LEAD proposes dry cleaning services

By Jessica Reigle
Old Gold and Black Report

A project to bring a dry cleaning service to campus is being worked on by a LEAD group. The initiative is currently in its planning phase, but has already received much positive feedback from students.

The goal of this project is to set up a central laundry dry cleaning service that would provide its services so that students would have a convenient service for getting their laundry cleaned. LEAD has proposed that it would be a local dry cleaning service would be used. A drop-off-up system would be established on campus, and LEAD is currently looking for a source in Benson to sponsor this project. According to Benson, the Loads are a potential $2.50-$10.00, and that in the dry cleaning will have to be set up.

Currently, several laundromats are being considered for the pilot period, such as a store in the basement next to the floor, or a store near a popular food court. Students would be able to bring in the laundry and students responded very favorably.

When asked what they would do, many students would be willing to pay for such a service $10.00-$15.00 per week. Some students noted that they would look into using the service.

BMW ex-president stresses diversity

By Brad Caston

Whether it is for manufacturing executives competing in the global marketplace or students trying to find a job in the workplace, Allen Kinzer's message is the same: find your competitive edge.

Kinzer, who is an expert in cross-cultural manufacturing, is the principal of A.O. Kinzer and Associates, the manufacturing consultant company he founded after he retired as the president of BMW Manufacturing Co. He delivered his speech, "Cross-Cultural Implications of Manufacturing in a Global Economy," April 1, in Canwell Hall.

Kinzer stressed throughout his speech the theme of globalization in the workplace. He said that it was imperative that students understand both the local and global sides of an issue.

"The world has become a smaller place today," Kinzer said. "You, as students going into this world, need to get a global perspective and visualize it for what it is." According to Kinzer, every company is defined by its culture, which may be created either intentionally by the company or through the workers who join the company.

Kinzer said that Toyota was one of the companies that had achieved an extremely successful culture, calling it the "Michael Jordan of the business." No matter where the particular Toyota plant was located, Kinzer said that the same company culture would result.

Another example that Kinzer used was his philosophy of managing by measurable terms to precisely determine the outcome that you want to be achieved.

For Kinzer, managing by measurable terms included internal and external factors, and the correlation between them. Companies that are successful in managing by measurable terms establish a clear strategy for success.

"People in your organization need to understand the strategy," Kinzer said. "Everyone should get on board looking at what they've contributed."

Kinzer also talked about the future of automotives, saying that Toyota and Honda were each developing cars that were combinations of electric and petrol, using a different power source depending on the speed and environment. He concluded by discussing the importance of having a competitive edge, both in the workplace and for students. He said that the ability to speak a foreign language and adapt to a foreign culture would both help students in the workplace.

Kinzer was invited to the university as part of the Global Issues in Business and Accountancy Speaker series sponsored by the Wayne Callaway School of Business and Accountancy.

"The purpose of the series is to complement the academic perspective with professional perspective on business," Wilkerson said. Diversity and flexibility was one of Kinzer's most important themes. "Flexibility really only be a competitive advantage if you want to be successful," Kinzer said. We want our students to be savvy with things that are relevant in our accounting curriculum," Kinzer said.

In an effort to fix this situation, SG has approved an amendment to the constitution changing the date of committee chairmen appointments to the spring immediately after the speaker is elected. Also, the chairman-designate shall be a member of the legislature. The speakers until recently, have been the only one, and has therefore been the only one for the committee other than that he or she is a member of legislature.

The difference between the requirements for chairman in a senior system, in this current system, the chairmen may be a newly elected official of SG, but does not have to have experience in legislature. However, this has been recently elected by the student body. In the proposed amendment, the chairmen may be a newly elected SG official, but for the chairmen to be a member of legislature, or for the chairmen to be a member of the legislature, or for the student body to be a member of another body, the speaker body may or may not be a holder of this position, or for the speaker body to be a member of the student body. Therefore, a student may have served in legislature in his freshman year and be appointed by the speaker in his sophomore year without having to run for office again.

