Class Talks Will Feature Focus Week

Ten Leaders To Relate Subjects of Courses

Religious Focus Week, starting Sunday morning with Dr. Everett Gill, Jr. making an address on the "Foundations for Tomorrow's World," and bringing to the campus ten prominent Baptist leaders, will introduce a new and unique idea to the students and professors of this institution.

Beginning Sunday and continuing through Friday, the Focus Week program, carefully planned to meet the college schedule, will include addresses each week-day at the regular Chapel period, 10:20-11:00, and seminars each night conducted by the visiting leaders.

The purpose of Religious Focus Week is to acquaint students with religion in their everyday life, to relate their courses to religion and to stimulate religious thought.

To Talk To Classes

To aid in accomplishing this ideal, the visiting religious leaders will speak at least once during the week to each class at the regular class meeting, and they will relate the subject of the course and the studies to religion.

Versed in a widely varied field, the speakers are qualified to address the students on almost every phase of college work and life.

During the week there will be two Chapel services each day, the first at the regular Chapel period, beginning at 10:20, and the evening service beginning at 7:00.

On Sunday morning at the regular Church service, Dr. Everett Gill, Jr. will speak on the "Foundations for Tomorrow's World," and at the evening service Dr. Kelley Barnett will have as his subject "The Cross and Our Crucial Necessity."

Pearce To Speak

On Monday, at the Chapel period, the Rev. J. Winston Pearce will speak on the subject "Which Christ Comes Alive?" In the evening the subject will be "The World Revolution" and the service will be led by Dr. J. Levering Evans.

Tuesday morning Dr. Broach will speak. That evening, Mrs. R. H. Edwin Espy will speak on "Lights and Shadows," and the Rev. Lee C. Sheppard's topic will be "A Living Faith."

Wednesday morning, Miss Marjorie E. Moore will have as her title "What Excuse Do You Have for Living?" and Dr. Barnett's topic will be "Shields of Brass." Wednesday evening Mrs. Kay Ferrell and Dr. Everett Gill, Jr., will have charge of the service. Dr. Gill's subject is "Three World Discoveries."

Thursday Dr. Evans will speak on a "Program of Action" and the Rev. Mr. Pearce's topic for the evening service is "Say 'My World'."

Closing the Focus Week on Friday will be Mr. Sheppard, who will speak on "The Assurance of Victory," and a special message from Dr. Broach.

Evening Seminars

Each evening from 8:00 until 9:00 Seminars will be held on various topics of interest.

Monday and Wednesday:

1. "Christians and Racial Crisis," Barnett, leader; Miss Moore, resource person.

2. "Love, Marriage and the Home," Broach, leader; Mrs. Espy, resource.

3. "Science, Doubt and Faith," Sheppard; Howerton.

4. "Christ and Human Suffering," Pearce; Ferrell.

5. "Catholicism and Protestantism," Gill; Evans.

Tuesday and Thursday:

3. "Is Prayer the Last Word?" Pearce; Sheppard.

No One's Superstitious! Unless the Phi Betes..

By Eddie Folk

The younger generation really isn't very superstitious. It doesn't mind black cats, or ladders, or Friday the thirteenth. If there is any tendency toward superstition, it probably is to be found among—shall we say?—the "intellectuals."

We noted that three groups had banquets planned for tonight, Phi Beta Kappa, the Veterans' Club, and Sigma Pi Alpha.

Surprised to find that so many organizations were tempting fate on a day notorious for bad luck, we determined to find the degree to which a representative number of members from each organization was superstitious.

The new candidates for Phi Beta Kappa are easily the most superstitious group of the three, followed by the modern language group. The veterans have, or claim to have, almost no superstitions of any kind.

Very few people were afraid of Friday the thirteenth, although Ozmer Henry once had to go to Fort Bragg on such a day. Al Denton says his Mom and Pop didn't mind. They chose Friday the thirteenth for their wedding day. (Al, says, proudly, "See what they got?")

It made no difference to anyone about having a banquet on Friday the thirteenth. "That's different," they all said.

Black cats don't scare anybody either, except Bryan Marshallburn and Ozmer Henry. Bryan always puts his hat on backward if one

Mabe and Creech Elected to ODK

Leadership Fraternity Chooses Only Two In Spring Election

Buster Mabe and Bobby Creech were elected to membership in Omicron Delta Kappa, national honorary leadership fraternity, in the annual spring elections held Tuesday night. In addition to these two men as elected from the Student Body, Professor Forrest W. Clonts, assistant professor of Social Sciences, was elected to honorary membership into the organization from the faculty. Tuesday night's elections to ODK were the first held since last November, when the annual fall elections to the organization took place.

