

Wreck Fatal To WFU Housemother

Eames, Mary Blalock

Mrs. Mary Blalock Eames, 67, a housemother at Wake Forest University, was dead on arrival at Forsyth Memorial Hospital after being involved in a head-on auto collision yesterday.

Mrs. Eames, widow of Philip McCorkle Eames, was killed when her car collided with a vehicle driven by Mrs. Olive Bowles, 42, of Pfafftown, Rt. 2. Mrs. Bowles was treated for minor injuries at Forsyth Memorial Hospital and released.

Highway patrolman W. B. DeMarcus said the accident occurred at 2:05 p.m. yesterday on Old U. S. 421, 1 7-10 miles west of Winston-Salem near Shattalon Drive.

DeMarcus said no charges have been filed pending further investigation.

Relatives said Mrs. Eames had been on the way to visit some members of her family who were at the home of her brother, Dr. J. C. Blalock of Stimpson Drive, Pfafftown.

Mrs. Eames was graduated from Meredith College and had been a housemother at Wake Forest University since 1956. She was living in Babcock Dormitory at the time of her death. Funeral plans are incomplete.

She was born in Whiteville to Rev. J. G. and Minnie Rogers Blalock and was a member of Wake Forest Baptist Church.

Surviving are a son, Philip McCorkle Eames Jr. of Wilmington; a daughter, Mrs. Betty N. Batten of Kutztown, Pa.; two brothers, Dr. J. C. Blalock and Dr. J. R. Blalock of Marion, Va.; and two sisters, Miss Dorothy Blalock of Wake Forest and Mrs. Jane Gill of Clarksville, Va.

The body is at Voglers Chapel.
