

Wake Forest Has Brilliant Future, Predicts Dr. Reid

Building Fund Director
Has Optimistic
Outlook

"WAKE FOREST IS NOW ENTERING A NEW ERA"

Loyalty Building Fund Director
Speaks To Junior Class
Tuesday Morning

Speaking in behalf of the recently inaugurated loyalty building fund program, Dr. A. C. Reid, chairman of the fund committee, told the Junior class here Tuesday of a greater Wake Forest.

"I hope that I am not a dreamer or a visionary," stated Dr. Reid, "but I hope to see within the course of a few years a Wake Forest twice as great as the one you now attend. I never dreamed of the great love for this school that Baptists of North Carolina and alumni of this institution hold in their hearts. Baptists of this State love Wake Forest College better than any of the other schools in the denominational group."

Dr. Reid continued: "I know that Wake Forest has suffered a tremendous shock in the recent resignation of Dr. Gaines, but that has so reacted as to bring about a new outburst of enthusiasm, causing men from all over the State to buckle their belts a notch or two tighter, and to take a more fervent stand in behalf of a Greater Wake Forest."

"This drive for two new buildings, which are in every way adequate to students' needs for 25 years hence, is the most constructive program Wake Forest has ever launched. These two buildings will bring another or even two more. The Bostick fund has been a God-sent blessing."

"I am more optimistic than I have been for months or even years, and I have a feeling that Wake Forest is entering a new era," said Dr. Reid.

Commenting on the inadequacy of the present college plant, referring most especially to some of the classrooms, Dr. Reid brought out the enthusiasm

McMillan Is Elected Raleigh Alumni Head

Local Professor Chosen President of Columbia Alumni Federation;
H. M. Potat, 2d Vice-Pres.

At a recent meeting of the Raleigh club of the Columbia University Alumni Association of North Carolina, held at the Carolina Hotel, Raleigh, R. L. McMillan, local professor of law, was elected president. Dr. H. M. Potat, of the Latin department here, was chosen second vice-president.

Dr. Gaines made an informal address following the banquet.

The purpose of organizing such a federation is for constructive work, especially for helping promising students who desire to attend Columbia. Scholarships are provided each year for exceptional young men.

No Wedding Bells

The report published in the News and Observer of March 4 concerning the marriage of "Bo" MacMillan, first-year Medical student, to a Miss Josephine McMillan, of Durham, was, according to the supposed groom, "grossly exaggerated." In the first place there was no marriage; in the second place there is no such individual in Durham as Miss McMillan. Otherwise the report was all right.

The article was sent from Wake Forest, and, according to the State editor of the Raleigh paper, was on stationery similar to or identical with that used customarily by the college news bureau. While the article was not signed, the newspaper accepted it in good faith. It is assumed that some college prankster sent in the article with the view of playing a practical joke on MacMillan. If this were the case, he was well repaid for his efforts, for the joke went over in a big way.

The "groom" was kept busy for the latter part of the week correcting the rumor and putting right divers dazed members of his connection and coterie of friends. "I don't blame anybody for anything they may have said about me before learning the straight of this thing, but I do hope that, now everything is clear, they will retract the things they called me early Wednesday morning," MacMillan stated Friday. "My ears are burning yet," he added.

Dr. Hubert M. Potat, head of the Latin Department, recently made several appearances throughout the State, addressing various organizations.

On Friday, February 21st, he addressed "The Star" scholarship society of Greensboro High School on "Domitian and the Philosophers." Prior to this he had addressed the Woman's Club of Spring Hope on "Church Music." Following the address at Greensboro he conducted a model initiation of the Kappa Alpha fraternity at the Good Shepherd Church in Raleigh.

Dr. Potat was elected second vice-president of the Columbia University Alumni Federation of North Carolina during the past week.

AFFIRMATIVE TEAM LOSES TO SOUTH CAROLINA BOYS

The University of South Carolina debating team, made up of Leroy M. Want and N. A. Teague, defeated the Wake Forest College team composed of Earl L. Bradley and Wade H. Bostick Tuesday night in a contest held in the Franklinton High School Auditorium. The visiting debaters, who received a two-one decision, upheld the negative side of the question of complete disarmament except for necessary police reserves. The judges were: L. H. Allison, G. B. Harris, and W. L. Lumpkin, all of Franklinton.

Tryouts for Three Plays Will Be Held

Dramatic Club To Select Cast for Spring Plays Monday, March 10;
Program Scheduled for April

The Wake Forest College Dramatic Club will present three plays in April. The work of the club has taken definite form under the direction of Mrs. Carpenter. Last Monday night the Dramatic Club met and decided to give a whole evening's entertainment with three one-act plays. The first was decided on as the date of presenting these plays. The plays will be presented to the public and admission charged.