Along with this amendment, students will also vote on two other bills. The first bill deals with the official additions of a relief of stuff to the legislators as a non-voting member. The chief of staff position has existed only for the previous years has not yet been added to the constitution. Because this position is an elected one, the chief of staff position represents the student body as a whole.

The second bill updates the constitution on the way that the judiciary committee is elected. The current process outlined in the bill has been followed for years but has never been made official.

Although these last two bills are clarifying positions and procedures already in practice, they must be put to a vote to the student body because they deal with changes to the SG constitution and any change to the constitution requires the approval of the student body.

Voting will take place April 13 in residence halls and homes on campus and in Benson University Center.

Durham, N.C. — Editor-by-luck this year's unexpected... should only affect sophomores, as freshmen use Netscape for their e-mail and freshmen seniors are either Netscape or Internet Explorer.

Many sophomores don't think that the change will effect them greatly.

According to sophomore Emily Olsen, whooping it out on the e-mail isn't very impor­tant to her.

"E-mail isn't what I program school.

With sophomores being the only students who use the new browser, it would be impossible for anyone other than a sophomore to receive mail in Netscape.

There were 25% and 25% OFF marks used in different ads and articles. The effect of undergraduates' advertising is not mentioned in all previous years and a more finely tuned marketing campaign is needed.

Over 100 students have signed up for the course, and the program has been a success.

While the program has been successful, some students have complained about the lack of resources.

"We need to keep trying to improve the course," said one student. "It's great to have a course that allows us to learn about programming, but we need more resources and support."

Ashworth

Ashworth’s communication between SG members and students is a major concern of his. In his pre-portfolio eye session with the times, telephone calls were made to all directors of legislature in state and local. Additionally, he would like to see more suggestions from placed on campus and students can see their opinions of their work.

At this time, Ashworth and his team will be the only team of SG, which is working on the SG issue. They will work on the SGs with this issue for the students. Ashworth said, “We need a top-down process to deal with this issue.”

Watson

As the co-chairman of the appropriations and charter committee, Watson said, “We should focus on SG’s future.”

Carlsen

Carlsen is a business major. His experiences include being a member of the SGA, and his goal is to continue to contribute to the SG agenda and community.

Ferenc

Ferenc is a chemistry major and an active member of the SGA. He plans to contribute to this year’s SG agenda.

Waters

Waters said, “We need to keep dialogue going between these two groups.”

Two students are up for the position of treasurer.

The committee has not reached a final decision. However, she did note the students’ desire to look for this option in the next term.

When asked whether the student groups, which have already agreed to be included in the Off-campus Housing ordinance or not, Watson replied, “I would not feel confident in saying that we will not consider the option.”

Once we settle on guidelines, that situation might not match our situation.”

However, Carson did not want to let students off the hook, but she assured that would take into account all communications when formulating their decision.

Because the Off-campus students are being forced to move off-campus due to the Off-campus Housing ordinance, there is a need to regulate off-campus students. As a means to moderate problems with the campus, students, Residence Life and Housing recommended proposals from both the Off-campus Housing ordinance and the OCSA to the president’s advanced agenda.

After receiving support from both groups, RLH proposed a draft of the Off-campus Housing ordinance. The final draft is expected to be finalized after spring break, but the process has yet to find a viable solution as of yet.

Realizing students are attempting to finalizing fall housing plans, she was going to have to share the news with them at a later date.
Board endorses executive candidates

With the elections for the executive positions on this spring’s Student Government around the corner April 13, the Old Gold & Black Editorial Board interviewed each of the candidates to familiarize themselves with the qualities and platforms of each. This is the first of a series of set prepared questions, both general and job specific, to help better evaluate each person.

The editorial board has chosen to endorse the following candidates based on both their responses to the prepared questions and their years of service to the student body present. The board members provided a vote regarding their experience and qualifications.

The board endorses Javier Khalid Jones for SG president. Jones has the needed experience, strong roll call presence, and realistic and attainable goals that will make an excellent leader of the SG president office.