Mabe, a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity from Kinston, North Carolina, was elected president of the Student Body in the general spring elections held Monday. In addition to Student Government head, Mabe is also president of the Kappa Sigma fraternity, a member of the Philomathean Literary Society and newly-elected Program Supervisor for that organization, and President of Gamma Nu Iota, honorary pre-medical fraternity, and president of the Canterbury Club, newly formed organization of Campus Episcopalian students. He entered Wake Forest in the fall of 1943 after completing one year at North Carolina State College, and is scheduled to graduate from Wake Forest at the end of the 1946 spring semester.

Is Co-Editor

Creech, the other Student Body member to be elected to the organization Tuesday night, is a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity from Wilson, North Carolina. He is serving this year as co-editor of the 1945 Howler, is a member of the Pan-Hellenic Council, an office to which he was recently elected, is a newly-elected representative to the Student Council from the rising Senior Class, and served as past president of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. Creech is the only candidate known to be applying for the position of business manager of the 1946 Howler. He entered Wake Forest in the fall of 1942, Professor Forrest W. Clonts, the

Both Fraternity Candidates For Student Body Offices Lose

Buster Mabe, backed by the Kappa Sigma and Sigma Pi fraternities and ministerial students, was elected to the presidency of the Student Body Monday in one of the most spirited campaigns ever to be conducted on the Wake Forest campus. Mabe, running for the presidency of the Student Body against the opposition of the fraternity caucus group, thus became the first man in the history of fraternities at Wake Forest College to be elected Student Body president without the backing of the caucus forces.

Mabe, who is president of the Kappa Sigma fraternity and is from Kinston, North Carolina, defeated Nick Sacrinty, member of the Alpha Kappa Pi fraternity from Reidsville, North Carolina in the Monday elections. Sacrinty was running with the pledged support of the Alpha Kappa Pi, Kappa Alpha, Sigma Phi Epsilon, and Pi Kappa Alpha fraternities in the Monday election, while Mabe was actively supported by the Kappa Sigma and Sigma Pi fraternities.

First Success

Monday's election represented the first time since the spring of 1943 that the fraternity caucus has been "bucked," and the first time in the history of the fraternity system at Wake Forest that any fraternity group has elected a president of the Student Body while running in opposition to the caucus.

The last example of Monday's action, which occurred in 1943, took place when Rudd Friday was defeated by a slight majority in his race for the Student Body presidency against the fraternity caucus candidate. Friday was the Lambda Chi Alpha candidate and ran in opposition to a candidate backed by seven fraternities.

Mabe was elected with a total of 186 votes, while Sacrinty received a total of 142 votes. Jimmy Mattox, who represented the non-fraternity forces and was backed by a portion of the campus ministerial strength, received a total of 88 votes as the third party candidate in the election.

Chandler Wins

In the vice-presidential election, John Chandler, senior ministerial student from Thomasville, North Carolina, was elected to the Student Body vice-presidency over Bill Hough, the fraternity caucus candidate, and John B. Crow, the non-fraternity candidate. Chandler, in winning the post, amassed a total number of 215 votes, the greatest number compiled by any candidate in the general Student Body government race. Chandler received the support of the Kappa Sigma and Sigma Pi fraternities as well as the ministerial group in his contest. Hough, the runner-

Students To Give To Union Building

The proposal made by President of the Student Body, Clarence Bowen in chapel on Monday, that beginning next term, all students be requested to contribute six and a half dollars to the construction of the new Student Union Building along with payment of their regular tuition, was passed by the students in the chapel meeting Wednesday.

Each student for the next ten years will be requested to contribute the same amount at the beginning of the semester.

Mr. Earnshaw said that the amount would be listed under Enlargement Program; however, a student who does not feel obligated to pay the sum will not be required to do so.

Mr. C. J. Jackson, Director of the Enlargement Campaign, made a talk describing the new Student Union Building, after which Mr. Bowen made the proposal and an open discussion took place among the students.

"We want a well balanced growth," Mr. Jackson said. "This building is designed with that in mind."

Religious Focus Week

The faculty guest editorial this week is written by the Rev. Eugene Olive, chaplain of the College.

The function of religion, according to Professor Harris Franklin Rall, is "to help-man see the highest in his world and to achieve the highest in his life." Whatever does or can do that for anyone is unquestionably and tremendously important.

Wake Forest College has sought from the beginning to make central in its life and work the spirit and principles of the Christian religion. There is reason to believe this emphasis is now and will continue to be predominant. Nothing else in the mission of the College can be so significant as that.

There is, therefore, special appropriateness about the plans which will bring to the campus next week a group of ten distinguished men and women well qualified to counsel with young people who are eager to achieve the highest in their lives. "Religious Focus Week" indicates a period when attention to religion and its relation to life will be somewhat more concerted and intense than is possible in the routine of college activities.

This movement dates back to seven or eight years ago when the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, through its Department of Evangelism, conducted its first "Mission to Students." At the invitation of a college or university administration, faculty, and student body, a group of able Christian men and women would spend a few days on the campus to discuss religion in public assemblies, class rooms, laboratories, seminar groups, fraternities, dormitories, and with other groups or individuals desiring such discussion.

