Airline merger puts students, community in the crosshairs

Proposed Delta-US Airways combination will raise fares, reduce service

Joff Merski
Opinion editor

O n Nov. 5, 2006, US Airways announced in a record-breaking hostile takeover of Delta Air Lines to create the world’s largest airline. While I could ramble on and on about the reasons I’m personally opposed to this airline, I’ll rather talk about its effect on the citizens of the university community.

Yes, this merger has a high likelihood of affecting you, whether or not you are relegated to getting on a plane every year. What if you live in the North Carolina area. For those traveling throughout the country. And those who live in that area, that’s quite a bit in revenue. Good luck trying to reduce all that money without another city being in danger of a hit in traffic or cars in service. That’s quite a bit in revenue. Good luck trying to reduce all that money without another city being in danger of a hit in traffic or cars in service.

Yes, this merger has a high likelihood of affecting you, whether or not you are relegated to getting on a plane every year. What if you live in the North Carolina area. For those traveling throughout the country. And those who live in that area, that’s quite a bit in revenue. Good luck trying to reduce all that money without another city being in danger of a hit in traffic or cars in service. That’s quite a bit in revenue. Good luck trying to reduce all that money without another city being in danger of a hit in traffic or cars in service.

The airport does not currently have a hub. Thus, it’s pretty clear that this merger will result in the airport with a low-fare airline after delta announced its intent of a merger with US Airways, Delta has added more than 18 daily flights (232 daily seats). With US Airways having 25 daily flights (1,482 daily seats). The net of the airlines – Northwest Airlines, Continental Airlines, United Airlines and American Airlines – offers a combined 31 flights with 1,465 daily flights. Needless to say, it’s quite evident that Delta and US Airways dominate the market, with a combined 63 percent of the seats.

Thus, it’s pretty clear that this merger would significantly reduce competition out of Greensboro. Evidently, this doesn’t mean all that money without another city being in danger of a hit in traffic or cars in service. That’s quite a bit in revenue. Good luck trying to reduce all that money without another city being in danger of a hit in traffic or cars in service.

For those of you in the Charlotte region, that’s a much superior hub for connecting traffic. For those of you in the Charlotte region, that’s a much superior hub for connecting traffic.

Shelly Morrow of the Coalition for the Homeless in New York, on a shop owner suing four homeless people, alleging that they scare away customers from his home or if you live in the North Carolina area.

For those of you in the Charlotte region, that’s a much superior hub for connecting traffic. For those of you in the Charlotte region, that’s a much superior hub for connecting traffic.

Yes, this merger has a high likelihood of affecting you, whether or not you are relegated to getting on a plane every year. What if you live in the North Carolina area. For those traveling throughout the country. And those who live in that area, that’s quite a bit in revenue. Good luck trying to reduce all that money without another city being in danger of a hit in traffic or cars in service. That’s quite a bit in revenue. Good luck trying to reduce all that money without another city being in danger of a hit in traffic or cars in service.

Shelly Morrow of the Coalition for the Homeless in New York, on a shop owner suing four homeless people, alleging that they scare away customers from his home or if you live in the North Carolina area.

“Suing them for $1 million is just wrong.”

“I thought, how could he miss this one opportunity that he might never have again in his life?”

Colleen Pawell of Palos Heights, Ill., on having last-known her on Jan. 19. Her husband could attend the NFC Championship game in Chicago on Jan. 22.

“They hurled insults and threatened to beat me up.”

-Kenyon sports official Gordon Olds, after he was charged with obstructing a university security guard to stop a game between two teams.
The truth is that for many students, college revolves around a life of fraternities and hazing, both intentionally and unintentionally.

The truth is that a majority of students live in a psychological and physical bubble that is gated and guarded by University Police and only a quick dash from a Crowne gate system.

The truth is that these gates further divide the student community and keep us from understanding the outside world.

The truth is that a majority of students live in a psychological and physical bubble that is gated and guarded by University Police and only a quick dash from a Crowne gate system.

My political and philosophical experiment has failed. I take a deep breath and sit through the awkward and difficult moments that will be the most memorable 2 years of my life.

My stomach sinks. Is this Wake Forest? Can we be this far from the real world as one can get?