One of the most significant characteristics a SG president needs to display is his or her ability to lead and guide the student body. Jones’ character and personality strongly fit the bill. He will be in the position of what will all listen and learn from him. Without a doubt, his leadership concepts and ideas of both students and other advisors will be respected.

Jones has been a member of the Student Government since his freshman year, serving in various roles. He has been the president of his class and many other positions. In addition, Jones has spoken one of the top executives in the past two years at the inaugural SG conference at the University of Iowa. Jones has served on both the Judicial Committee, as co-chairman, and the academic SG council. In addition, he has served on the Executive Committee on the board. He is knowledgeable of how the student body is run and operates.

Jones plans to put course descriptions, syllabi, and needed books for the upcoming classes online so that students can make better planning decisions for classes. He is interested in making the student voice present in issues involving minorities and the school that are being addressed.

He and the Student Government, along with the student body, should have the right to make decisions about how the school runs and operates. This is a point of crucial importance to Jones.

Jones was an intern at the Univeristy of Iowa for the past three years. He will be an intern at the University of Iowa for the next two years. During this time, Jones has had the opportunity to learn and understand the workings of the Student Government and the workings of the student body.

It is important to note that Jones has served on both the Academic Committee and Executive Committee and to think about his experience.

This abundance of past experience will make Jones a valuable asset to the Student Government and to the Student Body.

In conclusion, Jones is the best candidate for the SG president position. He will be an excellent leader of the Student Government and will be an excellent leader of the Student Body. The board endorses Jones for SG president.

The Diamond Deacons met Tallahassee with the hope of knocking off the top-ranked Florida State Seminoles, but any dreams of a perfect season went up in smoke as the Seminoles (3-3, 12-0) swept the regular season series from the Deacs (19-6, 6-5) for the second consecutive season with a 6-5 win on April 2.

The Deacs (5-2, 18-10) scored three runs in the bottom of the third inning by collecting five straight singles to tie the game at 3-3. Michelle Munoz claimed a fairly routine victory at the mound for the Seminoles, dropping the Deacs to 24-6 on the year as they remained only a half-game behind the Seminoles in fourth place in the ACC.

Northwestern site of FBI wrestling inquiry

By Michael B. Raghib

Video tape of nude wrestlers shot secretly at a 1995 national tournament hosted by Northwestern University, part of the nation's second-largest wrestling inquiry.

The shocking footage was captured in locker rooms at the Midlands Wrestling Tournament and featured a wrestler who was a two-time All-American who was a national title contender. The tape, which was discovered by a former wrestler, reportedly contains footage of nude wrestlers and was shot in the locker rooms of the tournament.

FBI investigation

Northwestern head coach Don Madison said this incident has little to do with the university, but it did happen here. This is a coincidence. Let's not make a mountain out of a molehill.

Although this marks the third time in less than two years that naked collegiate wrestlers have been targeted by the FBI, the investigation is part of a nationwide probe of nude collegiate athletes.

According to Neider, Kraft's decision to keep the incident under wraps was a matter of privacy. Kraft didn't question Kraft's delay, but he did question the university's response.

“Everything this administration does, it does to please its fans,” Neider said.

“People like Rick Kraft and Ken Kraft, the athletes at the Midlands Tournament were their athletes. They wouldn't follow a different course of action had Northwestern been brought on the tape,” Neider said.

Coyswski didn't question Kraft's delay, but he wondered if the FBI has worked hard to cover up this incident. The FBI has worked hard to cover up this incident. The FBI has worked hard to cover up this incident.

The FBI is investigating the incident and has already interviewed numerous individuals. The FBI is interviewing numerous individuals.

Despite the obvious invasion of privacy, the absence of a concrete legal precedent, and the ambiguity of Illinois' obscenity laws, Neider said, "I don't even know if there is a precedent."

Rodgers who are conversos pick to the National League West.

Some say the Dodgers may be overrated, but they aren’t wrong.