Among the ablest Christian ministers and laymen of America were found leaders for this undertaking. They received no financial remuneration for their services. Expenses were paid by the Department of Evangelism of the Federal Council of Churches. Interest in vital religion was stimulated on the campuses. Many students were led to commit themselves for the first time to the Christian way of life. Results were fruitful and gratifying.

Not a few Baptist ministers participated in this movement. When the Department of Student Activities of the Southern Baptist Convention observed the effectiveness of these "missions," permission was requested for adapting the plan for use among Southern Baptist students. Hence, the plan has been employed with slight changes under the name of "Religious Focus Week."

The Department of Student Religious Activities had to suspend temporarily its activities in this matter at the beginning of last semester because of its depleted personnel. But the North Carolina Baptist Department of Student Religious Activities, Dick Howerton, Secretary, agreed to sponsor a Focus Week program at Wake Forest in cooperation with the College and the student body. Two-fifths of the expense of the program will be paid by the College, two-fifths by the Baptist State Convention, and one-fifth by students themselves. This money is for expenses of travel, postage, meals of visiting teams, printing, and other essential items.

Next Sunday morning Focus Week begins. Approximately ninety students and faculty members comprise the various committees charged with looking after such details of preparation and of management as are essential to the program's proper functioning. The entire student body, faculty, and citizenship of the community will be richly rewarded by entering wholeheartedly into the spirit of the week's program and purpose.

A cordial welcome to Wake Forest is extended to the ten members of the visiting team. They merit the gratitude and cooperation of everyone in the college community.

Thoughtless Zeal

The thoughtless zeal of Wake Forest politicians on this campus has caused untold damage to the trees and college buildings. We are referring to the wholesale tacking and nailing of signs to trees and buildings over the entire campus during the last election.

The faculty, realizing that action was needed if the College intended to keep its magnolia-covered campus, passed a resolution Monday giving the Buildings and Grounds Committee authority to take whatever steps necessary to prohibit such thoughtless action by the Wake Forest student body. However, there is hardly any action that can be taken by this committee other than simply asking the students to use a little more common sense from now on.

Years ago, there was a ruling passed by the faculty prohibiting students from nailing signs and posters to College-owned property, but it seems that the present generation of Wake Foresters either were ignorant of such a rule, or simply went ahead and ignored the rule. We hope it is a case of the former.

When a nail is driven in a tree, it gives insects and birds an entrance to the heart of the tree. If a nail enters the foot of a human being, the nail itself does not cause so much damage, but the tetanus that generally follows might cause death. Such is the case of trees when their protective bark is punctured.

In the case of buildings, paint is applied to give the wood a protective covering against insects and water. When a tack or nail is driven into the wood, it allows termites and rain water to enter, causing a rapid deterioration of the building.

By actual count, there were sixteen ten-penny nails driven into one tree in front of the chapel. Multiply that by the countless others that have been driven into this tree throughout the year, and you have a fair picture of the situation all over the campus. Some ambitious future-politician even used the Religion Building for a signboard.

Dr. E. C. Cocke, of the Biology Department, stated that the damage done in the recent election could not be measured in terms of dollars and cents. However, Dr. Cocke did say, that at the present rate, the Wake Forest campus would be devoid of trees in years to come.

We are not condemning the fine spirit shown in the recent elections. On the contrary, we think that the entire student body "did itself proud" by its behavior last Monday. However, in the future, it is to be hoped that the students will display a little more discretion when it comes to the matter of the all-important sign that enumerates the many good qualities of their candidate.

Well Conducted

The election which was held on the Wake Forest campus Monday could certainly be considered historic in more than one sense. It not only represented the first time in the history of Wake Forest fraternity existence that the fraternity caucus has been successfully "bucked", but it also was certainly the best election which any member of the present Wake Forest Student Body has seen since he has been on the campus. It was an election which Wake Forest will not soon forget in many senses, for it was spirited beyond words, as well as efficiently conducted.

But the most outstanding fact to be remembered about the Monday election was the excellent conduct which marked the holding of the election in all respects. Despite the fact that the election marked a split in fraternity forces, which are known for their tremendous interest in campus politics, the conduct of the greater majority of students both during the campaign and the Monday elections was certainly excellent. Only in one instance did an example of unfair activities take place. Students had respect for their opponents, willingly congratulated where congratulations were due, and violated none of the rules about voting set down by the Student Council.

To them as well as to the Council can go full credit for the conduct of a truly excellent election. It has been the policy of Old Gold and Black in the past to issue its thanks to any campus organization which does an excellent job, as well as to the individual members of the Student Body who contribute to such a job. In accordance with this policy the Old Gold and Black in this issue issues its congratulations to both the Student Council and to every member of the Student Body for a job well done. But whereas the Council is concerned, the Old Gold and Black has a question as well as an issue of congratulations. We simply would like to ask the

WITH THE MEN IN SERVICE

—by SYBIL JOLLY—

Lt.-Col. Wheeler Martin, Jr., of Williamston, has been reported missing over Japan since March 10. He had reported to a B-29 base in the Pacific only the day before and was on his first mission against the Japanese as a pilot of a Superfortress.

