LUNCFORD ALLEN LOYD.

Elder Loyd was a native of that part of Granville, now included in Vance County, North Carolina. He was born in 1837 and died in 1915 in the seventy-ninth year of his age. His early educational opportunities were very limited. He had barely reached the age of manhood, when he was united in marriage to the widow Clark. At a military gathering in Oxford in 1862 he enlisted in the Confederate Army, and was sent to Camp Mangum near Raleigh. On account of being afflicted with palsy, he was soon discharged, but he had shown his willingness to serve his country in the time of her need.

Soon after the close of the War Between the States he moved to Warren County, where he spent the remainder of his life, with the exception of a few years in Nash County.

After coming to Warren County he made a profession of religion and joined the Methodist Church at Macon. A few years later he united with the Baptist Church at Warren Plains, and in 1884 began to exercise in public as superintendent of Sunday Schools and in conducting prayer meetings. In 1887 he commenced preaching without license. In 1892 he was licensed to preach by Pleasant Grove Church and a year later was ordained by the same church. The presbytery consisted of Revs. G. M. Duke and R. D. Harper.

He served as pastor of Sharpsburg, New Hope and Tar River churches four years each. He was pastor at Crocker's Chapel in 1897 and at Corinth in 1897 and 1898. He did considerable service as an associational missionary. As Sunday School Superintendent, leader in prayer meetings, pastor and missionary, he made soul winning his special aim, and had a good degree of success. His work was limited to the Tar River Association.

On account of physical infirmities, he retired from the active ministry and spent his last years with his children near Macon, North Carolina. He was a beneficiary of the Board of Ministerial Relief and received a pension from the State as a Confederate Veteran.