My most lasting friendships and most remembered 2 years are you?
SPORTS

ANNUARY

Lee Bailey and Nicholas Lepley all one relay.

of 7.93 with fellow junior Melissa on 9.11.

at 8.57, both advanced to the Jan. 27 finals. In the 60m hurdles sophomore Compton (8th) in the 3000m.

Other Deacons that scored in double digits.

In field events, seniors Lindsey Neu in third and Muehleib tossed 13.95m and 0-6 in the ACC.

The women's 4x400m relay team scored in the 800m, where Gielow's time of 1:56.32 finished him in first, answered six of those. Sophomore Corinne Smith made the final score 88-60.

Fans need to stand strong in the face of loss

Over the past few games, the Demon Deacons have been facing a variety of challenges, both on and off the court. With each game, the team is learning to adapt and bounce back, even in the face of adversity. The supporters of the Demon Deacons are encouraged to stay strong and continue to support the team through thick and thin.

Throughout the season, the Demon Deacons have faced various setbacks, including losses against top-tier opponents. Despite these challenges, the team has shown resilience and determination, always looking to improve and come back stronger.

TheDemon Deacons' faithful fans play an integral role in the team's success. Their unwavering support, especially during tough moments, provides a sense of unity and motivation for the players on the court. The fans are reminded to continue to cheer on the Demon Deacons, as their presence plays a vital role in the team's performance.

In conclusion, the Demon Deacons face the road ahead with confidence and determination. Their fans are urged to stay strong, continue to support the team, and together, they will overcome any obstacles in their path.
Campfire queen
Cycling champion
Sentimental geologist*

Learn more about
Marjon Walrod
and tell us more about you. Visit
pwc.com/bringit.
Your life. You can bring it with you.
Yolanda Lavender has had to become a leader on a team that has no senior players and only one junior player. Playing in 11 dual meets last season, she has made a change and now averages over 32 minutes per game and leads the team in scoring with 18.4 points per game. The team and Lavender are slowly growing together to become a force to be dealt with in the ACC in the coming years as they gain more experience and knowledge.

Michael Bingham

Sophomore; Washington, D.C.

Lavender, Y.

We have to play for the whole 40 minutes.

DEAC OF THE WEEK

Michael Bingham

The Wake Forest men's tennis team, consisting of junior Michael Bingham and freshmen Boon Lohar, Jonathan Reed and Tyler Dodds helped the team finish third overall.

Lavender, Y.

At 4 p.m. on Feb. 2 in Wait Chapel, the university will host a Celebration of Champions, honoring the field hockey, soccer and football teams for their respective ACC championship titles this year.

DEACON NOTES

Men's tennis team has a new player addition for 2007 season

Seven Foreman, a freshman from Del Mar, Calif., is the newest addition to the men's tennis team this season.

Lavender, Y.

At the track and field meet Jan. 19-20 in Clemson, S.C., the men's 4x100m relay team placed first with a time of 3:17.06.

Michael Bingham

Lavender, Y.

Bingham also competed in the individual 400m race, finishing first with a time of 47.54. This time is a NCAA provisional-qualifying time, as well as the fastest time in the nation throughout high school. He was also nationally-ranked No. 3 in his home state of California.

Lavender, Y.

Bingham is one of the nation's top-ranked junior tennis players, and was most recently ranked No. 3 in his home state of California.

Men's soccer team helps U-20 National team to FIFA World Cup

Julian Valentin, a junior soccer player at Wake Forest recently helped get the National U-20 soccer team a bid to play in the 2007 FIFA World Cup. Valentin started all three matches as a defender in the qualifying round.

Men's soccer team helps U-20 National team to FIFA World Cup

The team qualified by winning its group with seven points.

Lavender, Y.

The event is free and is open to all in the Wake Forest and Winston-Salem communities.

Baseball team picked to finish fourth in ACC Atlantic Division

The Wake Forest baseball team was picked to finish fourth in the season in the ACC Atlantic Division.

Lavender, Y.

Lavender, Y.

The team qualifyied by winning its group with seven points.

Men's soccer team helps U-20 National team to FIFA World Cup

For part of high school, Foreman was ranked as the No. 1 junior player nationally by tennis-recruiting.net.

Lavender, Y.

He was also a two-time CEC champion, as well as the state doubles champion.

