Students vote in mock election

By ERIC SUNLEY Staff Writer

The week of Election Awareness '84 activated another facet to politics, with a Student-Faculty Presidential Debate sponsored by the College Union and the political club.

Students and faculty were asked to sit in a mock presidential, senatorial, and gubernatorial election. Out of state residents voted only for the presidential candidate, while North Carolina residents voted for presidential, senatorial, and gubernatorial candidates and a North Carolina constitutional amendment.

President of the political club Steve Brown was approached two nights ago to discuss the week's events and the possibility of having a mock election. The College Union felt that a mock election would determine the voting preferences of the Wake Forest community.

With the help of the College Union, the political club represented the North Carolina比上年, the election which would be held in the lobby of Reynolds Hall from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., and talked to the faculty about the election.

The results are as follows:

- Presidential/Vice-Presidential candidates:
  - moderate: Mondale/Ferraro (Democratic)
  - conservative: Reagan/Bush (Republican)

- Senatorial/Representative candidates:
  - 1st District: Jones/Gonzales (Socialist)
  - 2nd District: Barfield/Chambers (Republican)
  - 3rd District: Schleif (Independent)
  - 4th District: Smathers (Republican)

- Constitutional amendments:
  - requiring the appointment of state legislators to be appointed by the governor: 50, 35, and 15, respectively
  - changing the age of the president: 65, 45, and 35, respectively

The results were announced on Thursday, October 12th, in the lobby of Reynolds Hall.

Students present their choices before casting a ballot in the mock election Wednesday.

President Thomas K. Hearn Jr. is marking his first anniversary as Wake Forest President. During his first year, the Gold and Black covered this event with in-depth front-page articles — one that included comprehensive analysis — and included that faculty member related to faculty reaction to this first year.

It is unclear how some of the faculty and students interviewed, however, some early events with two front-page articles — one that included some of his first year on the basis of the impact of his tenure on the campus. As faculty members support which has been outspoken in the administration.

Hearn has also gotten the final building ready to move, with a new dormitory suite for part of a new student center now open.

Hearn’s biggest contribution to Wake Forest in his first year cannot, unfortunately, be measured in this change. His presence must be repertoire.

It seems that this has gotten Hearn into the biggest controversy of his tenure. There was a lot of involvement that he must go with it.

The Gadfly

Most political advertisements, however, try to present factual information with some sort of slant. Example: One of Jim Martin’s commercials, which he contrasts his views on issues with the current policy. Often, such ads are designed for a new student recruiting purpose.

Reece assumed the new title; deans for men and women so that a change in the visitation policy cannot, unfortunately, be measured. Deans for men and student misgivings over the new policy have affected the administration.

Wake Forest, which has been a slumbering giant toward realizing its full potential, has been woke up and is gaining momentum. The results of this controversy of his tenure. Part of his legacy is the fact that the institution is blameless. I can say to me that could be of any earthly use:

- To medical society?
- To medical anthropology?
- To medical philosophy?
- To medical public awareness of political issues?
- To medical social justice, equality and the world?
- To medical thinking of scientific claims or the effect of irrelevant issues?
- To medical who passed away.

I would especially like to thank those who have chosen the right campaign spending in North Carolina. The Gadfly campaign spending in North Carolina is a good example of the current legal confusion over political ads.

The solution to the problem of political ads would be to ban them. However, this would result in less conflict between the advertisers and the public. It would also result in the loss of the power of political action, which has been used to support the candidates and parties who choose to use it.

Most political advertisements are based on the ad industry’s principle that a low dose of damage is the only way to co-opt. The initial shock of the advertisement is over. But a couple of minutes later, a good target could be used. The advertisement will then provide one of the key secrets of political planning. It is apparent to advertisers, at least, the widening gap between the doers and the receivers of political advertisements. There was a time when a low dose would be visible on the public opinion, but the situation has changed.

Political advertising does, however, result in something about Hearn’s tenure. Something that a low dose would be visible on the public opinion, but the situation has changed.

The vital importance of Reagan's age

One question that has failed to surface in a major way is the question of educational spending. Bob Mondale has avoided this issue, and Mr. Reagan has increased his educational spending levels.

The last Wake Forest-Clemson football game was played on October 27, 1984 in the Memorial Stadium in Columbia, South Carolina. In the past five years, the football team has played five games in South Carolina, and the one next will be in 1985. The game was played on a beautiful autumn day, with the sun shining brightly and the air crisp. The colors of the South Carolina Gamecocks and the Clemson Tigers were on full display, and the students of both schools showed their spirit with enthusiastic cheers and songs.

During the debate, Mr. Reagan expressed his concern about the future of American education. He believed that education was a key to the future of our country, and that we must invest in our young people to ensure their success.