The performance will consist of "The Finger of God," by Percival Wilde; "Sham," by Frank Tompkins, and "The Valiant," by Hall and Midlemass. The plays have been selected by Mrs. Carpenter and Professor Whelan, which assures a balanced program.

On Monday night, March 10, at 7:15, the tryouts for the different casts take place. The Phi hall will be used.

As to the preparation for the tryouts, any student who wishes to try for a part should go to the college library any time before Monday night, get the play from the librarian, decide which part he wishes to take, and memorize any speech or speeches of the character. On Monday night he is to give that memorized part, together with his interpretation. From these interpretations the casts will be selected.

The first named play is one of serious nature, the second a comedy, the third a tragedy.

Every student of the college is eligible for the tryouts, and is urged to come out for the college dramatic team.

Competition for Places Stiff;
Over Thirty Men Try Out
In Two Contests

Raymond Long, of Gastonia, and D. E. Jester, Winston-Salem, won out over some 30-odd aspirants in the contests held Wednesday night to determine the orator and extempore speaker to represent Wake Forest College in the national convention of the P. K. D. forensic fraternity, to be held in Wichita, Kan., March 31 to April 4.

Using the topic "Character," Mr. Long delivered the oration that took first place, while Mr. Jester made an extemporaneous talk on the subject, "The Financing of College Athletics." The general subject for the impromptu speech was "College Athletics"; with an hour's notice each contestant was given a particular phase of the subject to prepare. This method will be followed in the Kansas contest.

With "The Return of the Gods," E. T. Harrill, of Wilson, won the place of alternate orator, while S. W. Miller, of Asheboro, will substitute as extemporaneous speaker in the event of the failure of Mr. Jester to take part.

During their almost 100 years of existence the Philomathean and Euzelian Literary societies have cradled the platform careers of the men who have made Wake Forest College famous. Although the present-day tendency is to evaluate the excellence of a college by the number of touchdowns its football team can make, or the number of home runs the local "Ruths" can pound out of the park, the pendulum at Wake Forest seems to have swung back and the contest Wednesday night showed an increased interest.

Gaines In Capital City For Banquet

President To Attend Alumni
Spread At Washington
Tonight

President Francis P. Gaines left this morning to attend the Wake Forest College Alumni banquet to be held Saturday evening in Washington, D. C., honoring three alumni who have been recently appointed to Federal posts by President Hoover—J. E. Yates, Chaplain General of the United States Army; H. F. Seawell, secretary of the United States Board of Tax Appeal, and R. W. Weaver, secretary of Hoover's committee on illiteracy.

Other distinguished alumni from neighboring cities who are expected to attend include Gerald Johnson, Baltimore, and Gilbert Stephenson, Wilmington, Del., in addition to around 100 Wake Forest men who reside in the capital city. Dr. Samuel Judson Porter, formerly of Whiteville, now pastor of the First Baptist Church of Washington, D. C., is president of the local chapter.

At this meeting Dr. Gaines will discuss the Loyalty Building Fund Campaign soon to be launched among Wake Forest Alumni and non-Baptist friends to be used in the construction of a Physical Education Building and a Students' Activities Building.

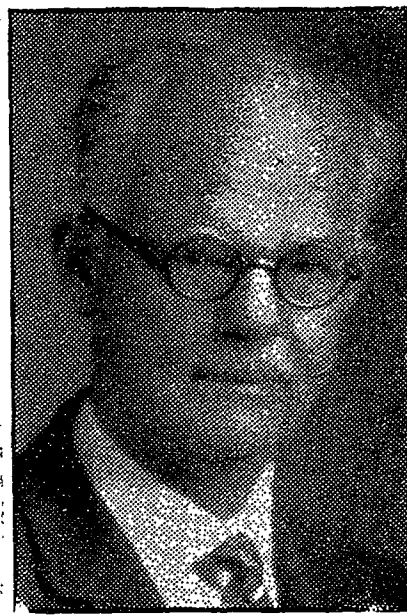

Gulley Compares Crime In County In 1910 With 1929

"It is amazing that there is practically no difference in the number of indictments in Wake County for 1910 and 1929," said Dr. Needham Y. Gulley, dean of the Wake Forest Law School, at prayer meeting Wednesday night.

"The difference lies in the nature of the crimes. In 1929, there were cases of possession of liquor, driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, and other similar cases to confront the courts. These cases were not known or at least not punished in 1910.

"There is a serious situation right here in Wake County concerning the promotion of crime. In the month of February, there were 22 white boys and 10 white girls brought before the juvenile court, and only three Negro boys and 12 Negro girls. These were

the Dutch In Raising Vegetables and Fruits

By J. L. MEMORY, JR.