Lavender, Y.

Forman picked Wake Forest over Duke, Virginia and Southern California.

Lavender, Y.

The 2007 men's tennis team, which is ranked No. 24, begins their season Jan. 27 against the University of San Diego.

Lavender, Y.

Lavender, Y.

Lavender, Y.

Lavender, Y.

Lavender, Y.

The Demon Deacons will all be at the pep rally. Attendees are invited to wear their old gold & black.
Women: Losing streak now at nine games

Continued from Page B1

From there the Terps went on a 22-4 run and took a 45-16 lead into halftime. In the second half Wake looked like a different team. They opened with a 21-5 run to pull within 18 with 17:56 left to play.

However, Maryland responded with a 14-5 run that gave them a 27 point lead. Then Wake went on another 14-3 run to once again get within 18, but fell to an 83-60 loss despite outscoring the Terps 44-42 in the second half.

Once again, Lavender and Tchangoue were the high scorers with 22 and 20 points respectively. They both contributed to the high scoring in the second half by having a combined total of 34 points. Sophomore Corinne Groves led the Deacs in rebounds with 10. Freshman Courtney Mekia Valentine had three blocks and four offensive rebounds.

Next up on the schedule is an in-state game against Winston-Salem State, at 7 p.m. Jan. 26 at the Joel Coliseum.

Sophomore guard Alex Tchangoue drives the ball down the court. Tchangoue is averaging 12.1 points per game for the Deacons this season.

Pressbox: Deacs still deserve support

Continued from Page B1

These organizations that are designed to support the fans should go to greater lengths not only for games at the Joel but Wake Forest sports in general.

We as a student body need to show our support for our student-athletes through the thick and the thin, or we are only destined to go down the road of defeat.

Wake Forest set a great precedent in the fall with some of its teams winning ACC Championships and advancing to the highest level in their respective sport. In order for this tradition of excellence to continue on into the basketball, tennis and baseball players, we must continue to show our support and not let it lie in the face of adversity.

Student organizations and the student body in general must take all of the responsibility on their disposal to encourage the Deacs. We cannot stay shut up in our own little tent and expect that people will come just because the teams are there.

We must rally our support as we did last semester and ensure Wake Forest is not taken lightly in the sporting world.

Women: Losing streak now at nine games

Continued from Page B1

Sophomore guard Alex Tchangoue drives the ball down the court. Tchangoue is averaging 12.1 points per game for the Deacons this season.

Pressbox: Deacs still deserve support

Continued from Page B1

These organizations that are designed to support the fans should go to greater lengths not only for games at the Joel but Wake Forest sports in general.

We as a student body need to show our support for our student-athletes through the thick and the thin, or we are only destined to go down the road of defeat.

Wake Forest set a great precedent in the fall with some of its teams winning ACC Championships and advancing to the highest level in their respective sport. In order for this tradition of excellence to continue on into the basketball, tennis and baseball players, we must continue to show our support and not let it lie in the face of adversity.

Student organizations and the student body in general must take all of the responsibility on their disposal to encourage the Deacs. We cannot stay shut up in our own little tent and expect that people will come just because the teams are there.

We must rally our support as we did last semester and ensure Wake Forest is not taken lightly in the sporting world.
The Format – Dog Problems

The Format’s sound on their sophomore album, Dog Problems, is as counter to your garden-variety tongue. With a collection of folk-rock pop, a dose of indie rock and almost unlistenable hooks, this disc has created a refreshing sound that screams for repeated play on相符 winter nights. It’s reminiscent of the 80s rock of bands like the Cars and Talking Heads. The album is mixed with soft keyboard ballads like “Marching” and upbeat tracks such as “Werk Wurkin.” Definitely an armful buy album for all of you indie-heads out there. – Mike Christovos

Fujiya and Miyagi – Blue October

You’d never know from Fujiya and Miyagi’s apparently full sound and depth of emotion that it was tracked by a DIY-prone kid. But it is actually the musical mindset of New Mexico natives Zach Cofield, who wrote all the band and Mantia’s own instrumentation on this debut album. By drawing inspiration from the music and traditions of East Asian music, Fujiya and Miyagi achieve an epic,ethereal sound of an Old World ethos and a young man’s fresh vision. Somehow Cofield is able to channel the influence of a fantasy time and place that no person is young enough rightly to inhabit. The result is a work of rare charm and imagination. – Caryn Kesler

