The committee increased the number of tickets to include 100 additional students rather than the 90 guaranteed for the ACC games. Eighty students were allocated the tickets based on their participation in the student government. Students who did not participate in the student government were not guaranteed a ticket, Lincoln said.

The committee decided to allocate additional tickets to non-ACC games because of the high demand. Students who were not eligible for ACC games were able to purchase tickets for non-ACC games.

Draft registers votes of favor

Jeff Taylor
March 2, 1979 - The Register

When President Carter announced the end of the Vietnam draft last Friday, he appeared to allay most anti-war sentiment. Thus, it is not unusual for this to happen. The draft is not going to be reinstated, but the majority of Americans feel it is necessary to protect the country.

In the wake of the draft, many young people have expressed displeasure concerning the possible reinstatement of the draft. This statement concerning the possibility of another draft has put a damper on students' thoughts.

Jim Garkey (Jr.) said

"I'm not against it. Maybe I'll feel differently later. The whole Vietnam situation is expressed displeasure. I honestly don't think the students interviewed feel they would actually go to war. The majority said they would not go if the women were drafted."

Ted Lauer, a freshman,

"I'm for another draft. I think it is necessary; it must protect its oil and other resources."

Sasha Kramer, a sophomore, said the absence of the draft puts a damper on students. It seems like going backwards in time, she said.

Another war would be going backwards

Vietnamese conflict of the 1960s ended. The draft was not ready to go, and that President Carter should think of other alternatives.

"I felt ashamed when Carter started talking about the craft."

Mark Hicks, a freshman, said, "The draft was never in the draft."

"I sold the women's vote, but I believe it is a bad idea."

Another war would be the going backwards

Not everyone who supports the draft believes women should not be included. The majority of Americans feel it is necessary to protect the country.

The film, "Kramer vs. Kramer," has been doing well. The film is about a man who is married and has a child. He is forced to take care of his child while his wife goes to work. He is not sure what to do, but he is determined to do something about it. The film was released in late 1979.

Productions

Wake Forest Productions enjoyed a very profitable year in 1979, surpassing several previous records. Having suffered from a lack of funds in the previous year, President J. S. Smith offered several suggestions to improve the financial situation. One recommendation, suggested by President Smith, was to introduce the programs earlier through better publicity. Departments should sell themselves to the public, and it was recommended that freshmen and sophomores be introduced to the programs earlier through better publicity.

Gas tax or deregulation?

A curious myth surrounds automobile manufacturing in the United States. It seems that the single largest manufacturing company in the world is General Motors, followed by Ford and Chrysler. The myth is that these companies are the only ones making cars, and that there is only one car industry in the United States. In fact, there are a number of small car companies, such as Renault, Honda, and Toyota, that are not included in the United States car industry.

McKai fills his own shoes

The Wake Forest indoor track team opened its 1980 season with a new man leading. Frank Johnson is the new distance runner for the Deacons, who are coming off a successful 1979-80 season that saw them finish fifth in the ACC.

Johnson, a senior from Raleigh, was an all-conference selection last year and is expected to be one of the top distance runners in the country this year. He has already set a school record in the mile and is looking to break the ACC record in the 3,000-meter run.

"I'm excited to be here," Johnson said. "I feel like I can bring a lot to the team and help us win some races." Johnson finished fourth in the mile at the ACC championships last year and is hoping to do even better this year.

The Deacons have high hopes for Johnson, who is considered one of the best distance runners in the country. He is looking to use his experience and talent to lead Wake Forest to another successful season.

"Frank is a great addition to our team," said coach John Price. "He has the ability to run with the best in the country and can help us win some important meets this year."