To grow a 20-pound cabbage or six successive crops of beans in a single season is a simple matter for Dr. J. Hendren Gorrell, professor of German at Wake Forest College, who for 30 years has been "living at home" and boarding there too. He learned how not by listening to radio talks on the subject or reading an article like this, but rather by experimenting with a rake and spade.

In a little garden plot 75 feet square behind his house, Dr. Gorrell has outdone the Dutch in raising vegetables. Last year he produced enough okra, corn, green peppers, beans, potatoes, cabbage, etc., to supply not only his own table, but the neighbors' as well, and canned a sufficient amount of the surplus to last throughout the year. In winter, however, he doesn't depend wholly upon canned vegetables, since he has learned that about as many plants can be grown then as in summer.

His crops consist of fruits as well as vegetables. For instance, the James

Euzelians Debate On Entrance Into League

Monday and Tuesday Night Sections
Differ On Issue; Oration and Impromptu Speeches Delivered

After a very heated argument over the question, "Resolved, That the United States should enter the League of Nations," the Monday night section of the Euzelian Society decided that the United States should enter. The judges in the Tuesday night section rendered their decision to the contrary. The latter debate was exceptionally well prepared by the arguers of both sides.

Another feature of the Tuesday night program was an oration by T. R. Mitchell. His subject was "Success, the Result of Effort." In this oration he clearly showed that "Over the Alps of difficulty lies the Italy of success," this being the keynote.

Lloyd Thayer and D. V. Allen decided in their impromptu speeches that the taxation system of North Carolina has much room for improvement.

Law School Court
Tries Local Case

Jack Medlin vs. Town of Wake Forest Attracts Much Attention Here

Much local color and interest was outstanding in the case tried at Moot Court Wednesday night. The case tried was an actual one originating in the Recorder's Court of Wake Forest, Jack Medlin, the defendant, was present in person, to give his testimony to the court. Dr. Gulley's testimony for the defendant was given by Frank Meekins, who gave a very impressive reproduction of the revered dean of the law school. Dr. Paschal's and Mr. Holding's testimony for the defendant was given by Ed Whitaker and J. R. Schott, respectively.

The plaintiff's attorneys put on only one witness, Dr. Gorrell, in the person of Mr. Donald Gulley. Dr. Gorrell is secretary of the Board of Commissioners of Wake Forest, and testified as to the passing and the contents of the ordinance in dispute.

The case arose over an action brought by the town of Wake Forest against Jack Medlin for recovery of a $50 penalty imposed for the violation of a town ordinance. This ordinance prohibits the existence of filling stations on the west side of the railroad tracks.

The defendant alleged that this ordinance is unlawful in that it is discriminatory and is based on malice and prejudice. The lawyers for the defendant, i. e. Hayes, Hughes, and Allen, attempted to prove that, as there was but one particular filling station in the restricted area, it was discriminatory. They also attempted to prove malice and prejudice, in that, from the circumstances, a member of the Board of Commissioners would derive pecuniary benefit from the passing of the ordinance. These lawyers gave many statutes and cited many cases in the defense of their stand, and each made a very eloquent speech to the court.

The lawyers for the plaintiff, namely, Brown and Taylor, backed the validity of the ordinance on the facts: (1) That it was enacted according to law, within the authority granted by the town's charter; (2) that it was not discriminatory; (3) that it was enacted to prevent the future coming in of filling stations into the residential area.

Varsity Debaters Are Jinx To Chowan Girls

Miller and Deaton Prevent Holiday for Junior College Girls By Winning Disarmament Debate

Sam Miller and Harold Deaton, Wake Forest College debaters, hardly showed traditional Southern chivalry when they knocked into a cocked hat the hopes of the Chowan College girls for a week's holiday by defeating their forensic team last Saturday night, debating there the disarmament query.

There were rumors that the Chowan student body would be given a holiday of a week if their team could conquer the mighty aggregation from Wake Forest. They pinned their hopes upon the oratorical abilities of Misses Mary Lou Martin and Isla Poole, and they had good reason to be optimistic over the outlook, for Miss Martin had not lost a single debate during her college career; furthermore, she had won two loving cups for the school in forensic contests. Miss Poole was only a little less eminent than her colleague.

So to further their chances for victory and vacation the debaters were given a week or two of recess to study the disarmament question and to work up an invincible plan of attack to defeat the Wake Forest team, upholding the negative side of the query.

Interest was at fever heat among the students, and the townsmen were just as interested to see whether the young ladies would win their so greatly desired holiday. The auditorium at Murfreesboro was packed, something quite unusual nowadays at a forensic clash.

But the boys from "Dear Old Wake" were not daunted by this certainty of victory on the part of the Chowan supporters. They defended their position so well that the affirmative side was able to score only once, while the judges ruled two points for the Old Gold and Black.

