Whither Reagan?

It was the best of times; it was the worst of times. It was a time of mass publications, but also of despair. It was a time of soaring federal deficits, but also a time of soaring national pride.

Jim Brady was a time for writers like James and Walter, a time for readers like Maria, a time for editors like Victor, and a time for students like Deborah.

The悲哀 of the American welfare state may be greatly exaggerated, the optimists argue. But there's no denying Reagan's reduction of social programs and increase in defense spending in recent years. What's more, the change in political philosophy is one of the most arduous tasks that our federal government has ever faced.

Voters are clearly voting with their wallets, Social Security and other federal programs are at risk. The date of the 1992 election has become an important issue in this campaign. The results of the election will determine what happens in the next four years.

But Reagan has contributed to his own electoral losses. The tax code is already overloaded with deductions, the air traffic controllers' strike is costing the country millions of dollars, and the United States is in a serious recession.

In politics, it's often a failure to win an election that is the proverbial mistake that leads to victory in the next one. But in this case, Reagan's political losses may have been too much to overcome.

Thank you, Gene.

Thanks, Gene

For most students, preparing to attend a Wake Forest football game last week was a mixed, fairly unfulfilled experience. They sat along the sidelines, and, as President burgers also praised the band's five-year history at Wake Forest, he said, "Percentagewise we may have the largest band in the country." He received his M.A. in Music Education from Auburn. They traveled on one overnight trip for the band festival. Thus, band members actually had only two weekends free during football season. But Burgess said, "We're glad there was no more room at Camp Hanes."

For all of us the work and effort that I put into band, I still wouldn't trade any of it," Burgess said.

Deacs bow to Virginia, 69-66

Kevin Ryan

The Wake Forest basketball team suffered a stunning 69-66 defeat at the hands of theVirginia Cavaliers Wednesday night in a critical mid-season ACC matchup. The victory was Virginia’s first ACC victory and eliminated the Demon Deacons from any real shot at an ACC championship.

Last week the Demon Deacons were ranked sixth in the ACC, but following the loss to the Cavaliers they are now at the bottom of the ACC standings. The 69-66 loss to Virginia was the Demon Deacons’ third defeat in a row.

In the game the Demon Deacons used a vaunted 23-2 fast break and were able to get 10 points from the free throw line. The Demon Deacons were able to get 10 points from the free throw line.

Tacy skeptical about Rogers’ return

Jeff Dunham

Alfie Rogers, who sustained his right knee injury during the Deacons’ Dec. 23 basketball game and had arthroscopic surgery on Jan. 8, hopes to be well enough to play in the University of North Carolina this season. Rogers can play in one more game this season but will not play any more this season, he said.

Rogers’ surgery was performed on Jan. 8, and he did not play again until Feb. 12. During the Deacons’ first game against Wake Forest was the only player to make the roster.

During the Deacons’ second game against Duke, Rogers was cleared to play the starting five.

Deacon women show improvement

Karen Arnesen

Maureen, the women’s basketball team has made great strides to date.

The Deacons have a record of 4-2, after two wins.

On Dec. 15, the team traveled to New York to participate in the Bellie’s Invitational. Wake Forest won the tournament, but the Deacons’ performance was impressive.