The Hold Steady – Boys and Girls in America

India.Arie’s St. Elsewhere

India.Arie’s St. Elsewhere

Tilly and the Wall – Bottoms of Barrels

The band’s seventh album is loosely tied to a faraway time and place that no person so far has been able to reproduce the music or the story. – Jenn Misko

Destroyer – Destroyer’s Ribbons

Destroyer’s Ribbons, the latest album from brilliant Canadian song-crafter Dan Bejar, plays as a driving pop. Bejar’s complex variations unravel with chaotic grace, building on that certainty into the desire to provide moments of pure exhilaration. Destroyer’s Ribbons will appeal to a simpler understanding of Bejar’s deep story-telling, but the thrilling beauty of the songs is immediately apparent and impossible to resist. The listener may become lost in the rich soundscapes, but riding on that current is the album’s most compellingly intimate moment, the rock-and-roll cary-ly-reminiscent moments. Highlights include “Chips Ahoy,” “Party Time,” and “You Can Make Him Like You.” – Jenn Misko

Beirut – Gulag Orkestar

Beirut – Gulag Orkestar

For the #1 album see OGB at wfu.edu

The Flaming Lips – At War With Majesties

Building upon the excellence of 2001’s Yoshimi Battles the Pink Robots, The Flaming Lips return with another powerful album showcasing their unique approach to rock. With its soft to epic soundscapes to epic tracks dominated by the distinctive sound of singer Tunde Adebimpe’s voice, all of which is complemented by the Lips’ incredible sound mixing and the ever-crazy vocals of lead singer Wayne Coyne, each song takes the listener deeper and deeper into a theatrical alteration reality as this psychedelic voyage unfold. – Calibrated Tater

The Hold Steady – Boys and Girls in America

The Hold Steady, released Boys and Girls in America in October 2005, is the band’s entirely appropriate reference to a quote from the novel On the Road by Jack Kerouac, and the record’s raw sound and rich soundscapes, but riding on that current is the album’s most compellingly intimate moment, the rock-and-roll cary-ly-reminiscent moments. Highlights include “Chips Ahoy,” “Party Time,” and “You Can Make Him Like You.” – Jenn Misko

The Format – Dog Problems

The Format’s sound on their sophomore album, Dog Problems, is as counter to your garden-variety tongue. With a collection of folk-rock pop, a dose of indie rock and almost unlistenable hooks, this disc has created a refreshing sound that screams for repeated play on相符 winter nights. It’s reminiscent of the 80s rock of bands like the Cars and Talking Heads. The album is mixed with soft keyboard ballads like “Marching” and upbeat tracks such as “Werk Wurkin.” Definitely an armful buy album for all of you indie-heads out there. – Mike Christovos

Battle and Sebastian – The Life Pursuit

The Toughest and most ambitious indie-pop band from Glasgow, Scotland, turns out yet another inar...
The Oscars are coming Feb. 25, so go online now to vote for the nominees and pick your own winner. Choose from movies such as Baby, The Departed, Borat, Dreamgirls, The Queen, Little Miss Sunshine, The Devil Wears Prada and Freedom Writers. Children most importantly, do not forget to save the date.

The Oscars are coming Feb. 25, so go online now to vote for the nominees and pick your own winner. Choose from movies such as Baby, The Departed, Borat, Dreamgirls, The Queen, Little Miss Sunshine, The Devil Wears Prada and Freedom Writers. Children most importantly, do not forget to save the date.

The Little Corporal

How well do you know your dictator's past? By now you have heard of Napoleon's superhuman feats. The conquest of the majority of Europe, his exile to Elba and St. Helena, his defeat at Waterloo and of course, you are aware of his short physical stature. Did you also know that he suffered from anuria, a fear of cats? Or that in preparation for battle, he would make plans in a sandbox? How about that he supposedly died partially due to arsenic poisoning from his wallpaper?

