Wake Forest Professor and Debate Coach Succumbs After Long Illness

Wake Forest.—Dr. James Quisenberry, 53, associate professor of English at Wake Forest College since 1925, died at his home here Wednesday afternoon after a 10-month illness with chronic lymphatic leukemia.

Funeral services, for which classes will be suspended, will be held from the Campus Baptist Church Friday morning at 9 o'clock. Burial will be made at 4:30 in the afternoon at Antioch Baptist Church in Saint Just, Va.

Surviving are Mrs. Quisenberry, the former Lucy Jones of Orange, Va., one son, Rice Quisenberry, Jr., three brothers, Charles D. Quisenberry of Orange, Va., Benjamin S. Quisenberry of Saint Just, Va., and Leonard L. Quisenberry of Petros, Tenn., and three sisters, Miss Elizabeth Quisenberry, Mrs. Kate L. Coleman, and Mrs. George W. Wright, all of Saint Just.

Dr. Quisenberry was a graduate of Furman University, a Master of Arts of University of Virginia, and Doctor of Theology of Southern Baptist Theological Seminary of Louisville. He was acting senior chaplain of the 8th Division of the American Expeditionary Forces for several years. He was coach of the Wake Forest debate team which last session won the South Atlantic championship. A faithful teacher and devout Christian, his passing will be widely mourned.