Col. Martin, nephew of Dr. H. M. Poteat and grandson of former President W. L. Poteat, had been stationed for several years in Panama with the Air Force. Early in February of this year he completed special training in this country and reported for duty with the AAF in the Pacific last month.

Col. Martin was graduated from Wake Forest in 1938 with a B. A. degree. While here he was a member of the track team, the tennis team, Student Council, Student Legislature, and the Kappa Alpha Fraternity. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler Martin of Williamston.

Lieutenant E. M. Floyd, Jr., Fairmont, has been in action in the Pacific theater for a year. He took part in the invasion of Leyte and Luzon. Lt. Floyd attended Wake Forest College and took his officer's training at Northwestern. He entered the Navy in March of 1941.

S-Sgt. Joseph G. Edwards, of Bunn, N. C., who is stationed at an Eighth Air Force Bomber Base in England, has been awarded the second Oak Leaf Cluster to his Air Medal. He is a waist gunner on an Eighth Air Force B-17 Flying Fortress. The award was for "meritorious achievement" during bombing attacks against Nazi war industries and military targets in cooperation with Allied ground forces. Sgt. Edwards attended Wake Forest College before entering the AAF in July, 1943.

First Lt. Charles N. Sugg of Varrina, pilot of a B-17 Flying Fortress in the 351st Bombardment Group, has been decorated with a second Oak Leaf Cluster to his Air Medal for "meritorious achievement" on combat missions over Europe. He is stationed at the Eighth Air Force Bomber Station in England. The citation accompanying his award read in part: "The courage, coolness and skill displayed by this officer upon these occasions reflect great credit upon himself and the Armed Forces of the United States."

The 25-year-old flier, son of J. R. Sugg, is a veteran of 18 bombing attacks on enemy installations. He was graduated from Wake Forest College in 1942, and entered the army in January in 1943.

Lt. (jg) W. Burnette Harvey, who visited the campus recently upon his return from service in Europe, is now somewhere on the West Coast for an indefinite time awaiting orders to join in the action in the Pacific against Japan. In a letter to a member of the faculty recently he announced his marriage to Miss Mary Geliede of South Bend, Indiana, in the Chapel of St. James at La Jolla, California. Dean Grazebrook, the Episcopal rector, performed the ceremony.

Lt. Harvey was graduated from Wake Forest College in 1943 with a BA degree.

A Ninth Air Force P-47 Thunderbolt Base: France—Hundreds of German armored columns fleeing the Ardennes salient one early morning not too long ago did not bother to look up into the heavy overcast to see P-47 Thunderbolt fighter-bombers of the crack group, "The Maulers," dive through a hole in the clouds at over 300 miles an hour to release wing bombs and rockets on them. Back at base that day, a former Wake Forest student, Staff Sergeant Vaughn E. Jennings, Pores Knob, North Carolina, former social science high school teacher had a "ringside" seat in a remarkable display of tactical air power in which his group destroyed or damaged over 800 vehicles, including tanks, in a two day attack that followed.

Recalling the attacks in which his group flew over 100 sorties against the retreating columns, Sgt. Jennings said: "As our pilots took off early that morning, we had no idea that Von Rundstedt was pulling out of the bulge. At briefing no mention was made

Rehearsal Troubles

by Emily Crandall

Rehearsals for The Silver Cord, which started out somewhat hectically, are now well under control. The night of the secret decision of the play, Director Alice Holliday sent a secret telegram to the publishers, ordering the play books. They wired back curtly with the announcement that the books were not available.

Without books, without stage directions, the cast started rehearsals. They borrowed as many College Omnibuses as they could find, locked themselves up in their "chapter room", and went to work. When they had all energized themselves for carrying the heavy books around, they headed for the church basement. It was crowded with chairs, tables, and screens. The cast was tired, so they went to the Religion Auditorium. After a week there, they repaired to the third floor of the Alumni Building, where they could have lighting, privacy, and fresh air. By this time the scripts had been typed and hectographed, and the cast settled down to business.

Learns To Smoke

And still there were vicissitudes. Jeanne Wall, as Mrs. Phelps, had to learn how to smoke. With the cigarette shortage as bad as it is, one should never start one's smoking career with Chesterfields. Ramones would do just as well. Jeanne, however, aristocratically protested that she wanted only the best. But to this day she does not know how to light a cigarette. And therein a problem still runs wild.

Emily Crandall by now is quite, quite disgusted with roles that call for much sitting and polite listening. "All I ever have to do is sit," she mourns. And Mrs. Phelps is easily one of the most garrulous women she has ever encountered, and a great deal of patience is required during Mrs. Phelps' long how-I-love-my-sons monologues. Crandall is eagerly awaiting her chance in the second and third acts, where she can do some first-class derailing.