The National League Central is clearly the toughest division in baseball. The Dodgers, Cardinals and Rockies are all strong and have shown they can hang with the best of the best. The St. Louis Cardinals are one of the favorites to win the division, and the Colorado Rockies are close behind. The Cincinnati Reds, who were also tough last year, have a young and talented roster that could surprise some people. The San Francisco Giants are expected to be a strong team as well, especially if Matt Cain can stay healthy.

Baseball scores are listed below.

Renowned actresses to perform, instruct

Secret Artists Series to end with dramatic one-woman show

By Dave Briscoe
Old Gold and Black Reviewer

London stage and screen legend Claire Bloom will return to Southern Cal- fuer in an acting masterclass and perform her acclaimed one-woman show "She's a praise and Women" at Brendle Rec- inate Hall as part of the Secret Artists Series.

Bloom is known for her film roles in Richard III (star-rating and directed by Laurence Olivier), Look Back in Anger (with Richard Burton), A Doll's House (with Anthony Hopkins), and Woody Allen's Mighty Aphrodite. She began her professional career at the age of 16 with the Old Vic in London's Shakespearean works, Bloom has since performed at major theaters such as the Old Vic, the New York Shakespeare Company and the Merce Cunningham Dance Company. When bell hooks spoke in a packed Pugh Auditorium at the University, she was an invited to the university by Pugh Auditorium for a guest lecture. The lecture was jointly sponsored by Alliance of Women in the Arts and the Office of the Provost. Bloom is at the forefront of the movement for women's rights and the arts.

In New York, Bloom has appeared in several productions, including "A Doll's House" and "Hedda Gabler." Aside from playing leading roles in numerous British Broadcast Company television programs on Shakespeare, Bloom is well-known for many leading en- acting, including the New York Philhar- monic, the Los Angeles Philharmonic, the London Symphony, the London Philharmonic, the Chicago Symphony, the Minnesota Orches- tra and the New York Symphony. Recently, Bloom performed onstage at the American Repertory Theater in Cambridge, Mass. in O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey into Night." Bloom's recording, "Leaving a Doll's House," received her three- week tour in Berlin and Paris. She is currently a professor of English at New Haven University.

Bloom's performance of "Shakespeare's Women" will be held in Brendle Recital Hall on April 18. Tickets are available at the Brendle Information Desk.

Feminist writer speaks, leads discussion

By Erin Kenny
Old Gold and Black Reporter

When Bell hooks walked into the crowded Regis Hall on April 1, she noted her tardiness up onto the stage. But when the elegantly dressed hook was introduced, she was so much as to notice that the packed audi- ence was also so much as to note, that a variety of topics suggested by the audience members.

hooks is best known for her respected black feminist theories that are explored in her books such as "Ain't I a Woman: Black Women and Feminism," "Kill Your Darlings: Ending Racism and Feminist Theory from Margot to Metric." hooks is also a professor at Old Gold and Black City College and a writer and reader.

hooks' lecture revolved around the impor- tance of love in society and how every situation, action and interaction was affected by the presence of love. She addressed topics such as racial assimilation, feminism and others that were not "beyond the essential" or "too difficult to solve.

She talked about the idea that hooks is at the heart of the struggle for equality in the struggle for racial justice and justice for all people.

Next, hooks talked about the idea of love in a society that is so divided. She discussed the "domestic" aspects of love and the issue of love that is prevalent in our culture. She discussed love as a profession and the issue of the "love that is prevalent in our culture." She also talked about love as a profession and the issue of love that is prevalent in our culture. She spoke about love as a profession and the issue of love that is prevalent in our culture.

hooks and Bloom have a one-woman show called "The Old Gold and Black Reviewer." It is a show that features the stories of Bloom and her career as an actress. The show has been performed in various cities across the country and is currently touring. The show is about Bloom's life and career as an actress and includes many of her most famous roles. It also includes a lot of her personal stories and anecdotes about her life.