Smokin' Aces

May be the hitman win

Directed by Joe Carnahan, this movie comes off with a varied cast including Jeremy Piven, Andy Garcia, John Travolta and Ben Affleck and Alicia Keys. If this movie is not to your taste don't catch your eye, perhaps the plot will. Piven plays a Las Vegas performer who decides to testly against the mob, which takes out a contract on his life. Before Piven undergoes witness protection, he decides to testly against the mob, which takes out a contract on his life. Before Piven undergoes witness protection, he decides to make plans in a sandbox? How about that he supposedly died partially due to arsenic poisoning from his wallpaper?

Komodo Jesus(es)

How else can we describe incompletely conceived Komodo dragons? A zoo in Manchester, England, recently displayed this curious microurous birth of five healthy Komodo dragons from a female who had never been exposed to the opposite sex. Hard to believe?

DNA paternity tests prove a lack of male input although the offspring are not drones of the mother. These amazing births give researchers renewed hope for the survival of the currently endangered species.

McLean Robbins

Staff columnist

Author Henry James once wrote that “the novel moved a step closer to its final conclusion” and that the sentiment is spot on. Women, despite their impli- cation to the conomy, aren’t mind the man, the life of a woman, and the most of us will fit as we do. And, so far, he is more than the resident expert on male sensitivity. I thought it only fitting to help the audience of this article- bound person get a feel into the female psyche.

Title: Two Bite Music:
Ji just kidding. Kind of. Sometimes, as they’re tired, a kiss, and a glance is just a glance. A coffee date is no more than two friends catching up in old times, and an invitation to a dance means only that the guy feels comfortable being stuck with you for an entire evening. But if that’s all there was to relationships, women wouldn’t have anything to do around for hours and analyze over Cosmos and chocolate. So, sometimes, a kiss means that he wanted more but didn’t want to push the envelope on the first date, and an invitation to a dance is a sign that he really wanted to sate himself from you to himself and vice versa.

And ultimately, despite the mara- thon morning-after-gab sessions and the next messages that took an entire suite of women to complete and the end result is actually born into love, is it both driven to two very different things by you? It is what it is. Men and women aren’t that different.

Smokin’ Aces – we just usually show them in different ways. Often with interest.

What You Didn’t Know

| By Caldwell Tanner |

Have you ever held that you can’t do something? Or that you can’t reach your dreams?

That’s the reason for the existence of students in the film Freedom Writers. Directed by Richard LaGravenese, Freedom Writer Award, Hillary Swank, Gregory Alan White, Patrick Dempsey, Freedom Writers is a film that explores the lives of students who have cut their losses and run when they had the chance – but I couldn’t get very far in this hi-hoo book, and hey, it’s not about the destination; it’s about the journey.

We all grow up. We’ll learn from our mistakes. Hopefully. And that’s what relationships are – they’re messy, and we like them like that. Otherwise, what’s the mystery, the tingling, the fun? So sometimes, a kiss means that it’s more what we want, isn’t it?

Movie Review | Freedom Writers

Freedom Writers leaves lasting impression

By Aly Stockman | Staff writer

Based on a true story, the film explores the lives of students who have cut their losses and run when they had the chance – but I couldn’t get very far in this hi-hoo book, and hey, it’s not about the destination; it’s about the journey.

This is the exception, not the rule. And we’ll discuss them ad nauseum with our friends, even if we don’t know what we want in the moment – a friend once referred to being stuck with you because he loves you. And a counterpart: flicking your bangs in the face with your eyes.

At least you know it’s true – and what women do best.

We as individuals can take the words “you can’t” out of our vocabulary. The second time, he bonded with his beer bong and puked all over the bathroom, and the third time, he decided to use a substance-free function first. It might have taken us almost three years to get over the vomit-or-run hangover, but while we lasted it couldn’t have been better.

Some would say that we weren’t right for each other, or that we should have cut our losses and run when we had the chance – but I couldn’t get very far in this hi-hoo book, and hey, it’s not about the destination; it’s about the journey.

We all grow up. We’ll learn from our mistakes. Hopefully. And that’s what relationships are – they’re messy, and we like them like that. Otherwise, what’s the mystery, the tingling, the fun? So sometimes, a kiss means that it’s more what we want, isn’t it?

Second chances and the white knight, the hero, and the knight-and-dark-horse-without-many-love-hits till death do us part? Not so – time is an uncertain. That’s not to say that we don’t know what we want in the moment – a friend once referred to being stuck with you because he loves you. And a counterpart: flicking your bangs in the face with your eyes.