Bowen Protests

Clarence Bowen, who is the elder son, protests a bit at the big embrace called for between him and Mamma. He was called down for not hugging Mamma with more filial devotion. "I want you to give that all you've got!" demanded Director Holliday. Clarence stopped angrily. "This is all the embracing I'm going to do," he warned, "until I get my lines straight." And he continued from there.

Shelton Lewis, the younger son, still scratches his head over his constant repetition of one line: "Mother!" The one word has so many inflections and so many possibilities every time he uses it, that he is thinking of removing it from his vocabulary. Another line that stumps him is the now-famous "My blessed, blessed mother!" He doesn't know what to do with it, even with the help of pointed suggestions.

Sybil Jolly chews her nails over her tendency to raise her voice at the end of sentences, and occasionally in the middle of sentences. "Lower your voice!" screams Alice, and up goes the voice more than ever. Sybil, however, is more concerned with her hysterics scene in the second act. She practices it faithfully every night in her room, and, on occasion, has evoked the anxious and sympathetic condolences of the young ladies on the hall.

Alice Holliday, when quizzed about her private worries, grinned happily and said, "Oh, I haven't got any worries — Yet!"

Veterans Back Library

The Veterans Club has accepted the challenge set forth in last week's issue of Old Gold and Black to provide a library for the SS Wake Forest.

It is the custom of the institution for whom Victory ships are named to donate some appropriate gift for use on the vessel as a memento of its namesake. The Commission suggested the donation of a library for the men on the SS Wake Forest. In last week's issue of Old Gold and Black it was suggested that some organization on the campus would start a campaign to accumulate books for this library. Rufus Potts, acting president in the absence of Ernest Chappell, president of the Veterans Club, put the matter before the club and they decided to sponsor this drive.

The members of the club plan to divide the campus into groups and contact all members of the student body, asking them to give 25 cents or more. This money will buy an especially prepared library for maritime seamen. The cost of this library is $100 per 40-book unit. This will furnish a library of new books, accompanied by a memorial plaque of durable composition to be attached to the book-case.

Donate Books

Students and townspeople are asked to donate any books they might have. Every book collected will go to the Navy. 100 to 150 books are needed for the library on the SS Wake Forest. The Veterans Club is asking that other organizations on the campus help them in the drive.

The books wanted for the drive are those that the average man at sea would like to read. Books that are read for pleasure are desired above those that are for education.

The college is donating a copy of Dr. Paschal's History of Wake Forest, and the College Library is giving duplicate copies of books which they have, and back editions of The Howler.

An appeal to students will be made in chapel today. It is hoped that all students will cooperate in this drive.

MELODY

I listened to the music
Intruding on the air.
I sighed to think that yesterday
It had been safely tucked away.
I should have left it there!

I listened to the music
And I began to cry.
With liquid anger in my heart
I tried to tear the sound apart,
And cursed you to the sky.

I listened to the music
And hurried to my room.
Retreating to my private wastes,
I freed my more sadistic tastes
And plotted for your doom.

I listened to the music

of any mass withdrawal of Nazi equipment.
"I could hear our pilots talking over their radio sets and complaining about the heavy overcast that prevailed over the sea. Suddenly, the squadron leader spotted a break in the clouds and went down to take a look. When he came back up, I heard him say in an excited voice, 'The Jerries are pulling out with hundreds of vehicles parked bumper to bumper awaiting other numerous vehicles ahead to clear the roads. Let's go get them.'"

"In the seconds that followed, I could picture in my mind those 500 pound wing bombs and rockets exploding among the vehicles blowing them sky-high."

"I heard one pilot say he strafed an entire convoy of trucks lined up that stretched over ten miles of roads. He kept saying, 'Just hold the trigger. You can't miss.' When the Thunderbolts returned to base they had destroyed—

GYPSY MOMENT

I feel like a gypsy today!
I'd like to go romping on top of a hill
And dance on a cloud till the heavens stand still,
And laugh till the sun fades away.
I'd like to steal off to the moon,
And there on the crest I would build me a fire
And spin with the flames that are white with desire,
And escape on a golden balloon.

I'd like to imprison the light
That I found in my eyes when I looked in the glass;
But I know that this glorious moment
will pass,
And I will be lost in the night.

TO THE CAPRICIOUS MUSE OF POETRY

Muse, muse,
Bring me some news,
Lest I abuse
Poetic art.
Muse, muse,
Where do you snooze,
While awful blues
Invade my heart?
Muse, muse,
I do not choose
To search for clues,
Hence, I depart.

A Real Tragedy Happened In Belgium Mud When Little Billy Primm Was A Trifle Slow

(Billy Primm, of Rome, Ga., was graduated in 1943. He went into the army immediately with his brother Dan, then a sophomore, and they have been together ever since; in England, France, Belgium, Germany. In college Billy was editor of OLD GOLD, second baseman on the baseball varsity, president of the Monogram club, president of the Senior Class, member of Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, Who's Who in Colleges, and the Kappa Sigma Fraternity.)