SPECIAL ARRANGEMENTS ARE MADE FOR STUDENTS

Pledges To Be Paid At Beginning of Each Semester, Over a Three-Year Period

Approximately $18,000 has been pledged by the student body and faculty during the past week, to the $250,000 loyalty building fund, according to the latest report of the campaign committee. No definite report could be obtained at press time, due to the fact that pledges were continually coming in from classes which were anxious to swell their contributions.

The next issue will carry a comparative class report with a detailed summary of the local canvass.

Mr. Brown, one of the campaign workers, stated while reviewing the campaign plans, that an arrangement had been made with the faculty and Mr. E. B. Earnshaw, fund treasurer, whereby students' contributions would be received.

The plan operates on the basis that the student pledge $1.50 per month for three years, making a total of $9 per semester during the three-year period. This amount may be paid at the time of matriculation each semester. The largest pledge which might be expected of a student is $50, the remainder of which may be contributed in periodic installments after graduation.

A student may pledge more or less than $50, but it is the earnest desire of the committee that as many as possible of the students pledge according to the original arrangement. No pressure, however, is brought to bear on any student in this matter.

TRUSTEES, ALUMNI, AND FACULTY HOLD JOINT MEET

A joint committee comprised of trustees, alumni, and faculty of Wake Forest College met here Monday to formulate definite plans regarding the Loyalty Building Fund, which will be launched at the college itself this week.

Representatives of the committee from various sections of the State reported increasing determination to promote Wake Forest in this way. Wake Forest has more than 3,000 alumni in North Carolina, and a large number in other states and the world at large. No discordant note has yet been reported.

The following members of the committee were present: J. M. Broughton, chairman, Raleigh; Egbert L. Davis, president of the General Alumni Association, Winston-Salem; T. F. Pettus, Wilson; H. L. Koonz, Greensboro; Basil M. Watkins, Durham; Leiland Kitchin, Scotland Neck; and of the college faculty, Drs. F. P. Gaines, T. D. Kitchin, J. H. Gorrell, A. C. Reid, C. C. Carpenter, H. B. Jones, Professors P. H. Wilson, J. L. Memory, Jr., and Mr. E. B. Earnshaw.

Nation-Wide Drives For Funds Advocated

Bethlehem, Pa.—An intercollegiate alumni fund roll call or a nation-wide college drive which might be similar to the National Red Cross Week, was advocated by L. C. Boochever, of Cornell University, in an address here recently.

The plan proposed by the Cornell professor would involve the starting of a drive for funds at the same time by colleges and universities throughout the country at a specific period each year. General conduct of the drive would be under the supervision of a large intercollegiate bureau.

Fraternity Cup

The scholarship cup, which is awarded annually by the Pan-Hellenic Council to the fraternity making the highest average grade, will be presented Tuesday night at 7:30, in Wingate Hall.

The K. A. fraternity had the distinction of winning the award last spring. Much concern is being manifested as to the one carrying away that honor this year.

Everyone is invited to witness this presentation.

The next issue of OLD GOLD AND BLACK will be arranged and composed with the purpose of showing the prospective student the advantages offered by Wake Forest College. An increase will be made in the number of pages.

The News and Observer announced yesterday that the annual dance of the Student Government Association would be held at the Sir Walter Hotel on that day, and carried the pictures of the sponsors of the council and legislature as the leaders of the dance figures. Outside of the fact that the dance is a banquet, that the affair will be held at the Carolina Hotel, and that the sponsors are the guests of honor, the write-up is correct. May we congratulate The News and Observer on its selection of a society editor.

THE MINISTERIAL PROBLEM

Wake Forest College, according to popular opinion on the campus and throughout the State, was founded for the preparation of students for the Baptist ministry and religious work. However, according to the statement that has been incorporated in the catalogue of the college, "Wake Forest College had its beginning in 'The Wake Forest Institute,' a manual labor and classical school chartered in 1833." The catalogue continues with the statement that the institute was rechartered in 1838 as "Wake Forest College," but no statement is made showing that Wake Forest was to be a Baptist seminary.

Wake Forest was founded for the development of its students along the lines so aptly expressed as the purpose of the Golden Bough, honorary organization: "the perpetuation of a high standard of scholarship, Christian character, and efficient leadership." This aim not only includes ministerial students, but the Baptist boys of the State as well.

At the present time the ministerial class as a group is giving the impression that the College was made for them, and that all other students here are enrolled more or less as a special privilege of the Baptist denomination. They take for granted the aid which is given them by the College and the denomination, and look on the other men as lesser luminaries in their sphere. As a matter of fact the ministerial students constitute only one-seventh of the student body. As a result of this attitude of the class as a whole the resentment of the majority of the student body has been aroused and a distinct and antagonistic feeling between the two groups exists. This feeling does not extend to some members of the class, but is present toward the group as a whole. The crux of the matter exists in the matter of the Ministerial Aid Fund, which is provided by the denomination.

