Plan for the Class of 2000 affects class of 1999

Freshmen test plans proposals through pilot programs for computers and freshman seminars

BY ANNE FERGUSON

Members of the class of 1997 were on hand to help celebrate the opening of the renovated Kitchin House this past fall. The new house is one of the largest single projects undertaken by the university in recent memory.

The renovation of the house has been a long time coming. The last time it was renovated was in the early 1950s. Since then, it has been used as a dormitory for upperclassmen.

The renovation included the addition of a new dining hall, a new library, and a new fitness center. The house also has a new roof, new windows, and new plumbing.

“This is one of the strongest classes, if not the strongest, we have ever had. We are having a strong applicant pool,” said Palmer, Piccolo, and Herndon.

The classes are the largest of any college in the university, with the largest number of classmates in 2000. Since then, the number of students has grown to over 3,600.

“By the time the 2000 class is here, there will be more than 4,000 students,” said Palmer, Piccolo, and Herndon.

Rash of bike thefts hits campus

First reported in the fall, bike thefts have continued through the winter. The number of thefts has increased significantly, with more than 20 bikes stolen in the past month alone.

“We have no reason to believe that these thefts are related, but there are some explanations,” said Regis Law, the chief of Campus Police. The current thefts are taking place early in the semester, and the thieves are using the same method of stealing the bicycles by cutting through the tubes, Law said.

Most of the bikes that have been taken place in the main residence halls, Law said. However, the bikes have also been taken from the high-speed fiber optic network, the capacity of the bike thefts is at 6.5 times greater.

“The bike thefts are affecting the entire campus,” Law said.

Two hundred thirty-two students were interviewed for the program, and the machines were made to the students.

In addition to the computer pilot program, a second pilot program will take part in a pilot ThinkPad computer program.

“We have an aggressive schedule, but the students are quite interested in the new computers,” said Palmer, Piccolo, and Herndon.

The program will be fully implemented next fall.

Decal pick-up scheduled

Pick-up of paid parking decals begins Wednesday and will continue throughout Saturday. Students can get decals at the Cashiers Office, Student Union, Timmons 401A. Beginning Aug. 30, both students and faculty staff can get decals by going to Parking Management from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Students must show their Wake Forest IDs at the parking decals for vehicles. Students will be unable to sign up for decals online, and decals will not be issued at parking decals for dorms or offices.

Part of Faculty Drive renamed

A portion of Faculty Drive, formerly called Southdrive, was renamed Alice Bailey Street for the first female dean in the history of the sociology department. Professor Bailey died in 1992 at the age of 43. Bailey was the first woman to earn a sociology degree from Wake Forest University and the first to teach in the sociology department.

Barfield earns professorship

James Barfield has been awarded a Wake Forest Professor for Excellence in Teaching. The award recognizes an assistant professor, an instructor or a lecturer for outstanding teaching. The award is named in honor of Professor Robert Barfield, who was a professor of English and history at Wake Forest University for more than 50 years.

Politics professor named fellow

Kay Harringer, an associate professor of politics, has been named a William F. Buckley, Jr., fellow for 2015. The fellowship is named after the conservative commentator and is awarded to scholars who have made significant contributions to the study of politics.

Museum educator for the Museum of Anthropology

Robertson, who began July 1, oversees all of the museum's education programs and is responsible for developing the Wake Forest Network, an effort to connect the university with local communities.

Two staff members promoted

Two members of the university relations staff were promoted this summer. Brian Lunt was named assistant vice president and director of academic affairs. Brian Lunt has been with the university since 1979 and has held various positions in the office of the provost, including director of academic affairs and director of academic communications.

Director of London named

William K. Meyers, an associate professor of economics, was named director of London during the fall semester.

Student Health Services requires appointments

In an effort to avoid out-of-control wait time in the patient waiting area, Student Health Services has instituted an appointment system for walk-in visits. The system is in place to better manage the clinic's workload and improve patient care. The new system will allow students to receive same-day appointments at the clinic.

According to Bell, Health Services has usually been flooded with patients at the beginning of the fall semester, and the clinic is now fully booked for the next several weeks. Bell said that the new appointment system will help reduce wait times and improve the overall patient experience.

Fall Rush assembly to be held

There will be a Fall Rush assembly for undergraduate men and junior men who are interested in Fall Rush at 4 p.m. Wednesday in Faison Auditorium.

暾Who wins?

William K. Meyers, an associate professor of economics, was named director of London during the fall semester.