By Billy Primm

Somewhere in Belgium—H2O did the trick.

If it hadn't been for H2O, we could never have taken a shower. If we hadn't taken a shower, we wouldn't have run across General Eisenhower's car which, thanks to an abundance of H2O from the Heavens, refused to budge from a mud hole in the middle of a lane which passes for a road over here.

In a very compact nutshell that's how we happened to have our picture snapped surrounding "Ike," the photo later appearing in the Stars and Stripes, army newspaper. Did I say "we"? I meant the other fellows—yours truly moved two seconds too late to get into the photo.

It Couldn't Be!

There were twenty of us in the Dodge army truck returning to camp from a nearby town where we had gone to enjoy a warm shower. It was about four o'clock in the afternoon, the road was muddy, and the skies overcast with rain clouds. Five miles from camp we caught up with a convoy of trucks. It was while attempting to slip around them that we were forced to stop.

"Some car stuck in the middle of the road," one of our fellows remarked looking out of the truck. That brought on several gripes and oaths, the principal one being that we'd miss chow anything but that.

After ten minutes of mutterings and complaints, the same fellow as before glanced down the road, then let out a yell, "General Eisenhower's walking up this way!"

But It Was

"Too much cognac, Red!" "I knew you were ETO-happy." "Section Eight, Redhead, but at least you'll get to go back to the states." Those were the answers by always suspicious Yanks to Red's outbursts.

So Red hopped out of the truck and left us. A minute later a figure wearing officer's greens, shiny paratrooper boots and a garrison cap stopped by the truck, looked in and asked, "How's it going, fellows?"

Nineteen pairs of eyes opened wider than the Siegfried Line did before the Allied attack. There he was, five stars, a chest full of campaign ribbons and a big grin—General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Supreme Commander of the Allied Armies—and he looked every inch the great soldier he is.

Ike Wants Company

In less than ten seconds the truck was emptied, we had given "Ike" a snappy salute and were trying to appear at ease. The General took care of that, however, asking us questions about our company, home states, mail, and remarking that "rank doesn't mean a thing when you're stuck in the mud,"—just like any "GI" talking to another. No highbrow stuff about him.

Quite a crowd had gathered and we got another surprise as General Omar Bradley strolled by and gave us a friendly greeting as he walked back to "Ike's" car. While this was going on, Sgt. Louis Feleci of our company pulled out his camera, approached General Eisenhower and asked him to pose for a picture.

The General glanced around and said, "Sure, but I'd like some company."

No sooner had he spoken than eighteen soldiers charged him, shoving and pushing for a spot next to him. Being the nineteenth man and two seconds slow on the take-off, I ran into the rear lines, composed of six footers whose motto seemed to be "He shall not pass."

Stymied In The Rear

Quick action was called for, but what chance did a 5'-5" frame have back there! A medium tank would have come in handy to crack that line. Sorrowfully I heard the click of the shutter and realized that opportunity had given a rapid knock and departed.

My brother, Dan, got the Primm name in that photograph, however, complete with his "Ipana" smile and combat jacket. He and a staff sergeant fought for the coveted spot next to "Ike" with the higher rank winning out. A couple days later we discovered in the Paris edition of the Stars and Stripes this same picture. O fame, where art thou?

Thus it was on that bleak, dreary day that Dame Fortune started to smile upon me, then That's Dan with the X mark — Dan grinning because he's so near Gen. "Ike" — and Brother Billy is lost in the rear.

Six Coeds Solicit Funds In Robeson

Six Wake Forest coed majors in Religious Education worked under the direction of Mr. L. L. Morgan, Secretary of the State Sunday School Board, in the Robeson County Association Sunday School Enlargement Campaign which was held from March 31 to April 6.

The girls, taking part in the campaign from Wake Forest were Mary Gay, Wilma Grass, Nancy Leonard, Dorothy Elliott, Lorene Herrin, and Gloria Blanton. The group did work which included the taking of a religious census and the teaching of a study course.

Plans for the attendance of a Wake Forest coed group at the Robeson County campaign were made in January when Mr. Morgan, leader of the campaign, spoke to the Wake Forest Religious Education Club presenting the idea that some of the students could work with him during the spring holidays. Six girls were chosen and continued their plans to aid in the Robeson program even after the cancellation of the holidays. Classes were excused during the week for these absent from the campus.

Girls Are Busy

Leaving Wake Forest Saturday morning, March 31, the girls met that afternoon in the First Baptist Church in Lumberton with sixty other workers aiding in the program. Workers were assigned to the individual Robeson County churches from that point, and the group met Saturday night with the pastor, superintendent, teachers and officers of his or her assigned church. Plans were then made for a census which was taken the following afternoon.