Why has this fund such an important bearing on the attitude between the two groups at Wake Forest? Because the stipulations tend to attract an inferior type of man and student to the profession and to the college. Let it be understood that the worthy students studying for the ministry are entitled to help in preparing for the profession which they have chosen. But the administration of the Aid Fund as it now exists does not tend to attract the best type of man, for the following reasons:

1. Any man, if he can get the approval of his home church, which should be easy, may apply for help and get it with only one stipulation: that he enter the ministry within several years after graduation. In that case he does not have to pay the money back. Students in other professions have to borrow the money, pay interest, and refund the capital at the end of a specified period. As a result the man who has not the courage and backbone to buck life and fight his own battle applies for aid and gets it, and then thinks he is a privileged character because he is specially exempted from the task of working for what he gets. Character is not developed by having someone do your work for you.

2. Not only is the ministerial student allowed fifteen dollars a month, but if he is married he is allowed fifteen dollars for his wife, and ten for each child. This feature of the Aid Fund tends to attract, not young men with the desire solely to be taught, and to keep abreast of the age in which they must do their work, but older men, married and settled in their ways. Men who have shaped their minds and characters prior to the time they enter college for the training to fit them for their work. Men who cannot enter into the active and alert attitude of the college man of today. In this day of progress it is absolutely necessary for the Church and the ministers to be able to keep ahead of their times and to understand the method of handling the problems presented by the rapid advance of civilization.

From the above we get an idea of the type of men in the class as a whole. Now for their attitude on the campus.

In the course of a program recently in B.Y.P.U. a ministerial student complained that the other students of the College refused to speak to him. The next morning one of the purely academic students met him on the campus and took especial pains to greet him. Not only was there no reply, but his greeting went unnoticed. These ministerial students complain loudly and vociferously that the rest of the student body does not treat them with the proper respect and friendship. If they would emerge from the wall of seclusion behind which they keep themselves and enter into the life and spirit of the work of the College, they would be gladly received. But for years they have built up the tradition of their segregation until the students have practically been forced to recognize them as distinct and separate from the life of the College. Unless they of their own volition prove themselves otherwise they must expect nothing better in the minds of the students than the impression which they have placed there.

Ministerial students, come out of your holes; enter into the spirit of progressiveness present on our campus; discontinue your air of all-importance; forget the privileges you are accorded; act natural, but not supernatural; then you will take that place in the college which will entitle you to that respect you have lamented as lacking on the part of the other students of Wake Forest College.

MORE ABOUT GAINES

The desire expressed by R. M. S. in last week's OLD GOLD AND BLACK that Dr. Gaines speak in our church some Sunday morning before college closes is shared undoubtedly by all of the community. We have no idea of letting him get away from us without having him fill the pulpit. Indeed, he has consented to do so, though he wishes it to be delayed until sometime in May. The exact date will be set at his convenience and will be announced in due time.

The church sustains a heavy loss in Dr. Gaines' leaving Wake Forest. He is a member of our Board of Deacons and has rendered greatly valued services as pulpit supply, on committees, and in other ways. The church, college, and community at large are one in their deep sense of loss at the prospect of the removal of Dr. Gaines and his family from our midst.

variety and scuppernong grapes from a vine which is an offspring of the original mother vine on Roanoke Island. He raises figs, too, in abundance and sees to it that those which are not eaten fresh are preserved for winter delectation.

Sees Dignity of Labor

How does he do it? is the question many ask. Well, in the first place, unlike many college professors, Dr. Gorrell recognizes the dignity of manual labor and takes a wholesome pride in practicing it. Afternoons when classes are over, you can find him almost any time of the year in his garden on his knees setting out cabbage plants or with a spade breaking up the ground. A plow has never touched this plot. The man has literally spaded it up by hand for 30 years.

Not a leaf from a tree or a bit of waste from his kitchen has been thrown away; he makes these into compost, which has gradually raised the elevation of his 75-foot plot two feet above the surrounding level. This probably accounts for the fact that during droughts his garden is usually fresh and green while many others are withering.

Aside from his ability in the classroom and garden, Dr. Gorrell is an engaging speaker, and when it is announced that he will fill the college church pulpit the people go early to get seats. Their admiration for him here is further evidenced by quite a number of little "Joseph Hendrens" coming along among both whites and blacks, whom their parents pray will be as diligent in business as the man whose name they bear.

tial section of the town and consequently becoming a nuisance; (4) that it was enacted to protect the homes of Wake Forest. Attorney Brown made a most able plea for the plaintiff, citing many cases and statutes in support of his contentions.