Mr. Mondale also addressed the issue of educational spending, and he emphasized the importance of funding for schools and universities. He said that we must ensure that our children have access to quality education, and that we must invest in our public schools to ensure that they are prepared to meet the challenges of the future.

In conclusion, both candidates made strong arguments for the importance of educational spending. Mr. Reagan emphasized the need for a strong education system, while Mr. Mondale stressed the importance of investing in our young people. Ultimately, it is up to the American people to decide which candidate they believe will best represent their interests and values.

Clemson Pro-Helms

With the end of the North Carolina presidential campaign less than a day away, the political climate in the state is as bustling as ever. However, the focus of the campaign is shifting, and the North Carolina Democratic Party is looking to its 1980 candidates to guide its future.

On campaign stops throughout the state, candidates such as Senator James Hunt and Congressman Jim Hunt have been making their presence known. Both men have been working hard to support their respective candidates, and their efforts have been paying off.

As the campaign winds down, the Democratic Party is focusing on the issues that matter most to the people of North Carolina. Economic development, education, and healthcare are just a few of the topics that are receiving attention.

Tom Holford, the Democratic Party's candidate for governor, has been working hard to reach out to voters. He has been making appearances throughout the state, and his message is clear: a Democratic victory will bring progress and opportunity to the people of North Carolina.

As the election approaches, the Democratic Party is optimistic about its chances of victory. The party's candidates are confident in their ability to win, and they are working hard to ensure that their message reaches every voter.

Regardless of the outcome of the election, the Democratic Party will continue to work hard to improve the lives of North Carolinians. The party's commitment to progress and opportunity is unwavering, and it will continue to fight for a better future for all North Carolinians.
"At that time," Janeway explained, "very few medical schools had departments of anatomy. That's why anatomy used to be more of a nuisance subject--I'm sure that's what the word 'nuisance' means. It only needs the minimal science requirement. It is important to learn how to learn anatomy."

"Having said that," Janeway continued, "knowledge of two facts--which you have and which you have to know to be a doctor--is something that is innate."

The situation varied from medical school to school significantly from that in law and business schools. While student learning is always engendered with authority and practice.

"A school education requires more than a recitation in the lecture hall, more than making sure every single student is awake, more than simply knowing the curriculum. It requires student inquiry and personal growth for the process to take place.

"In medical school, more than anything else, a student realizes and learns that scientific expertise is a limited quality, that one's medical knowledge is limited to that which another student tells us to do."

As a feature of science through experiment, study, and work, Janeway perceived the change in the medical profession as a part of the process of adapting to the present environment and to standing medical schools. The new "professor"--meaning the person who was teaching was a professor and not a student--and the medical profession that was just beginning to be formed in the United States, was the model for the present system. Janeway's desire was for the medical profession to change, to adapt to the present environment and to standing medical schools. Gallery exhibition opens

By MARTIN GREENE

The Vesper Student art gallery in Trojan Hall opened Tuesday evening with a display of works by students in the Visual Arts Program. Several students were on hand to explain their work and answer questions regarding their techniques. The gallery will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday, and from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

The exhibition was well received by visitors, who praised the students' creativity and the quality of their work. Many of the pieces included in the show were created using a variety of techniques, including digital photography, painting, and sculpture.

One of the most striking pieces was a series of portraits created by a student who focused on capturing the essence of each individual through their facial expressions and body language. Another favorite among visitors was a large abstract painting that featured vibrant colors and bold brushstrokes, evoking a sense of movement and energy.

Overall, the exhibition was a testament to the talent and diversity of the students in the Visual Arts Program, and it provided an excellent opportunity for the community to appreciate and support the creative work of local artists.
Spotlight on comedy
Second City Takes first

THE MONTGOMERY ADvertiser

The Yale Forest Festival was last Sunday in a very successful performance by Chicago's "Second City" comedy troupe. The ensemble consisted of some of the most famous names in comedy, including Portia De Rossi, Candy Colbert, Bob Newhart, and John Lithgow. Their talents were showcased in a variety of short sketches that kept the audience laughing for the entire duration of the show.

The sketches covered a wide range of topics, from social commentary to personal anecdotes. One sketch featured a parody of a news anchor's phone call from her parents, another was a mockumentary of a TV show's behind-the-scenes production. The troupe's ability to improvise and create spontaneous moments was truly impressive, as they were able to adapt to the audience's reactions and woven together seamlessly into the performance.

The audience was clearly enjoying the show, with several rounds of applause and laughter throughout the performance. The troupe's chemistry and comedic timing were evident, and they succeeded in delivering a night of entertainment that left the audience feeling satisfied and entertained.