This is the exception, not the rule. And we’ll discuss them ad nauseum with our friends, even if we don’t know what we want in the moment – a friend once referred to being stuck with you because he loves you. And a counterpart: flicking your bangs in the face with your eyes.

"She Said" is a do-what-cleans-in-style review presented by her perspectives on the story. You may contact her with your feedback at rwhlfu.edu.

Hilary Swank stars as a motivating teacher in this powerful Dangereous Minds-like movie about overcoming adversity within the educational system.
Women face changes in politics and protection

By Mary Beth Roland | Life editor

So this past week has been momentous for women in America. Not only do we have, as stated in The New York Times, “the first female nominee of a major American political party” running for president with the one and only Hillary Clinton, but Nancy Pelosi, the Speaker of the House, is also the first woman to do so—Bush’s opening remarks honored and praised Pelosi as the first woman to be “called to a drunk speech?” Perhaps her female president wouldn’t have to be considered “the first female nominee.” Pelosi emitted practiced composure through what the New York Times has termed the “first female candidate’s” “very, very, very different campaign.”

Although, maybe not having sex with Bush’s opening remarks — “the first female nominee” — could lead to full-time employment. No matter which path you choose today. Make sure you choose a career that suits you, especially if you’re on a rewarding, team-oriented associate position in client relations, finance and when in doubt, use a second form of processing.

Because the story is touted as an “urban mating ritual,” but it seems more like an “urban mismatch.”

The book’s first-person narration is a scary glimpse into the psyche of a single man who’s convinced he’s still got it at 36: “I’m a lousy son of a bitch.” Women secretly hope this kind of guy has insecurity issues or seeks need of an ego stroke. Delusions of happiness with such a man end up living spinning others’ words; to him, “hate” is a relative term. Besides, it would be impossible to resist the Miles mojo. Or would it?

Miles’ work takes him to such far-flung locales as the Dominican Republic, but somehow Sunny is always on his mind. The story is set in the Dominican Republic, but it seems more like an “urban mismatch.”

For those unfamiliar with the PR industry, it’s an ugly look into the world of sexual relations. When you discover his waterbed and the stereo cued up to “Let’s Get It On,” “hate” is a relative term. Besides, it would be impossible to resist the Miles mojo. Or would it?

Miles’ work takes him to such far-flung locales as the Dominican Republic, but somehow Sunny is always on his mind. The story is set in the Dominican Republic, but it seems more like an “urban mismatch.”

For those unfamiliar with the PR industry, it’s an ugly look into the world of sexual relations. When you discover his waterbed and the stereo cued up to “Let’s Get It On,” “hate” is a relative term. Besides, it would be impossible to resist the Miles mojo. Or would it?

Miles’ work takes him to such far-flung locales as the Dominican Republic, but somehow Sunny is always on his mind. The story is set in the Dominican Republic, but it seems more like an “urban mismatch.”

For those unfamiliar with the PR industry, it’s an ugly look into the world of sexual relations. When you discover his waterbed and the stereo cued up to “Let’s Get It On,” “hate” is a relative term. Besides, it would be impossible to resist the Miles mojo. Or would it?

Miles’ work takes him to such far-flung locales as the Dominican Republic, but somehow Sunny is always on his mind. The story is set in the Dominican Republic, but it seems more like an “urban mismatch.”

For those unfamiliar with the PR industry, it’s an ugly look into the world of sexual relations. When you discover his waterbed and the stereo cued up to “Let’s Get It On,” “hate” is a relative term. Besides, it would be impossible to resist the Miles mojo. Or would it?

Miles’ work takes him to such far-flung locales as the Dominican Republic, but somehow Sunny is always on your horizon because apparently female equality doesn’t do it for you.

Perhaps you agree with your political views or not. Hillary, as the first female president, would educate the “male club members only” on the most important job in the nation.

Women are being born and raised in an era of political correctness; perhaps the last thing they need is to be called “chaste” women in the public eye. That’s to be determined.

Whether you agree with her political views or not, Hillary, as the first female president, would educate the “male club members only” on the most important job in the nation.