Judge Sing Sing, of Wake Forest, presided over the court. It was his pleasure during the trial to overrule a motion for nonsuit, and to either sustain or overrule numerous objections raised by the attorneys over the presentation of certain evidence. After all the evidence had been submitted and the lawyers had made their speeches, Judge Sing gave the court's ruling on the case, as follows: (1) The ordinance is a discrimination against property owners of the West side of the railroad in favor of those on the East side of the railroad, and for that reason is adjudged invalid; (2) the plaintiff is not entitled to recover the $50 penalty; and (3) the plaintiff is to be taxed the costs of the case.

Golfmen Prepare To Compete For Handsome Trophy

Raleigh Club Will Present the Winner Golf Bag and Club

The annual spring golf tournament for the local "field chasers" will start Monday, March 10, and continue on through Saturday, March 29. The varsity golf team, composed of five players, will be selected on the basis of the brand of golf exhibited during the tournament, and also by the final ranking.

A valuable trophy, kindly donated by the Lewis Sporting Goods Company, of Raleigh, consisting of a gold bag and a Wilson steel-shafted driver, or brassie, will be presented to the winner. This award is now on display at Barnes & Snyder's.

The rules of the tournament, and a drawing of entries, will be found elsewhere on this page. Players are urged to replace and take care of the new flags which have been placed on the greens.

A schedule is now being arranged for golf matches with the leading colleges in North Carolina and Virginia. Two four-day trips will be made by the team, and it is also expected that four or five matches will be played on the local course during the month of May.

Yearlings Stage Rally To Down Intramural Champs

BY MARTIN

Too bad Duke couldn't come through against Alabama in the final game of the Atlanta tournament. As much rivalry (speaking athletically) as exists between Wake Forest and Duke, together with other schools of the State, we always pull for a North Carolina team when they engage with foreign rivals.

Although they didn't win the tournament, the Devils are to be highly congratulated in the effort they made, and in going to the finals in the conference. Coach Cameron and his basketballers have certainly put up a superb brand of basketball this year.

With spring football over, and basketball "shot to pieces," the eyes of sportdom will turn principally to baseball for amusement.

Here at Wake Forest Coach John Caddell is working hard with his varsity squad, and making no predictions. But the wily baseball veteran is anything but asleep, so far as uncovering material is concerned.

Probably he'd like to uncover a second baseman.

Last 45 Seconds of Game Finds the Tossers At Deadlocked Tie

The night of February 28 found the strong Wake Forest freshman quint engaging the intramural champion Phi Dormitory cagers on the local court in a hotly-contested game of basketball, from which Coach Emmerson's first-year men emerged as victors by a 34 to 30 score. The winners, doped to win easily, found the going rougher than expected, however, and with less than a minute to play the score stood at a deadlock, 30-30; only their closing forty-five second rally saved the yearlings from defeat.

The Phi cagers opened the game by throwing the ball in from the end of the court, and soon thereafter Green and then Barnes scored for the Baby Deacons. The Phi quint contracted the scoring rage after a while and began to pile up their points also. The first half of the game was rather slow, with both teams scoring occasionally and keeping nearly on even terms, but not yet showing that "get hot" spirit. The intermission found the freshman five holding a 19 to 16 edge over the campus champions.

The Phi cagers, led by Hagaman and Smith, began the second half play with a scoring spurt which put them in the lead, 22-19. This margin was held until, with only a few seconds playing time remaining, Green, star newish goal ringer, came forward to cage three quick field goals, and Brank aided with another one, to win the game for the freshmen.

Green, center, scored thirteen points and played a good floor game for the winners. Barham, with seven points, was the next best for the freshmen. The big guns in the losers' camp were Smith and Hagaman, who hit the target for 11 and 10 points respectively. Jackson led in their floor play and was supported by Vernon and Sikes.

The yearlings used all three of their substitutes and kept them playing most of the time, while the Phi cagers' line-up remained the same.

FROSH TENNIS TEAM TO BE FORMED HERE

A Freshman Tennis Tournament will be run off next week, beginning Tuesday, March 11. From the list of the men who participate a team will be chosen by competition which will meet freshman teams from other schools in the State in several matches this spring.

All freshmen wishing to enter the contest are requested to leave their names with either Coach Memory or Captain Sikes. Drawings for the places on the tournament line-up will be made Monday night. The names of the entrants and the first-round schedule of play will be posted on the tennis court bulletin board Tuesday morning.

Golf Tournament Rules Are Issued As Practice Begins

1. Each match will be played during the following dates:

Preliminaries—March 10 to 12.
First Flight—March 13 to 15.
Semi-Finals—March 17 to 19.
Finals—March 24 to 29.

2. See your opponent as soon as possible and arrange to play your match during the time specified.

3. In the finals thirty-six holes shall be played; all other matches will play not more than eighteen holes.

4. If your opponent fails to play you within the time specified, you will be the winner of that match by forfeit. Player shall consult the manager before this occurs.