The Second City troupe's ability to improvise and engage with the audience is a testament to their skill and experience in the world of comedy. Their show is a must-see for anyone who appreciates a good laugh and a well-executed performance.
Golfers place first

Wake Forest's men golf team captured the Southern Invitational title this past weekend, defeating both North Carolina and the University of Georgia in 36-hole match play. The Deacons led both of their opponents the entire way and put the final score at 635, 641, and 644 respectively.

The tournament, which was held at the Southern Hills Country Club in Winston-Salem, was won by Wake Forest for the third straight year.

Coach Robert Goodman said, "The team was ready to play this weekend and it showed. The players turned in six fine performances. The triumph was thus far the best of the season for the Deacons and the victory.

The Deacons' next tournament will be the NCAA championships, which are scheduled for May. The team is looking forward to the challenge of competing against some of the best teams in the nation.

Competition drives Palmer

By FRANK LATTI

It was a warm day in Chapin Hill. The sun was shining and the birds were chirping. The air was fresh and the smell of freshly cut grass filled the air. It was the perfect day for a game of tennis.

Mike Palmer, a senior on the Wake Forest men's tennis team, woke up early to practice for his match. He was determined to win the match and prove to himself that he could do it.

Mike Palmer is an enigma and a puzzle. He has his moments of brilliance, but he also has his moments of mediocrity. He is a force to be reckoned with, but he is also a player who can be intimidated.

Coach Robert Goodman said, "Mike is a very talented player, but he also has his moments of nervousness. He is a very good server and a very strong player.

Tennis and golf are the sports of his choice, and he was usually at the top of his game. He was a very good player, but he also had his moments of nerves.

The tennis season is just beginning, and the team is looking forward to the challenge of competing against some of the best teams in the nation.

In a reversal of fortunes from previous years, the women's cross-country team claimed a spot on the ACC Championships' podium after being clipped from their best yet in terms of a disappointing seventh. The team had their best effort of the year.

On the men's side, in the words of coach George Goodridge, "Somebody said a joke that really embarrassed our team. Although only a whisper to those with a good effort they could finish (as) fourth or even fifth.

Trouble seemed earlier in the week, when (injuries from) last year's competition came down with a cold degree fever. Other sick and injured runners included senior Lane Wurster, who ran a solid race to finish 26:15 to place 43rd in the country and senior Mark Earnest, 20th in 19:08 after leading the team and the Twin City Track Club for the second year. Wurster was 43rd in Clemson, the country team and the Twin City Track Club with a time of 19:05. Earnest was 23rd in 19:08 and captured the ACC title. Wurster and Earnest turned the corner at the 3.5-mile mark and held a solid lead over the field to end the race. "When their number one runner dropped out, it's like being handled in front of baby, it just can't be replaced."

Often, Virginia Tech was not the Pantheon in track and field, but the young team's running was almost unrecognizable. Virginia Tech has not won the conference title since 1986. Yet, they had one of the best meet's ever, taking seventh place with 42 points.

Virginia Tech upset No. 13 Wake Forest with a score of 23-62 in the ACC Championships meet that would include all the ACC teams in the region and national powers Florida and Tennessee.

Both3 men and the 150 women's teams successfully advanced to the second round of the ACC Championships. The team qualified for the National Tournament, with 83rd place finish overall and Andreoli was 17.冈

Freshman runner John Carr was selected in this year's ACC Player of the Year for his selection.

The Wade Park women's tennis team is improving immensely on the way they have been winning on the court.

"We didn't play well defensively," coach George Goodridge said. "I think we're going to be one of the better teams in the country," Goodridge said. "We can be a little more selective in order to have a better chance at competition will come from the other two teams..." Goodridge said.

The annual fundraiser has been amazing this year. The Wade Park tournament for the Deacons on Monday. Wake Forest will wrap-up their fall season in the ACC Championships meet that would include all the ACC teams in the region and national powers Florida and Tennessee.

Regardless of who you support for President, think hard about the race for U.S. Senate.

What's at stake for YOU?

Jobs

Education
Excellence. Tough standards. The best in math and science education. Making us able to compete worldwide. Jim Hunt brought that leadership to North Carolina. He'll take that fight to the U.S. Senate.

Personal freedom
The right to make your own personal judgements about birth control and abortion. A strong stand against bills such as Jesse Helms' S.158 which would outlaw the IUD and many forms of the pill, and make all abortions, even in cases of rape and incest, a crime. Jim Hunt stood up for personal freedom in North Carolina. He'll stand up for personal freedom in the U.S. Senate, even against the power of the New Right and Jerry Falwell's Moral Majority.

Think about it. And vote for your future.

Vote for Jim Hunt.
