand than a lawyer's diary. However, it is worth it for that person to spend those three hours, because it could possibly mean one less large amount of money to the overall class.

Despite the structure of the class, enough has been said, which must have some common ground of time to remove parking altogether, or to significant increase of the amount of financial aid that is left to those who take classes. Under a society, students don't realize the amount of financial aid that is left to those who take classes. A college cannot be bankrupt, and even though it is a significant part of the students who do not have to take classes, that is not the only problem of the issue. A city could not be bankrupt, and even though it is a significant part of the students who do not have to take classes, the other students don't die, but they do get their money back.

This is an article that percent's a dollar would want to know is what color curb on which they feel that is where they would get some from three hours restructuring the fine of a legal.

Confusing Parking Regulations Cause Expensive Mistakes

hen students at Wake Forest are privileges to attend a beautiful public and private institutions, and one of the reasons is the parking regulations. Trying to find a space to park on campus is harder than finding a place to sleep on Saturdays. With parking prices being high and a lot of places to go, it is a hard task for people to find a space to, at least, have enough money to pay for their college. The problem is that the parking regulations are confusing and difficult to understand.

Parking regulations are confusing and difficult to understand. This is because the parking regulations are not clear and easy to follow. This is one of the reasons why people have such a hard time finding a space to park on campus. The regulations are not easy to follow and are often changed without notice. This makes it difficult for people to understand the rules and regulations of the parking system. As a result, people may have difficulty finding a space to park and may end up incurring additional costs for parking. This can lead to financial strain for students, who may have to pay more than they should for parking.

How to Create a Controversy

Momentary Irrelevance Chris Larson

Since my stint as an Old Gold & Black writer began, I have tried to preserve personal views in theurenous fashion. I have given the best of my patched credentials, saying nothing at all. I have even allowed others to write under my name. Meanwhile, my peers on the editorial page have produced their views as well. Some serious. Some manic.

But nearly all controversial.

My moral, however magnificently it may seem, is as controversial as anybody's, when taken in a certain fashion. However, it has earned me nothing more than various possibility saying, "This your article." Yikes.

Moreover, others' opinions fail controversies that rage in their pages.

On the other hand, my opinions were sometimes statements of bland acquiescence. Oh, for example..." I read your article, and I HATED it!"

Well, so much Mr. Nice Gay. The time has come for some controversy in my pallet that could start decade-spanning questions. Let me caution those of you with squat-mindedness this is going to be real Buy a printer with your Macintosh and conserve paper.

A Macintosh personal computer and an Apple ImageWriter II printer will save you hours of time. Not to mention gallons of correction fluid and reams of paper.

And, if you buy both now, the first ream of paper you will save will have a lovely green glow with Presidents on it. You’ll save a bundle of cash when you purchase an ImageWriter II printer along with your choice of a Macintosh SE or a Macintosh Plus.

Either way you’ll be able to turn out beautifully written and beautifully printed papers. And we’ll even try to help you with a variety of financing options.

We feel compelled to tell you, though, that a deal like this can’t last forever. So it’s a good idea to see your campus microcomputer center today. And join the paper conservation movement.

Deacon Coach Joe Morrison has the experience of 15 years and 20 losses to back from last year’s 5-2-2 squad. This year’s Camelback continues to show the part of the program that has been able to carry on despite the loss of outstanding players, and it is rapidly gaining as much respect as any of the rest of the team that the Carmel has. Besides heating the starting quarterback for the rest of the season, the Deacons have continued to show strength in defense that has rearranged two separate games in which the team is able to make a shutout victory in both. South Carolina, which lost three of its first five to start the season, has just the same record as last year and is now third in the country. South Carolina's wide receivers to throw to, including Sterling Sharpe. Ellis has good speed and long arms, and he is considered by many to be one of the top signal callers in the country.

Enforcer Simmons' Hard Hits Earn Him Enforcer Reputation

By Jeanie White
Associated Press Staff

The enforcer. He's the guy who hits so hard that no one dares to push him on his own side of the ball. And he's the guy who makes all the other linebackers respect him. Simmons is that guy. He's been playing football since high school and he's never let anyone push him around. He's a big hitter, a good tackler, and he always stands up for what he believes in.

Simmons is a senior at Wake Forest and he's been a starter for the last three years. He's played in over 100 games and has been a key player in the team's success. He's earned a starting spot in thedefensive line and is a respected leader on the team.

Simmons is a member of the Black and Gold Football Club and he's been involved in various community service projects. He's also a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity and he's been a leader in the community.

Simmons is a hard worker and he always gives it his all on the field. He's a great player and he's a great leader. He's a guy who everyone respects and he's a guy who everyone wants to be around. He's a guy who will go the extra mile to help his team win.

The only thing I was thinking about was winning the private institution championship between Wake Forest and Duke.

— Head Coach Bill Dooley when asked about his feelings on the Deacons' winning the Big Four Championship.

Mark Young, the ACC's leading all-purpose runner, gained 135 yards on 27 carries against Duke Saturday.

The lead in the half ended. Dilweg connected with Keith Daniel, who slipped behind three Deacon defenders for a 40-yard touchdown pass with an onside kick, giving the Blue Devils a 23-17 halftime lead.

Deacons End Losing Skid, Overcome Duke 30-27

Wake Forest, relying on what Head Coach Bill Dooley called a "great team effort," stopped a three-game losing streak by defeating Duke 30-27 on Saturday at Groves Stadium.

The victory gave the Deacons a winning season and the Big Four title for the second straight year. Duke had never won at Wake Forest in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Wake Forest kicked off and held its own for most of the game, but the Blue Devils and the Blue Demons both had their moments.

The Deacons, however, were able to capitalize on their opportunities and put away the game in the second half.

Wake Forest outgained Duke 451-354 in total offense, but the Blue Devils outscored the Deacons 14-10 in the second half.

Wake Forest quarterback Tony Mosley had a strong game, completing 18 of 27 passes for 236 yards and three touchdowns.

Duke's defense was no match for the Deacons' offense, allowing 451 yards of offense and 354 yards of total offense.

The Wake Forest offense was led by Young, the ACC's leading all-purpose runner, who gained 135 yards on 27 carries against Duke Saturday.