5. Each match shall be officiated by a third party, whose duty shall be to determine the stymies, penalties, and to keep score.

6. The first drive of the match shall be determined by flipping a coin. Thereafter the winner of the preceding hole shall have the first drive. After the drive, the ball farthest from the hole shall be played first.

7. The player that takes the least number of strokes while playing a hole shall be the winner of that hole. Holes that are tied do not count.

8. When ball goes in the rough, if played from where it lies—no penalty. If moved to fairway—penalty 1 stroke. If it is absolutely necessary, and agreeable to your opponent, ball may be moved backwards, not more than 12 inches, without penalty. This does not apply on the green.

9. If ball is lost in or out of the fairway—penalty, 1 stroke.

10. While playing hole number 3, ball is to be teed from the eastern side of the creek—On hole number 7, from the west side of the lake.

11. Tees may be used.

12. If ball hits power wires you may take another shot without penalty. If ball strikes tower, stroke counts.

13. Be sure to put your name and score in the correct place. This applies to the winner only.

14. Do not talk to or worry your opponent.

15. Be a good sport, win or lose.

Twenty-five Men Report With Beginning of Warm Weather

With warm weather breaking the cold snap which existed the forepart of this week, Coach John Caddell took his some twenty-five varsity men down to Gore Field for baseball practice in earnest.

Besides these varsity members the head coach has the yearling battery men, too, until Monday, when Pat Miller, who will coach the frosh, will order the entire crew of first-year men to come out.

With warm weather existing the varsity special will fast round into condition, pending the first game with Georgetown, which is only two weeks away.

This week, after the team went down on the field, only "pep hitting" and throwing was participated in. The coach does not want to take chances on sore arms and charley-horses, so he has been having his men go through only light workouts.

So far there is no certainty as to "who will play what" on the team. No word has been given out concerning this. It is expected, however, that next week's practice will begin to show "who's who in baseball."

Apex Youth Stars As Blacks Defeat Old Golds In Wake Forest Spring Practice

The Blacks, with Eustace Mills registering both touchdowns, defeated the Old Golds 12 to 6 Monday, to win the winter football championship of Wake Forest varsity football squad.

Mills, varsity halfback last season, scored first early in the opening period when he took a 30-yard pass from Jit Benton and sprinted 25 yards to score.

There was no more scoring until the final quarter, when the big guns of both teams broke loose for markers. Mills contributed his second six-pointer when he skirted end behind fine interference to run 18 yards to score. On the next play Tex Quillen, Old Gold

Teams Show Improvement
The backs of both teams drew praise of Coach Miller for their hard driving and running throughout, while the good interference provided by both teams attested the results of the month's drill in this important phase of work.—Continued on page four

E. M. Poteat Speaks On New Moral Code

Raleigh Minister Asserts Golden Rule Meets Requirements of New Code of Present Day

Rev. E. M. Poteat, of the Pullen Memorial Baptist Church, Raleigh, conducted the chapel exercises on Friday, February 18.

"In modern literature there is an effort to discover a new moral code for today. There are three essentials to this code," said Mr. Poteat: "(1) It must have a simple background; (2) It must revolve around the achievement of pleasure; (3) It must not rest upon external authority.

"People are no longer afraid of punishment; everything new must not be external to one's self. Science is now trying to make life simpler. This new code must be directed towards expression rather than repression.

"The Golden Rule meets the requirements of these three needs, since Christ dealt with life by placing love as the basis of all good," said Rev. Poteat in conclusion.

Junior College Men Eligible For Office

Phi Society Decides Presidency of Student Body May Be Conferred Without Restrictions

A warm debate was presented in the Friday night session of the Philomathesian Literary Society on February 23. The query for discussion was, "Resolved, That to be president of the student body of Wake Forest College a man must have been enrolled here for two years." The argument seemed to revolve itself in an attack on the junior college men on the part of the affirmative. It was shown that the president should be entirely familiar with conditions here before election, and that this was not possible under any other plan than the two-year enrollment system. The negative agreed with the affirmative in that a man should be familiar with conditions, but did not concur in the opinion that a two-year enrollment was necessary. They advocated a one-year requirement whereby there would be competition between two classes rather than only among the juniors in the elections. The negative won by unanimous decision. The affirmative was composed of W. G. Poole and B. A. Mitchell. Edward Harrel and C. D. Griffin supported the negative.

An additional number on the program was a discussion of the "Ape Theory of Man's Descent" by S. L. Morgan. He traced man's descent through the ages, establishing the fact that man has existed for about 50 million years on the earth.

among the faculty for this alumni movement and the unselfishness with which they were giving themselves in its behalf.