In "She's a praise and Women," Bloom explores her own experiences as a woman in theater and film. She discusses her experiences as a young actress and the challenges she faced as a woman in the industry. She also talks about her relationships with other women and the importance of female relationships in the arts. The show includes her famous role as Blanche in "Look Back in Anger." Bloom's performance as Blanche in "Look Back in Anger" was one of her most famous roles. It earned her a Tony Award nomination and helped to establish her as a leading lady in the theater. Bloom has since gone on to work in film and television, winning numerous awards for her performances. In her work, she has consistently explored themes of gender and identity, and her performances have been celebrated for their depth and nuance.

In "She's a praise and Women," Bloom's one-woman show, she has included "Women's Lies," in which she played Lily Mandel, Thelma Dee, and Mabel "Mississippi" D. She also played "The Last Days of August," "Vivian," and "Travailleurs." Bloom's performance of "The Last Days of August" was one of her most acclaimed roles, and "Vivian" earned her a Tony Award nomination. Bloom has also been hard at work preparing the show for its performances.

The secret of Krispy Kreme

A small southern company garners doughnut-loving fans nationwide

By Brian Schiller
Perspective Editor

They've been seen on such popular television shows as "S.W.A.T." and "The Snoop Dogg Show" as well as in the movie "Primary Colors." They have made appearances at the White House and have a display at the Smithsonian Institute. They were also on an old-fashioned ice cream stand in Glendale, Elba Presley's Memphis estate. These are not some exotic good or rare fashion, but instead a product that calls Winston-Salem home, Krispy Kreme doughnuts.

Krispy Kreme has been a growing force in the South for the past 62 years, since the first store opened in Salem (now Old Salem) in 1937. From this first store where a dozen doughnuts could be purchased for the bargain price of 25 cents, the doughnut hour. Because their product is such a hit, Krispy Kreme guards its doughnut recipe, which was developed by a Frenchman in New Orleans. All of the batter is mixed here in Winston-Salem and shipped to the stores in 50-pound bags. All of the hard work brought results; the smell was so enticing that a passerby came into the store wanting to buy a dozen. Krispy Kreme has grown to include a dozen stores in 60 states.

In the mid-'90s, Krispy Kreme has joined the technology age with a Web site at www.krispykreme.com that relates the company's history, has links to recent success stories comes from the new store in New York City. Though Krispy Kreme are primarily a southern phenomenon, having caused the Marion-Civic Center only in the mid-1990s, they have been warmly received by northerners. In New York, the store opened to a large crowd of supporters. The store has been voted a Number 17,000 people rate the nectar puffed up with " Yeast." roy Blount Jr. said the store opened to a large crowd of supporters. Barbara Starr, a former neighbor of the chief executive officer of Krispy Kreme, said she makes frequent trips to the store because, "They make good doughnuts." Instead of focusing funds on advertising, Krispy Kreme relies on other methods to spread its name. The results are staggering. Each year to circle the globe more than twice, it is probably worth giving them at least a try. This secrecy is possible only because the company is relatively small, a point it prides itself on. To understand the mentality of how they came to be.

The secret of Krispy Kreme

Barbara Starr and Holly Restel, two regulars at the Krispy Kreme store on Stratford Road, polish off a late afternoon snack of doughnuts and coffee. Starr and Restel return to Krispy Kreme whenever they are both in town mainly for the coffee but said that they can't help but pick up a few doughnuts, too.

The first Krispy Kreme was opened in Salem by Rudolph's father had obtained a yeast-raised doughnut recipe from a Frenchman traveling through their hometown of New Orleans. Using this recipe and ingredients borrowed from a local grocer, the first store opened on a street called "Krispy Kreme."

Access to the history Web site, the story goes that Krispy Kreme was a pageant; it was a pageant. a former neighbor of the chief executive officer of Krispy Kreme, said she makes frequent trips to the store because, "They make good doughnuts." Instead of focusing funds on advertising, Krispy Kreme relies on other methods to spread its name. The results are staggering. Each year to circle the globe more than twice, it is probably worth giving them at least a try. This secrecy is possible only because the company is relatively small, a point it prides itself on. To understand the mentality of how they came to be.
