C. T. Bailey Dies of Pneumonia At Rex Hospital

Dec. 6, 1920

C. T. Bailey died at Rex Hospital Monday night from pneumonia which developed following a fall in which he broke his shoulder about ten days ago. The funeral service will be held from the residence of his sister, Mrs. W. N. Jones, on Fayetteville street, Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock, conducted by Dr. T. W. O'Kelley, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

Mr. Bailey was forty-nine years of age. As newspaper man, at one time city editor of the Morning Post and of the RALEIGH TIMES and latter business manager of the Biblical Recorder; as postmaster of the city of RALEIGH from 1894 to 1903; as an active member of the Republican party, manager of the campaign of Jeter C. Pritchard in the past, and always an interested worker for his party in every campaign, Mr. Bailey was well known in the city and State. For several years past he had been connected with the city administration.

Surviving are a daughter, Miss Helen Leigh Bailey; a sister, Mrs. W. N. Jones, and a brother, J. W. Bailey. His wife, who was Miss Mary Wimbish, of Warrenton, died several years ago.