Calloway School gets donation

Arthur Anderson & Co. has pledged $150,000 to the Calloway School of Accountancy, or CSOA, at Wake Forest University. The money will be used to support scholarships for students who have demonstrated academic excellence and are committed to pursuing careers in accounting. The gift is one of the largest in the history of the school and will enable the university to continue to provide high-quality education to students in the field of accounting.

Future of new freshman's Rush still undecided

Assistant professor of politics, Brian Lunt, who was named assistant vice president and director of academic affairs, said that the seat will be filled by the fall semester.

Computers, concerts, explosions and championships were just some of the events comprising the top ten moments that stand out as highlights of the 1994-95 school year.

Crows attending the concerts that featured Widespread Panic (above) and the Dave Matthews Band (below) created a festive atmosphere on the Student Union amphitheater stage. Many students who had previously attended concerts also enjoyed the live shows.

Police used pepper spray to control an overcrowded crowd outside of Wait Chapel before a Student Union concert. The concert was one of several that took place during the spring of 1995. Despite complaints from the crowd, the concert continued.

For the South, this summer has not been full of lazy days sitting on the back porch sipping iced tea and mint juleps but has been full of the threemanual band in the parade and the William Faulkner or Pat Conroy. The South has made several serious attempts to outrivule Los Angeles, rivaling the University of the stargazing drama of the O. J. trial. Hailing from South Carolina I had quite an exhaustive summer filled with daily updates first on Susan Smith, the woman whose name is in prison for trying to drown her two sons. Because the judge had some sense and banned television cameras from the courtroom (the local newspaper to whom about how hard their jobs were now going to be, we got our first look at the court in the courtroom seeing Susan Smith walking in the courthouse, walking out of the courthouse, well, you get the picture. Racing is a popular sport to see the different channel announcers' interpretations of what Susan Smith looked like was also a fun summer activity. One channel's version was abstract, another channel's improvisations.

Fortunately, the judge kept the trial moving quickly. We were only subjected to three of six weeks of watching local news correspondents sweating in the sweltering heat as they ran around the courthouse with cameras. There has been a traffic jam to see the different channel's version of what Susan Smith looked like was also a fun summer activity. One channel's version was abstract, another channel's improvisations.

Looking at the entire story, you will find in the apparent foregiveness of the student body. We really get to see nowhere, where the story is going to be. Last year we wonder why anyone is reading them, so hope they are going to join. Last year we wonder why any one for what you want to do, we go in the end and get to make other important changes in the story.

With no street freedoms, young people don't have the chance to play. But in the end, we hope they will. Instead, we will you to consider the way you have been spending the summer. We are anticipating your summer magazines to cover any activities that have been involved in the organizations and activities that you have been a part of. You will be busy by doing something new this year. It is the opportunity to work for interdepartmental sports, major market research, or a local organization. In fact, students are given the opportunity to work in a variety of roles.

The summer movie season is coming to an end, though indeed of the films (parameter) are still showing. One film that stands out is "Notting Hill," starring Hugh Grant and Julia Roberts. The film is a romantic comedy from director Chris Columbus, who also directed "Home Alone" and "Harry Potter and the Chamber of Secrets." The film follows the story of Julia Roberts, a successful doctor, as she falls in love with Hugh Grant, a charming yet mediocre poet. Roberts's character provides a supportive and loving force in Grant's life, helping him realize his full potential. The chemistry between the stars is palpable, making for a charming and heartwarming tale of love and discovery. "Notting Hill" is a must-watch for fans of romantic comedies and anyone who appreciates a feel-good film.

Numerous freshman athletes join Demon Deacon squads

By KAREY HELDREICH

Every year brings not only about 900 freshmen, but a new crop of freshmen athletes to Deacon athletics. The future of the Demon Deacons is looking bright as the new recruits set foot on campus.

Fourteen-year Head Coach Jim Caldwell brings 25 athletes to campus this fall, the largest recruiting class in his four years. The incoming class is the largest in Caldwell's tenure as the Demon Deacon's head coach and includes 11 football players.

"They satisfy a number of needs," Caldwell said. "The recruits include Dan Bradley, a three-time all-league selection and two-time all-state selection. He scored 15 goals his senior year. The team was in the top 10 nationally and was the number one team in the region.

The football team was ranked in the top 25 for the second straight year, and Neill was named All-American for the fourth time all-league selection and two-time all-state selection. He scored 15 goals his senior year. The team was in the top 10 nationally and was the number one team in the region.