"Both these buildings are to be essentially students' buildings and are designed to meet students' needs; they do not provide for more comfortable and up-to-date lecture rooms," said Dr. Reid, "and yet, the faculty has responded generously, having already pledged to this fund about $7,000."

Mr. Brown, one of the fund campaign managers now actively engaged in promoting the movement in this State, urged that the students respond to the spirit of the cause so ably presented by Dr. Reid.

Dupree was the star of the backfield for his all-around good game. He threw several nice passes, while his excellent interference enabled his teammates to make good gains. Newsome contributed several nice runs.

For the Blacks, Bradley starred with his passing, while Mills and Hipps often tore through their opponents' line for much yardage. In the line Gregson, Parker, Williams, and Green were strong.

The last game of the winter program will be played Friday afternoon, when the Yannigans and the Lettermen meet.

Well, here we are again, and the first thing to be said is that Wake Forest boys have lost all their sense of "Old Southern Chivalry." Last week the Chowan girls were promised a week's holiday as a prize for defeating Wake Forest, and what did the Wake boys do? In the face of all of that, they went and beat 'em. Boys, boys, I'm ashamed of you!

We were extremely gratified at the interest shown in the try-outs for the Western trip; in fact, we are ready to retract what we have said on this campus many times, that interest in public speaking is dead. Eight men tried out for each place. The fight was on! A real good array of talent was shown, considering that this was the first time that Wake Forest has ever had an extempore speaking contest.

Ye Editor Jester will represent us at Wichita as the extempore speaker.

Raymond Long, more commonly known as "Deacon," we don't know why, is our orator. Deaton and Bostick are to bear the brunt of the arguing as the debate team. We may say that we believe that this team as a whole will give a good account of itself at Wichita.

Something else that we have noticed recently is the activity of Mars Hill in speaking activities. They have six men, or exactly half of the squad, on the debate team—and three of the trip men hail from that particular prep school. Rather a high compliment that Wake is paying to the training received at Mars Hill. We would also like to make a comment on the piece in last week's Open Forum by "A Fraternity and a Society Man." Can't the fraternities let their men take part in public speaking activities and yet owe allegiance to the home fires? It seems to me that the fraternities would like to have some men in these activities. Rather than strangling initiative in this direction, why should they not encourage their men in this line of work? If we remember correctly, one of the best speakers we ever had on this campus, Tew, was a fraternity man—in fact, wielded a rather important hand in fraternity circles, and also in student circles. Where did he get most of his influence? It started with his making the debate squad.

We were asked, "What is a good rebuttal?" We wish someone would tell us, but this much we know: Be prepared, don't let the other man catch you off guard. Read everything that you can get your hands on dealing with the subject, discuss it with every one that is willing to, soak up ideas. But, remember, a rebuttal is extemporaneous—but not impromptu! Be thoroughly prepared! Work out an answer to each and every question that the opposition can ask, and get it thoroughly thought out and on a card. These cards may then be shifted and sorted to meet the case. In other words, know your question and BE PREPARED just a little better than the other fellow.

Radio Program Given At B.Y.P.U. Assembly

Religious Group Centers Discussion On "The Place of Jesus in the Life of Today"

The several unions of the B.Y.P.U. on the campus gave a "mock" radio program in the general assembly Sunday night, March 2. The general topic of the program, which was taken from the book by Mr. Henry Kingman, was "The Place of Jesus in the Life of Today."

The first topic in this discussion was "The Bringer of Love," by Wade E. Brown. In this speech it was pointed out that as the bringer of love Jesus brings the most powerful force in the world.

The second topic, "The Leader of Righteousness," was discussed by O. J. Murphy. The speaker emphasized the fact that there are many paths that lead to death and destruction, but the one over which Jesus leads all mankind that will follow Him is the path of righteousness which leads to eternal life.

The third point brought out in the study of Jesus was "The Bringer of the Kingdom," by S. L. Morgan, Jr. In this talk it was shown that Jesus brought true love, which is always an aggressive energy, involved in a great fight for the Kingdom of God.

The last subject discussed was Griffin, B. L. Davis, F. M. Averitt, and A. M. Church.

To represent the college as debaters at this convention there will be one member from each society, Wade Bostick, Phil, and H. H. Deaton, Eu. The query to be used in the debates at the convention will be that of complete disarmament except for such forces as are necessary for police purposes. On the way to the convention the team will engage in debates with Furman University, Emory University, Howard University, and Milligan College.

"Jesus As An Outstretched Hand," by Bruce M. Tomberlin. The central thought of this topic was the fact that as Jesus was ready to help everyone while He was on earth, He still extends the welcome hand to all today. A radio was placed on the platform for the program and those taking part stood behind a curtain, thus making it appear that they were broadcasting from station W.F.C.