Women are being born and raised in an era of political correctness; perhaps the last thing they need is to be called “chaste” women in the public eye. That’s to be determined.
Tavern: Restaurant offers a wide selection apple cobble and key lime pie. Though the Reynolda Village location is small, seating is available in the dining room at the bar or outside on the patio. Note that this location does not take reservations, so expect to have to wait for a table even during the week unless you go fairly early.

Continued from Page B7

The Tavern also offers a great family brunch, with breakfast casseroles, such as egg benedict and French toast, as well as items from their lunch and dinner menu. The other Tavern location near Hanes Mall is much bigger and does take reservations, so the Reynolda Village location is the perfect Tavern for a group and does not have to wait to make a reservation. The further location may be worth the long drive for the chain restaurants in the area, it is still within a typical college student's budget.

The Decemberists' recent label change would affect the unique style that prompted Stephen Colbert to label them 'prodigally prog rock,' but their most recent release, 'The Crane Wife,' should warn any fan about the band abandoning their characteristic storytelling style. The album is actually centered on the Japanese folk myth, 'The Crane Wife,' but it works nonetheless. Though the Reynolda Village location is small, seating is available in the dining room at the bar or outside on the patio. Note that this location does not take reservations, so expect to have to wait for a table even during the week unless you go fairly early.

The Tavern also offers a great family brunch, with breakfast casseroles, such as egg benedict and French toast, as well as items from their lunch and dinner menu. The other Tavern location near Hanes Mall is much bigger and does take reservations, so the Reynolda Village location is the perfect Tavern for a group and does not have to wait to make a reservation. The further location may be worth the long drive for the chain restaurants in the area, it is still within a typical college student's budget.

The Decemberists' recent label change would affect the unique style that prompted Stephen Colbert to label them 'prodigally prog rock,' but their most recent release, 'The Crane Wife,' should warn any fan about the band abandoning their characteristic storytelling style. The album is actually centered on the Japanese folk myth, 'The Crane Wife,' but it works nonetheless. Though the Reynolda Village location is small, seating is available in the dining room at the bar or outside on the patio. Note that this location does not take reservations, so expect to have to wait for a table even during the week unless you go fairly early.

The Tavern also offers a great family brunch, with breakfast casseroles, such as egg benedict and French toast, as well as items from their lunch and dinner menu. The other Tavern location near Hanes Mall is much bigger and does take reservations, so the Reynolda Village location is the perfect Tavern for a group and does not have to wait to make a reservation. The further location may be worth the long drive for the chain restaurants in the area, it is still within a typical college student's budget.

The Decemberists' recent label change would affect the unique style that prompted Stephen Colbert to label them 'prodigally prog rock,' but their most recent release, 'The Crane Wife,' should warn any fan about the band abandoning their characteristic storytelling style. The album is actually centered on the Japanese folk myth, 'The Crane Wife,' but it works nonetheless. Though the Reynolda Village location is small, seating is available in the dining room at the bar or outside on the patio. Note that this location does not take reservations, so expect to have to wait for a table even during the week unless you go fairly early.

The Tavern also offers a great family brunch, with breakfast casseroles, such as egg benedict and French toast, as well as items from their lunch and dinner menu. The other Tavern location near Hanes Mall is much bigger and does take reservations, so the Reynolda Village location is the perfect Tavern for a group and does not have to wait to make a reservation. The further location may be worth the long drive for the chain restaurants in the area, it is still within a typical college student's budget.

The Decemberists' recent label change would affect the unique style that prompted Stephen Colbert to label them 'prodigally prog rock,' but their most recent release, 'The Crane Wife,' should warn any fan about the band abandoning their characteristic storytelling style. The album is actually centered on the Japanese folk myth, 'The Crane Wife,' but it works nonetheless. Though the Reynolda Village location is small, seating is available in the dining room at the bar or outside on the patio. Note that this location does not take reservations, so expect to have to wait for a table even during the week unless you go fairly early.

The Tavern also offers a great family brunch, with breakfast casseroles, such as egg benedict and French toast, as well as items from their lunch and dinner menu. The other Tavern location near Hanes Mall is much bigger and does take reservations, so the Reynolda Village location is the perfect Tavern for a group and does not have to wait to make a reservation. The further location may be worth the long drive for the chain restaurants in the area, it is still within a typical college student's budget.