While in Robeson the Wake Forest coeds engaged in the teaching of a study course, holding sessions every evening. This course was concluded Friday night, April 6, and a brief quiz was given on the material covered. The book taught by the coeds was The School in Which We Teach by G. S. Dobbins.

Sergeant Jennings landed on the Normandy beachheads July 4, Independence Day, with his group that operated from one of the most forward air strips behind the Caen sector.

Under German shell fire and Luftwaffe night attacks, pilots and ground personnel lived in foxholes under combat conditions.

Prior to entering the Army Air Forces in November, 1942, at Camp Croft, the sergeant taught social science at the Louisburg and Wilkesboro high schools.

He holds a BA degree from Wake Forest College and is now serving his 15th month overseas with "The Maulers." Sgt. Jennings, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jennings, Pores Knob, is a chief clerk in combat operations of this group, the 362nd, of the Ninth Air Force.

ONE RUN-OFF

The run-off election, scheduled as the result of a tie between Elmer Barbour and Fred Hoffmann in the race for positions on the Student Council during the Monday elections, will be held Tuesday, April 24, it was announced by the Student Council Wednesday night. The tie between Barbour and Hoffmann occurred in the election for representatives to the Council from the junior class, when the two candidates were tied for a place on the Council with 28 votes each.

The election will be held during the regular Chapel period and only members of the rising junior class are entitled to cast their votes in an effort to end the tie.

Cancer Drive Will Begin On Monday

The North Carolina Army of the American Cancer Association is sponsoring a one-week drive beginning April 15th to distribute literature explaining its cause and to raise funds for the establishment of a cancer clinic in Raleigh. Mrs. Forrest Clonts, head of the local drive announced yesterday.

Membership calls for one dollar; however, any donation will be greatly appreciated. There will be a house to house canvas made in Wake Forest after April 15th. All persons wishing to contribute to the cause who are not reached by this canvas may put their donations in collection boxes placed in the local stores.

Approximately 600,000 Americans now have cancer, once thought to be an incurable disease; 160,000 people die each year from it. Delay in seeing a doctor when symptoms appear is dangerous and many times fatal; however, cancer can be cured if treated in time. Progress is continually being made in the field of cure of cancer.

The North Carolina Division of the American Cancer Society has published these facts and many others in a pamphlet published in connection with the drive which begins on the 15th. It says, "We can lick cancer with research and with education; you can help by learning the danger signals and by giving this leaflet to others."

Dr. Black Returns To College Faculty

Dr. C. S. Black, Head of the Chemistry Department, has returned to Wake Forest after an absence of three years. During this time he was absent on leave for military service.

Dr. Black, holding the rank of Major, was first stationed at Edgewood Arsenal for nine months. He then was transferred to Ft. Benning, Georgia, where he was connected with the Post Chemical Office. He will now take up his duties as head of the Chemistry Department here. As yet he has made no definite plans concerning his future work here.

Dr. Black was a student at Wake Forest during the last war. At that time he stopped school and went into the army, serving a year overseas. Then he came back to Wake Forest and graduated here in 1918. He received his M. A. here in 1920. In the fall of 1919 he served as a laboratory assistant here. He received his Ph. D. at the University of Wisconsin. Dr. Black served as an instructor in Chemistry at Wake Forest, University of Virginia, and Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College. He became the head of the Chemistry Department here in 1930.

Dr. Black, having served actively in the Armed Forces for three years, has now been reverted to inactive status. He has been placed on the reserve list of the Armed Forces.

Council Giving Student Dance Saturday Night

College Students To Play For Party

The music of the unofficial Wake Forest College swing band will feature the Student Council-sponsored party scheduled to be held beginning at 8:00 Saturday night in the local Community House. The party, which is one of the series which the Student Council has sponsored so far this semester, will last from 8:00 until 11:00. Wake Forest students, faculty members and their wives, and townspeople are all invited to attend. As usual no admission will be charged for the event.

Students attending the Saturday night party are urged by the Council to by all means secure dates for the affair. The only thing marring the success of the parties so far this semester has been the great predominance of boys who usually attend.

Although the party will be featured by a dance, games such as pinochle, bridge, darts, and checkers will be offered as a sideline and for the amusement of non-dancers. A committee of faculty wives will act as chaperones for the event.

Serve Refreshments

Refreshments for the event will be in charge of a committee headed by Elizabeth Bryan, and composed also of Virginia Gilley and Billie Collier. This same committee will also be in charge of arrangement for games for Saturday night.

Bryan, Marshburn and Bill Hough were appointed by the Council to contact the College swing band, headed by Milton Marney, with Jimmy Sealey as business manager, and arrange for the music for Saturday night. The band has already expressed its willingness to provide the music for the Council dance, and Saturday night will mark its second appearance before the Student Body.

The band is at present engaged in an extensive campaign to raise funds for needed instrument replacements, music, and music stands and announces that any contributions which members of the Student Body see fit to give Saturday night will be appreciated.

Wake Grad Returns From Jap Internment

Released January 30 from Cabanatuan, a noted Japanese prison camp in the Philippines, Lt. George William Greene, with his son, Bill, recently returned for a visit to Wake Forest.

Lt. Greene, a 1916 graduate of the College, was imprisoned after receiving wounds in the hip and one hand in Corregidor action. During the 32 months of his confinement, Greene, scarcely able to walk as the result of arthritis, received almost no medical attention. He lost 70 pounds in weight, 40 of which he has regained since his return to the States.

A native of China, Greene fought in World War I and then returned to China as a sugar broker. After the entrance of the United States into the war in 1941, he was commissioned a lieutenant in the navy.

Following his brief visit to this campus, Lt. Greene went to the home of his eldest sister, Mrs. C. R. Moore of Cary, for a reunion with his four brothers and sisters after a 43 year separation.

The Greene family went to China in the latter half of the 19th century, when the father, Dr. G. W. Greene, one time Latin teacher at the College, was assigned to Canton as a Baptist missionary.

Dr. Greene's son, Felix, at the age of 13 began the separation when he came to the States for schooling. He chose Wake Forest as his Alma Mater. After graduating, he took up electrical work, married and made his home in Columbia, S. C. where he still resides.

The second of the children to leave was Valleria Greene, who studied at Mars Hill and Meredith colleges, later marrying Mr. M. T. Rankin, now secretary of the Baptist Foreign Missionary Board.

The eldest, Anna Greene, married C. R. Moore, an Englishman. Moore, employed at State College, came with his wife to North Carolina just before the first world war.

Lt. Greene's young son, who accompanied him on his visit here, will enroll in the college in 1950.

of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity. Ward is from Goldsboro, North Carolina and is a member of the now-inactive on the Wake Forest campus Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

Caucus Wins

In the contest to determine the secretary-treasurer of the junior class, the fraternity caucus candidate emerged victorious over the caucus backing forces of Kappa Sigma-Sigma Pi. David Nowell, president of the Kappa Alpha fraternity from Wake Forest was elected to the secretary-treasurership in opposition to Bill Whitley, Kappa Sigma member from Goldsboro.

In the race to elect a total of three junior representatives to the Student Council, two representatives were definitely elected to the Council while a tied contest for the third Council position remains to be filled in a run-off which the Student Council has called for April 24. Dewey Hobbs, Sigma Pi member from Wilmington, and running on the anti-caucus ticket, was elected as junior representative to the Council with a total of 41 votes in the election.

Johnny Greene, member of Kappa Alpha, also received a Council position Monday when he ran second in the junior election with a total of 40 votes. Greene is from Hamlet, North Carolina, in the tied election for the third Council spot, Fred Hofmann and Elmer Barbour are locked with a total of 28 votes each in the race. One of these two candidates will become the third junior representative to the Council when the results of the April 24 election run-off became known. Other rising juniors which ran in the race for the Council positions Monday were Charlie Choate, Buck Garrison Bill McGill and Bill Smith.

Appenzeller Wins

Herbie Appenzeller, representing the Kappa Sigma-Sigma Pi forces in the race against the fraternity caucus for the presidency of the rising sophomore class, defeated Bill Hunt, caucus candidate, for that position. Appenzeller, a member of the Sigma Pi fraternity, received a total of 101 votes in capturing the office Monday, while Bill Hunt, KA member from Lexington, received a total of 95 votes.

For the vice-presidency of the sophomore class Hank Garrity, representing the Kappa Sigma-Sigma Pi forces against the caucus, was elected to the office against John Bruno, caucus candidate. Garrity captured the office with a total of 130 votes, while Bruno received a total of 69 votes. This represented one of the clearest majorities which was piled up in all the Monday elections. Garrity is a member of Kappa Sigma from Trenton, New Jersey. Bruno is a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Mosley Loses

In the race for the secretary-treasurership of the sophomore class Earlie Jones, representing the Kappa Sigma-Sigma Pi forces, defeated John Mosley, who ran as the fraternity caucus candidate. Jones was elected with a total of 112 votes, while Mosley received a total of 79 votes. Jones is a member of the Sigma Pi fraternity from Crewe, Virginia. Mosley is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha.

Jim Doyle, member of Pi Kappa Alpha from Petersburg, Virginia was elected as sophomore representative to the Student Council Monday. There will also be club rooms, parlors, a number of guest rooms with private baths, and a dining room. Most important will be the location of a branch of the Post Office for the college. If there is enough money there will be bowling alleys, and possibly a Little Theater. The whole purpose of the Student building as proposed by Mr. Jackson will be for the comfort and happiness of all students.

In the open floor discussion which followed Mr. Jackson's talk and Mr. Bowen's proposal, many students expressed their own agreement with the idea of contributing the proposed six and a half dollars by each student. This idea was presented in order that other people outside of the school wishing to help with the campaign could see that the Wake Forest students themselves were
